Grandview mourns Rose passing

By CHERYL ORSON Correspondent

PISCATAWAY — Wayne Rose, 53, beloved principal of Grandview Elementary School since 1998, died at his Monroe home on New Year's Day.

In coping with his sudden and unexpected loss, Director of School Counseling Dr. Dorothy Young said phone calls and letters were immediately sent out to faculty and students that Friday. On Saturday, the school opened from 10 a.m. to noon for staff counseling. Early Monday morning, before school opened after the long holiday break, the staff met again to discuss the stages of grief and different classroom activities that could be done in helping the young students express their feclings.

Following the flag salute, teachers read a brief ageappropriate statement to their classes explaining Rose had died. The students were told death is a complex issue which could cause them to experience different emotional reactions. The youngsters were told it's important to share their feeling and to let their teachers know if they wanted to talk to a counselor. At the end of the day, after reminding students to talk to their friends and family about Rose's loss, a moment of silence was held for the wellloved principal.

"He was wonderful, a very kind and caring man," said Young.

Other school administrators also expressed their sense of loss in Rose's passing, especially so soon into the New Year in what is generally supposed to be a joyous time.

"The New Year began on a somber note for our schools," said Superintendent Robert Copeland, stating Rose began his career as a district music teacher and in that capacity touched many lives. "He was well-respected by his colleagues, his cheerful outlook will be remembered."

"It's a big loss to the school district," said Board of Education President Paul Herman. "He's been very helpful to the students."

Edison will tackle open space

By TODD JACOBUS Correspondent

EDISON - Taxes and open space issues will remain at the forefront of Edison Township's 2004 political agenda, according to the three members of the municipal council who were sworn in at a meeting held Jan. 1.

The council also elected members Robert Diehl as president and Parag Patel as vice-president.

Charles Tomaro, Peter Barnes III, Joan Kapitan and William Kruczak each won reelection for a third term on the council in the November 2003. Kruczak could not attend the meeting and will be sworn in at a later date.

Tomaro hopes to extend Edison's open space tax for another 15 years. The potential $7-8 million generated by the extension would aid open still vast areas which can be

The current open space tax of 1 cent per $100 of assessed value was approved in 1998 for a 15-year lifespan. The township was able to borrow $7 million in 2000 through a bond sale versus the anticipated revenue. Having already spent the majority of those funds on pertinent purchases, Tomaro hopes the township can repeat the process.

Peter Barnes III, sworn in by his father, Assemblyman Peter Barnes Jr. (D-18th Dist.), also stressed the theme of openspace. "Our goal has always been to provide a park or recreation center within walking distance of every citizen," Barnes III said. "There are

Mayor George Spadoro was grateful for the continuity of the council he has known for the majority of his own 10year term.

South Bound Brook looks to a busy year 2004

SOUTH BOUND BROOK — This is a community with many silver linings.

That was the key phrase in Mayor Jo-Anne Schubert's New Year's Day address during the borough's annual reorganization meeting held yesterday at the Robert Morris School.

One of those "silver linings" is the redevelopment of the former .GAF site on Main Street. Schubert said the site was "once the hub our community, but has since become an asbestos graveyard."

"Our dreams to redevelop the sight led us to choosing a redeveloper, but becoming dissatisfied with their plans for the site, we decided to change redevelopers. Matzel and Mumford (Hazlet, NJ) have demonstrated themselves to be up to the challenge, and in 2003 saw the first building demolished on the site."

Schubert's first order of business in 2004 is to continue the business of redeveloping and cleaning up the former site. The borough's plan is to construct 152 upscale townhouses, 35,000 square feet of borough hall. A pedestrian walkway will extend from Main Street and Canal Road, along the Delaware-Raritan Canal, all the way to Washington Street.

"Environmental cleanup has begun and under the watchful eye of the New Jersey Department Environmental Protection, we will have a site which will meet all criteria required for redevelopment," she said. "During 2004, we will see the rest of the buildings demolished and new construction will commence. Our dreams are becoming real. More silver linings."

Before Schubert gave her address, she, along with Councilmen Ronald Henry and Anthony Godleski, were sworn into office. All three won their respective races during last year's general election. Schubert is beginning her third term as mayor, while Henry will serve as chairman of the borough's Governmental Liaison Committee. Godleski will chair the finance committee.

