

Discovering Natural NJ: From High Point to Cape May

Jim in a beech tree

Jim stands next to Big Rock, one of the largest glacial erratics in the state.

Jim Peck will show his photos and discuss beautiful and little known natural areas found all across our diverse state. He has traveled through NJ for the past 13 years exploring and writing the Trail Mix nature column for NJ Gannett papers. He has also visited 49 states with just North Dakota to go.

Jim is an amateur naturalist and worked for over three years as the Education Director of the American Littoral Society, a coastal conservation non-profit located on Sandy Hook. He also served for three years as the Executive Director of the Cora Hartshorn Arboretum and Bird Sanctuary in Short Hills working to educate the public and restore native plants in its 16 acres.