Henry thanked all the residents who elected him to serve on the council. Before Henry entered politics, he served as a borough police office and later became police chief totaling 35 years of ser-

"I was born and raised here and I'm glad the people have confidence in my abilities to serve them on the council," Henry said. "I assure them I will accomplish this job to the best of my abilities. The future looks bright for South Bound Brook, but there is still much to be done."

Another project underway in the borough is the Main Street and Canal Road Streetscape Project, which is key for the revitalization of the borough's Main Street. The revitalization of Main Street will allow itself to market the borough so it can attract new businesses and visitors here.

Work on rebuilding Main Street and Canal Road began in April 2003 was funded by Federal Economic Development Agency and is supervised by the Somerset County Engineers Department. This project will include new sidewalks, the realignment of Cherry Street at Main Street, the addition of traffic lights at Main and Washington streets, new street lighting, etc.

According to Councilman Terry Warrelmann, the bor-

Borough wants to change sewage billing system

By LIBBY BARSKY Correspondent

SOUTH PLAINFIELD — As one of its last acts of the year, Borough Council approved an ordinance to amend the service contract with the Plainfield Area Regional Sewerage Authority (PARSA) to change its billing practices at a special meeting held Dec. 29.

'We're housecleaning some words that were in the agreement," said Mayor Daniel Gallagher. The "words" in question

The borough is also seeking to eliminate providing a sewer capacity needs report every three years and replace it with a "more discretionary approach."

We thought that South Plainfield should have voting rights since we are the largest user and we pay the largest portion," Gallagher said.

The borough has hired the Grotto Engineering Associates at a fee not to exceed $5000 as its arbitrator to handle the changes that South Plainfield is request-

Arbor fourth- and fifth-grade students, half of whom graduated from Grandview and knew Rose, made cards and letters to send to his surviving brother. Chaflin said one student wrote he is sure Rose "has gone to school heaven."

Born in Louisville, Ky., Rose resided in Freehold for many years. Last month Rose moved to Monroe Township.

Rose began his teaching career in 1973 in the Piscataway School District before becoming an administrative intern. In 1990 he left Piscataway accepting a position as the Director of Performing, Fine Arts and World Languages at Red Bank Regional High School. He also served as an Adjunct Associate Professor at Jersey City State University in Jersey City. Rose had also been enrolled in the Doctoral Education Program at Teachers University.

Upon returning to the Piscataway School District in 1998, Rose was named Grandview School Principal. Outside the classroom, Rose was an active community member serving as Minister of Music at the township's First Baptist Church on New Market Road for 16 years from 1981-1997. An accomplished organist and harpsichordist, Rose most recently performed a Holiday Cantata at Christ Methodist Church Piscataway.

Rose received his Bachelors degree in Music from Westminster Choir College in Princeton. He later received both his Masters of Education and Fine Arts degrees from the College of New Jersey (now Trenton State College) in

"There are a lot of changes that are happening all around South Bound Brook and we are on the right track," Warrelmann said. "In 2004, we will see new facades going up all over the town, the GAF building will finally come down, but we wouldn't be able to get this done without the support of our community. We are all working together by rolling up our sleeves and getting the job done."

Councilman Quinlan, who was appointed to serve another term as Council President, said South Bound Brook is "a great place to live."

"Our police department has worked extremely hard to make South Bound Brook one of the safest communities to live in," Quinlan said. "Our police chief has worked very hard to bring our crime rates down every year."

In addition to make South Bound Brook safer, the community is discovering its rich history and plenty of volunteers are lining up to help.

"There is a strong force talking up South Bound Brook's history. Our historic commission is working very hard on bring re-enactors here to put on the Battle of Bound Brook in May."

Councilman French Ridley summed up the day by saying that he couldn't believe what is actually being accomplished.

"I moved to South Bound Brook in 1929 while I was 4years-old from Virginia," Ridley said. "We ran into the Great Depression at that time Main Street was filled with abandoned flats and almost everyone who lived there were very poor. I never had any aspirations of serving in

Trash hauler wants to increase its operations in South Plainfield

By CHERYL ORSON Correspondent

SOUTH PLAINFIELD -During a special meeting held last Monday night, officials from Residential Services, a multiple-county trash hauling company with one of its own transfer stations in the borough, requested Council consideration to receive a permit licensing it as a public transfer station.

The 1,250-ton capacity trash transfer station located at 11 Harmich Road, currently used only by Midco, processes an average of 750 tons of garbage per day hauled by approximately 100 trucks per day. The company is now seeking to expand its operations at the site by becoming a public transfer station, opening the facility to other companies to pay to unload their trash there also, processing 950 tons of waste per day to be hauled by 130 trucks per

The borough currently receives 50-cents per ton of trash processed at the site, an estimated $75,000 to $100,000 in annual municipal taxes. Midco officials said if the borough grants the company a permit to become a public transfer station, it will increase the municipality's earnings to $1 per ton of trash processed at the site, an estimated more than $200,000 in annual municipal taxes.

Midco officials also said if the permit is not granted, it will continue to expand its operations to its state-sanclimit while also continuing to pay the borough the bare minimum of 50-cents per ton processed at the site. The Midco officials promised if, however, granted the permit, it will limit its operations to 950 tons per day while increasing the borough's take to $1 per ton processed.

Though Midco officials said the Harmich Road site "has not had one violation" issued to it in more than 30 years at the location, Mayor

Daniel Gallagher said he has received numerous complaints about the business including odors and debris coming from the site and it trucks. Gallagher also said he has personally witnessed the company illegally storing and staging its trucks on Metuchen Avenue, which he said "is all chewed up" from the trucks. Gallagher said the company's record keeping practices are questionable and its "measurements stink," showing more trash leaving than entering the

"I would not even support entertaining this proposal until we get some verifiable information as to what's going on at this facility and Metuchen Road gets cleaned up," said Gallagher.

Councilman Dennis Cerami also said "at this point I would not be for a public transfer station," the reason being the borough "is trying to improve our infrastructure" with the potential increased truck traffic from this site defeating that purpose. He also said increasing truck traffic would not be fair to residents," from whom he has already received numerous complaints on this subject. Cerami said he would, however, be open to reconsidering the company's requested permit and expansion once the long-awaited Helen Street project is finished.

"To me it's not worth the buck, it's not worth two bucks," said Cerami, stating the borough's goal is get trucks out of residential areas. "It's not about money. tioned 1,250-ton capacity It would be great to generate $300,000 to $400,000 a year, that's three or four tax points it would benefit the borough. But if we're going to be putting that money back into the streets (for repair) it defeats the purpose."

No action was taken by the council nor is any immediately expected on this matter. Midco officials said they would submit more clarified records on its operations at the site to the borough in early January.

Sports fields to get lighting this season

By LIBBY BARSKY Correspondent

SOUTH PLAINFIELD -The youngsters who play Little League and Ponytail baseball, Pop Warner football and soccer in the local recreation teams will soon be playing under lights this coming

At the Dec. 23 meeting of Plainfield South Planning Board, recreation director Michael English presented plans to install lights on four fields and replace the lights on a fifth, to increase the availability of the fields for night games.

The total cost of all poles, fixtures and installation ranges from $469,000 to $502,000.

Members of the planning board asked how late the lights would be on and asked that the lights be shielded to lessen the impact on houses that might be affected. English replied that the lights would be off at the latest by 9 p.m. and were angled downward on the field so less light would deflect to homes.

The lighting for the baseball, softball, soccer and football fields is just the first part of a three phase upgrade said English. The second phase will be building a classroom at the entrance to the woods on Sylvania Place which contains the environmental area known as the Highland Avenue Wood Preserves. Elementary school classes have been conducted in the woods with environmentalist Dr. Alice Tempel. explained English and the building would make more educational programs available.

A prefab modular 24' by 70' building that will contain two classrooms with two bathrooms manufactured by Whitley MFG. is planned. The cost of the manufacture. delivery and installation of the building would be $84,923.

Citing a need for modern bathroom facilities and storage/concession area at the soccer and football fields in the James Conroy complex, English said the third phase of the upgrade would be to install a modular building at this site. The modular 24'by 28' building would contain two bathrooms, a storage and a concession area at a cost of $169,730.

Money for the projects will come from the $1 million grant from of Middlesex County. In September, Councilman Ray Petronko, Councilman Robert Cusick and architect Joseph DeAndrea made a presentation before the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders about plans to upgrade recreational facilities in the borough. In October, Freeholder John Pulomena presented Mayor Dan Gallagher with the check to be used for these improvements.

State shouldn't limit local elections

To The Chronicle:

S-519 would prohibit the people from electing any candidate holding an elective office in a municipality having a population greater than 100,000, to either a county office or to the State Legislature. S-2273, more generally, would prohibit a member of the Legislature from accepting a mandate from the people to hold another elective office in this State. New Jersey has a part-time Legislature. We have Lawyer-Legislators, Doctor-Legislators, Insurance Broker-Legislators, Legislators involved in his seat in Congress to con-banking, industry, organized labor, real estate sales, management, development and construction, current and former educators - you name it. These individuals could have just as much of a personal and professional stake in issues relating to their professions and occupations, as could our local elected officials. We believe that the public is entitled to freely choose the best and the brightest representation at both the local and the State level. And we believe that this ban would circumscribe that right, which was, most recently, exercised in several Legislative Districts, just last month.

In the early days of our Republic, there was nothing to prevent State or local officials from serving in Congress. In fact, when the First Congress met in New York in 1789, it included at least two members — the Carroll cousins of Maryland who held, and continued to hold, seats in the Maryland State Senate. Charles Carroll continued to serve in both capacities the Maryland Legislature decided to pass a law preventing its members from simultaneous service at the Federal level. At that time, Carroll resigned tinue to serve in what was to him the more important position, as a State Senator. It is worth noting how the prohibition came to be. It was the more local political entity - in this case, the State - that said to its elected officials, "We don't want you dividing your time and efforts between our business and the business of the more general government." The Federal government did not say, in effect, 'We don't want your kind here and we refuse to sit with any State or local officials, as we consider policy for the nation. So we have decided to negate the will of the people of Maryland."

If the New Jersey Legislature wants embrace that precedent, it can pass a law allowing the people, through their local elected representatives in our municipalities, counties and school districts, to impose a ban on dual service if and when they see the

But, as currently drafted, the legislation would allow the State Legislature to claim a right over local elections - a right that the people of this State now enjoy.

U.S. needs a Department of Peace

To The Chronicle:

The Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum Centennial Celebration of flight is a positive assertion of the Wright Brothers claim to fame as pioneers of air travel. We can all take pride in this achievement. The Wright Flyer is now at eye level.

At the same level is the recreated Enola Gay, the plane that dropped the bomb on Hiroshima, now hailed as a "technical achievement" without mention of the 170,000 or more people who lost their lives as a result of that nuclear attack. This was seen by the Hibakusha, or Hiroshima survivors, who are diminishing in numbers, as an attempt to "normalize" the use of nuclear weapons and their means of delivery by plane and negation of their efforts to prevent future Hiroshimas. They petitioned the Smithsonian in December to correct this perception of the Enola Gay and its historical purpose as an instrument for nuclear war. The public has yet to weigh in on this.

The dropping of the bomb signaled the opening gun of the Cold War which is still ongoing. "Nuclear Administration Posture Review" negates the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty, and all other treaties that would eliminate the use of these weapons of mass destruction. In keeping with this unwarranted abrogation of international law, there is a false picture of what has led to our present national military budget of $400 billion and a lack of concern for the public's health as it has been affected by past, present and future wars and by continued "subcritical nuclear testing." The Hibakusha are of the opinion that there would be further Hiroshima/Nagasaki's if all nuclear weapons development and testing were stopped. If the true picture of the Enola Gay exhibit and the Nuclear Posture Review were reinterpreted bv Department of Peace the meaning of the Wright Brothers achievement could be more positively presented. Can we get the Presidential candidates to advocate a Department of Peace? Only Candidate Dennis Kucinich has advanced this policy.

Lessons every man should learn

At a certain point in every man's life, it is his biological and cultural duty to pass on the knowledge necessary for

From my ever expanding library of first aid for the middle-aged soul in crisis, I learned that becoming a mentor to a younger man also helps to deal with the craziness of second adolescence. The hope - a prayer perhaps - is that by transferring your accumulated "wisdom" you are reminded of the true and proper path that, to paraphrase the first lines of Dante's "Inferno," will lead you out of the woods of mid-life. But most young men don't need advice. Magazines such as Maxim and Men's Health do a decent job at filling in the blanks, though the rhetoric seldom rises above the towelsnapping wit of your favorite gym teacher. But knowing what's the appropriate wine to order with a Whopper or what exercise to perform to better define your pectorals isn't enough.

You need to know the answers about things that defy glib one-liners. You need to know how to properly grieve a dead relative you never liked. You need to know how to throw the tennis game so you lose graciously to the boss's wife. You need to know what to say when ancient Aunt Wilhemina asks if you're still having trouble with arithmetic in the sixth grade. Most importantly, you need to know how to recognize

Jersey Boy

Most men recognize the physical and mental symptoms of lust. Lust is the seasoned salt on the rim of the margarita glass and the olive in the extra dry martini. It is the howl of the wolf at midnight and the quarter that makes the motel bed vibrate. But can men accurately recognize the moment in an evolving relationship when, if you're under 25, love replaces lust or, if you're over 25 and supposedly more mature, friendship morphs into love? Can they recognize when it's a mutual transformation or, more importantly,

Poet W.H. Auden, in "O Tell Me The Truth About Love," has more insight on the issue than the metrosexuals at GO:

when it's not?

"When it comes, will it come without warning

Just as I'm picking my nose? Will it knock on my door in the morning.

Or tread in the bus on my toes? Will it come like a change in the weather?

Will its greeting be courteous or rough?

Will it alter my life altogeth-

O tell me the truth about love."

Poets may not have the answers, but they have such

I don't have the answer either, though it's the most perplexing and enduring issue among men and women. If the characters on "Friends" haven't figured out it in 10 years, why should I even try?

The playing field between love and friendship is a minefield. The slightest misstep can cause the whole relationship to explode and you end up impaled on the barbed wire of mistranslated signals. It is a seemingly impossible labyrinth to be navigated. Do you dare risk everything because you know the potential pain can be doubled because you could lose both a friend (or forever alter the nature of your friendship) and the sweet anticipation of love? It's a gamble, perhaps even the risk of a lifetime.

In the corner of my heart where teddy bears smile, strawberries swim in milk chocolate and Gene Kelly dances in the rain, there is still a guileless optimism in the curative and restorative powers of love. Lust is fleeting, like a violent thunderstorm on a summer afternoon. But love survives whatever outrageous acts of fate are slung at it. Those are the lessons I like to pass on to a younger generation - if I'm not too busy learning them myself.

Don't let Head Start get stopped Education and moving away

To The Chronicle:

Since 1965, the Somerset Community Action Program has operated the county's Head Start childhood development program, each year serving more than 200 children from low-income families and children with spe- funding. Therefore, it child care will likely cial needs. The program is becomes impossible; you increase, in some cases preadministered by the Department of Health and Human Services and is operated by community action agencies, like SCAP.

The program's success is due to a family-centered philosophy in working with families as a whole. Often, Head Start enables parents to seek employment with the peace of mind that their children are in a nurturing environment.

Head Start is under reauthorization by President Bush. In July the House of Representatives passed (by one vote) HR-2210, which would drastically change the program. This bill allows up to eight states to apply to take over the administration of Head Start by assigning it to the state Department of

As a result the cost of can't increase Head Start teacher qualifications without increasing funding. Nationally there is already a shortage of early childhood teachers.

The House knows that you can't increase teacher qualifications without increasing funding to support this change. They have recently resorted to false claims of Head Start directors being overpaid. This is false, since the federal government closely oversees the program and mandates a limit of 15 percent for all Head Start administrative expenses. This illogical argument is just another excuse and an attempt to deceive the public just as No Child Left Behind is leaving hundreds of thousands of our children behind, according to the Children's Defense Fund. With decreased program funding, potentially, fewer imental states. While this children in Somerset County venting employment for working families and further stifling welfare reform.

As Congress moves forward in reauthorizing Head Start, fortunately there are supporters who believe in upgrading teacher qualifications, increasing funding and keeping Head Start as a federal program. A pro-Head Start bill is currently under proposal in the Senate. This bill would ensure protection of the Head Start program or would at least force a compromise between the Senate and the House of Representatives.

Anyone who is a graduate of the Head Start program is a testimony to the worthwhile investment of Head Start. SCAP and the Head Start community need your help in raising awareness of the Head Start program and its importance in communities across America. SCAP urges Somerset County to contact Reps. Rodney Frelinghuysen and Rush Holt to thank them for their support, as well as Rep. Mike Ferguson to urge him to reconsider his position on Head Start's reauthorization. We also urge you to contact Gov. McGreevey to tell him you believe in Head Start and oppose the proposed changes.

To me, the answer is quite simple: "Saddam Hussein is

Having been a sergeant in to live! the U.S. Marine Corps and a Vietnam veteran, I can tell you that the capture of this mad-

Lifelong resident to take Vokral's seat

By CHERYL ORSON Correspondent

SOUTH PLAINFIELD -Lifelong borough resident Kathleen Thomas, a graduate of South Plainfield High School, was selected to serve the remaining two years of departing Council President James Vokral's term.

"I'm very excited," said Thomas, who stated she has been involved with the South Plainfield Democratic Organization since 1990. "I would like to work with Mayor (Daniel) Gallagher and the council in continuing to make South Plainfield one of the finest communities in New Jersey.'

Thomas said she especially looks forward to helping create a new library and to redeveloping the contaminated Cornell Dubilier Superfund site. She said a new library is "long overdue" and "very necessary" with the current cramped library unable to provide many services to residents. Thomas said redevelopment the Cornell Dubilier site would once again make this currently under utilized property a viable economic resource to the borough.

A graduate of Rutgers University with a bachelor's degree in accounting, who also worked as a corporate auditor, Thomas said she further believes her strong financial background will benefit the borough. A volunteer with numerous borough non-profit organizations as well, Thomas said her understanding of the community and her commitment to it will also be an asset in helping residents in her new position.

Married to her husband Bill for 21 years, the Thomas' have two daughters Kelly, 15, and Kara, 12. The children, like their mother before them, are attending borough schools. The family currently resides

Thomas is also vice chairwoman and treasurer of the South Plainfield Democratic Organization.

In the past, Thomas was an active member of the Riley School PTSO, chairing the Breakfast with Santa Committee and serving as a member of the Bi-law Revision Committee and Nominating Committee. She also served as a member of the South Plainfield Cultural Arts Committee.

Resident writes on Washington

By CHERYL ORSON Correspondent

PISCATAWAY — Through two books written by townresident Arthur Lefkowitz, during this upcoming chilly winter season, readers can experience the cold American of Revolutionary history for themselves, traveling with General George Washington on "The Long Retreat" through New Jersey and also "Washington's meeting Indispensable Men."

"The Long Retreat: The Calamitous American Defense of New Jersey, 1776," Lefkowitz's first work published three years ago, is the first full book-length study offering the most comprehensive account in current literature of the American retreat to the Delaware River and the pursuit of the British. It details the movements of both armies, the intentions of their leaders and the choices available to both rebel commanders and their British counterparts.

military pounded into desperate means and measures by the forces of the Crown, Lefkowitz proves Washington's battalions were still a force to be reckoned with as they retreated back from the advancing British.

Despite serious losses in material and personnel, Washington successfully keeps his units operational and though making several serious errors, still manages to consolidate his regiments, patiently waiting for an

Christmas night attack at Trenton, Lefkowitz details how this historic event actually stemmed from measures Washington had initiated as he completed his retreat across New Jersey. Leading to a dramatic reversal of fortune for the then demoralized

American. the forces, attack credited with keeping the rebel forces together, ultimately leading to the American victory and eventual formation of the United States.

on the subject. Lefkowitz's writing style is also praised as "energetic and crisp," not the typical writings contained in ordinary text books on the subject. In fact, the New Jersey

Council for the Humanities and its Book Award Committee designated The Long Retreat as its 1999 Honor Book, one of only five books so selected.

Having traveled with Washington on "The Long

Retreat," readers might next strategy with his aides being concluding with the famed want to move forward and not just "pen men," but "real, want to move forward and "Washington's Indispensable Men: The 32 Aides-De-Camp Who Helped American Win Independence." ing his military duties. Lefkowizt writes "while history immortalized Washington, it has largely forgotten those aides who helped to propel him to such greatness."

Unknown and unsung (with the possible sole exception of Alexander Hamilton), these men are credited with helping to make Washington an effective leader during what were often difficult and disheartening times. Lefkowitz provides proof Washington relied heavily on these men to help formulate policy and behind-the-scenes advisors who potentially affected some of his greatest decisions."

With an abundance of detail and a wealth of notes including a complete bibliography, this work has been praised as a valuable addition to the scholarly studies of this war. Lefkowitz has also been credited with bringing to life men who would have otherwise continued to be unjustly overlooked in the annals of American history.

Lefkowitz, an independent researcher and historian specializing in the Revolutionary War era, actually earns his living as a salesman and installer of specialty customcreated lock and security systems. Having traveled the world, Lefkowitz said is always happy to return home to Piscataway and write about his favorite subject.

"I find the stories much more interesting than anything a novelist could dream up," said Lefkowitz. "It's unbelievable these things actually happened. History is not really interesting until you get beyond the facts to the details."

Both the "The Long Retreat" and "Washington's Indispensable Men" are available at most popular bookstores and book websites including amazon.com. For those readers into American Revolutionary history, these books just might the perfect diversion on cold winter

ORT Summer Camp Fair events

PISCATAWAY — The Women's American ORT, Piscataway Chapter announced that it will hold its 20th annual ORT Summer Camp Fair this January with its first venture into Somerset County. The first area fair will be held on Sunday, Jan. 11 at Freehold Gardens Hotel and Conference Center, Route 537 and Gibson Place, Freehold. Freehold Gardens is located around the corner from the Freehold

Raceway Mall. The second fair, and its newest, will be held Sunday, Jan. 18 at the Bridgewater Marriott, which is located across from the Bridgewater Commons Mall, Routes 287 and 22, or Routes 202-206. The third camp fair will be held Sunday, Jan. 25 at the Sheraton, Parsippany, at the intersection of Routes 287, 46 and 80 in Parsippany. All fairs will run from noon to 4 p.m. and are open to the public; admission is free. According to Camp Fair Director, Barbara Rubin, "A camp fair is an opportunity for parents and their children to meet and talk with camp directors and their staff, see videos and slides of the camp and get an instant feel for the camp. The camps represented are from Maine to Florida and the fair gives parents the opportunity to do a lot of leg-work in a short amount of time. Camp directors will provide colorful brochures of their camps and many give prospective campers videos to take home. Directors are happy to make in-home follow-up visits to answer more personal concerns.

Besides traditional camps there are numerous specialized programs represented, for example, horseback riding camps, programs for the academically talented, pre-college programs, teen travel camps and camps for children with special needs. In addition, camp directors are interested in meeting older teenagers and adults who are interested in a summer camp position."

A representative from the American Camping Association will be on hand at each fair to answer questions about "How To Choose a Camp" and to distribute pam-

ORT provides a free booklet, which contains pertinent information about contacting the camps and viewing their web pages, to each family attending. Typically during the fair, parents and children highlight those camps which appeal to them and then walk around the fair and talk to those camp directors. According to the American Camping Association (ACA), an estimated 8 million children flocked to camp last summer and surveys show a steady ten per cent average annual increase in the number of children attending camp. Edison fulfills COAH obligations

By TODD JACOBUS Correspondent

EDISON - To build or not to build? That was the question facing the Edison Municipal Council during their final meeting of 2003. When the votes were tallied, they chose both.

Separate ordinances were passed to preserve the Oak Crest Swim Club property yet pave the way for the development of 300 housing units on Woodbridge Avenue. Oak Crest's preservation successfully culminates a threeyear effort by the Council, while the development project will satisfy the terms of a recent court order.

The 300 units will be constructed on a tract of land behind the Environmental Protection Agency building. Forty-five of those units will be considered "affordable housing" units which are necessary to fulfill the township's Council on Affordable Housing (COAH) obligation. The Council had 60 days to adopt the plan, which was submitted to the State Superior Court by the township's administration and approved by the Court on

Cape Cod

Split Level $2,900

Bi-Level

Dec. 6. Otherwise, the township could have potentially faced "builder's remedy" provisions, according to Edison's Director of Law Louis Rainone.

COAH obligations stem from a 1975 ruling by the NJ State Supreme Court. It requires municipalities to provide a fixed number of affordable housing units as part of their constitutional obligation. Affordable housing is defined as housing that can be purchased or rented using 30 percent or less of one's income. "Builder's remedy" provisions state that if a municipality does not submit their own plan for the obligation, independent developers may sue the town to develop affordable housing wherever space currently exists.

The 45 affordable units, in conjunction with the similar and previously approved 148 units on Truman Avenue, will satisfy the township's COAH. Edison is now exempt from litigation for the next six years, said Rainone, when Round III of the COAH obligations will kick in.

The mandate to build elicited frustrated comments from council members.

"It's a reprehensible dictate by our court system, but I can not find a responsible alternative to a 'yes' vote," said Councilman Anthony Massaro. "Are we being bullied by the court system? Yeah.'

Councilman Robert Diehl voted "yes" in order not "to leave this township vulnerable to lawsuits, to be preyed on by developers and put us in a quagmire we might not get out of."

The preservation of the Oak Crest Swim Club, meanwhile, will prevent the potential construction of up to 200 housing units on the property. Bondholders, who lease to the YMCA, currently own Oak Crest. The bondholders were offered $3 million by developers, said Rainone, prompting the YMCA to begin discussions with the township in 2000 to intervene.

The township's original plan called for Edison to purchase the property and continue to lease to the YMCA. A Green Acres Fund grant has recently been applied for by the YMCA, and final ownership of the property will now be negotiated, Rainone said. Oak Crest's pool, tennis and basketball courts, as well as skate park will remain in place. The township will also require the construction of several soccer fields for public use on the site before approving any final ownership plan.

"This is a win, win, win situation, to acquire the land, partner with the YMCA... and save money doing it," said Diehl. "This was an easy one."

borough resident, was also sworn-in to fill the remaining two years left of departing former Council President Jim Vokral's term. Councilman Dennis Cerami was also named as the new Council President. Vokral, who accepted a position as a Middlesex County Board of Elections Administrator and cannot hold elected office, said the decision to resign was "difficult." He said his time on the council was a "rewarding experience," particularly citing the accomplishment of such projects as improving the borough's infrastructure, getting a senior center and housing complex built, improving the borough's finances, starting the municipal website and email systems and selecting qualified municipal employees.

"I learned to listen to people and look beyond the yelling and see the real issues and try to resolve them," said Vokral, who said he also learned the impact borough financial decisions could have seniors and young fami-

Other council members and Mayor Daniel Gallagher said they would miss Vorkal and what he brought to the borough governing body.

"He's a man of in honesty," said Councilman Ed Kubala stating Vokral possessed a "pit bull-like tenacity" in advocating for such groups as the police and fire departments and rescue squad.

"It's a sad day for all of us," said Councilman Charles Butrico who said Vokral will be "sorely missed."

"His main attribute was his ability to grasp thoughts and put us in the right direction," said Petronko who said Vorkral had no personal agenda, listened to everyone and resolved tough issues. "I will miss you but I know you won't be far away," said Cusick.

"You're what made us a true team," said Cerami, stating Vokral's dedication led to visible results benefiting public safety and the borough's emergency services.

"We're going yo miss you but you earned the right to relax," said Gallagher, stating Vokral can hold his head up high in saying he left the borough governing body for the better than the way he had

Gallagher's mayoral state-of-the-borough address, he cited the main accomplishments of 2003 of being the paving of 16 roads, finishing a new parking lot the new senior housing complex, cleaning up contaminated Veterans Park, entering into a contract with the county to redevelop and reconstruct Hamilton Boulevard, starting plans to build a new library, purchasing a new CAD system for the police department and opening a new Office of Emergency Management headquarters in the former senior center building.

Looking towards Gallagher said the reconstruction of Hamilton Boulevard will begin this summer. The road will be totally revamped from New Market Avenue to Stelton Road. It will be widened to four lanes from Durham Avenue to Stelton Road. New traffic signals will be installed at St. Nicholas Avenue, Ryan Street and Clinton Avenue. Decorative lighting and pavers will also be installed from St. Nicholas Avenue to New Market Avenue. Also, in a surprising move, Gallagher called for Borough Attorney Patrick Diegnan "to commence action to terminate the (unnamed) junkyard operation on (Ryan Street) and Hamilton Boulevard" stating "their license to operate will not be renewed" and requesting the Department Environmental Protection also get involved in this mat-

Gallagher also called for preserving more open space including a 10-acre parcel on Hamilton Boulevard and Belmont Avenue and eightacres on Garfield Avenue. He said he would like to enter into a cooperative venture with Edison Township and Edison Wetlands Association to acquire the Adams Farm property which is currently the subject of a pending development law-

Gallagher also said he would like to see an architectural rendering of new proposed library hanging on the wall outside the council chambers very soon. He stated "there is no greater priority than a new library to serve our residents." Lastly Gallagher asked for the submission of another budget in 2004 which also does not include a tax increase. He said this was possible even with all the new items being proposed.

Middlesex romps to fifth straight

After a slow start, the Middlesex High girls basketball squad put another one in the victory column Monday night in impressive fashion to extend its perfect start to five straight with a 49-30 thumping of Spotswood in GMC-Blue Division play.

The Blue Jays, who put the defensive clamps on the Chargers' high-scoring Jill Dickerson behind the play of Lindsay Hopper and Ashley Best by holding her to four points, claimed a 7-2 edge after one quarter, and then broke things open with a 13-4 second period for a 20-6 cushion at halftime.

Tania Kennedy dropped in 22 points and Stephanie Marciano added 17 for the Hawks, who lost for the first time after five straight victories to start the season. The Knights, however, received a 29-point effort from Jamie Capra as they evened their record at 3-3.
