After the lawyer representing Somerset Airport and the Bedminster Branchburg Bridgewater Concerned Citizens Coalition presented their cases to the board, residents of Bedminster and concerned citizens of surrounding municipalities lined up for a turn at the microphone.

"I beg this board to listen to the residents of Bedminster," said Jenny Keary. "When the doors and the windows shake and they are far away, it is troublesome. When it wakes you up on a Sunday morning, it does impact your quality of life.

Other residents told tales of seeing helicopters and planes approach the airport at the same time, and wondered about the safety of allowing both fixed-wing airplanes and helicopters to land at the airport.

There have been four fatal crashes of these helicopters in the US this year," said David Fisher, a Bridgewater resident. "The helicopters have changed the nature of this air-

"The corporate volunteers really seem to enjoy being given the opportunity to spend a day outside the office and to help out with a conservation project. And, the nonprofit agencies that benefit are extremely grateful for their help. In addition, the youth volunteers have the opportunity to get involved with community service and for many of them, helping the environment can be a real learning experience. sonnel matters, such as what action could be taken following the latest arrest or what action had been taken following her conviction on DWI charges.

According to Naples, the township has policies for employees who have been arrested, but would not go into further detail.

"We have a very detailed pro-cedural process," said Naples. "Each matter is handled on a case by case basis."

According to the Code of the Township of Bridgewater listed on the municipalities' Web site, employees can be dismissed or demoted for 14 different violations of the code, including conduct unbecoming a public employee.

Kinney, 38, was arrested just after midnight Sunday in the borough on charges of disorderly conduct and obstructing justice after allegedly interfering with a motor-vehicle stop outside a home on Franklin Street in South Bound Brook.

According to police reports, Kinney and an unidentified male walked from the yard of a Franklin Street home at 12:26 a.m. Sunday just after police stopped a vehicle near the yard on suspicion the driver was intoxicated.

While police were conducting investigation, Kinney approached the driver of the vehicle and began talking to him, police said. Kinney was advised by police to step away but refused, and requested information on why the driver had been pulled over. Police said a second request was made for Kinney to remove herself from the scene, and at that time she moved back to the lawn of the Franklin Street residence.

The driver of the vehicle, whose identity was not released by police, was arrested and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and under the influence of a controlled drug substance, police said. While he was being placed under arrest, Kinney requested that police inform her of the situation. According to reports, Kinney appeared to be intoxicated and became more irate as police refused to inform her of the reason the driver was being arrested and began to approach the arresting police officer, yelling obscenities.

At that point Kinney was placed under arrest on the scene and placed in a nearby patrol car. According to reports, during the drive back to South Bound Brook Police headquarters for processing, Kinney managed to maneuver her arms and the handcuffs she was in from behind her back to the front. Upon exiting the vehicle, Kinney attempted to hit one of the officers, police

While in custody, police said Kinney stated that she would have her chief contact the chief of the South Bound brook Police Department.

Kinney's bail was set at $1,000 with a 10 percent provision. She was later released pending a court hearing. When contacted Tuesday, Kinney refused any phone calls from the press.

According to reports filed in 2003, Kinney hit a parked Honda Accord at 1:30 a.m. on June 21 of that year on Mountain Avenue Somerville. She was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated and issued motorvehicle summonses for leaving the scene of an accident and refusal to take a breathalyzer

At that time, the case could not be heard in Somerville because the municipal judge, William Kelleher, Jr., also sat on the bench in the township and Kinney signed his paychecks for work in the township's municipal court. The trial was moved to Green Brook, where Kinney pleaded guilty. She received a $250 fine and had her license suspended for six months.

Kinney has been a civil serin Somerset and Middlesex counties for more than a decade, having previously worked in Middlesex Borough, Manville, Hillsborough and Bound Brook. She has held positions including chief financial officer, tax collector, municipal clerk and borough administrator and is a state-certified municipal finance officer, county finance officer, tax col-with another Hillsborough resident whose name was not released, exited the side door, Martin is alleged to have pulled out a 9mm semi-automatic handgun and fired four times, hitting Grover in the abdomen and the leg.

According to police, Martin then jumped into a red Jeep Wrangler driven by Ciarletta, and the two fled the scene, heading toward Hillsborough.

Both Hillsborough and Manville police were contactwitnesses, who described the vehicle and the two defendants. As the Manville Police and the prosecutor's office Major Crimes Squad and Crime Scene Investigation Unit responded to the scene, Hillsborough police stopped the vehicle on Beekman Lane. Martin then exited the vehicle and fled on foot into a wooded area, where officers pursued and apprehended him. A 9mm gun, the same caliber used in the shooting, was also recovered in the vicinity of the apprehension, Hillsborough police said. The 9mm, along with a .22 caliber revolver found at the scene, are being analyzed by the Somerset Couny Forensic Laboratory's Firearms and Ballistics Unit.

Grover was taken to Somerset Medical center, where he was pronounced dead.

He was wearing a shirt that is available through the Hells Angels' Web site, and Prosecutor Wayne Forrest said that it was not confirmed that he was a member of the motorcycle club or that he owned a motorcycle.

"There is nothing that would suggest that he was a member," Forrest said. "He could very well have just been wearing the shirt.'

A shirt similar to the one Grover was wearing, which had the words "New Roc City" and "New York," and a skull with flames on it, is available for purchase through the New Rochelle, NY chapter of the

"If we go by the logic of accidents and near-misses," said Steven Parker, another resident, "Then we should close I-78 and 287, because I had about 12 near-misses on my way here tonight."

Others complained exhaust fumes and the number of flights, and worried about quality of life issues.

'This isn't just a couple of extra helicopters," said Maryann Cadieu, adding that the flights wake people up, rat-tle windows in homes, and are so loud residents are unable to talk outside while they are overhead.

Pam Walker, the daughter of airport owner Danny Walker, said that the NorthSTAR helicopters are not the only ones that take off and land at Somerset Airport. The airport sees at least 10 to 12 helicopter flights outside of the Medevac helicopter, she said. UMDNJ officials had said Medevac averages three calls a day.

UMDNJ officials also said that Somerset had been chosen for its access to fuel, the ability to construct a building there, and its central location over Picatinny Arsenal in Dover, Solberg Airport in Readington and Central Jersey Regional Airport, formerly Cupper Airport, located in Hillsborough. "It puts the helicopter in proximity to the people it will serve," said Dr. David Livingston, the medical director for NorthSTAR.

Over three hours after the debate began, Amey Mesko joined Caspersen in voting to approve the permit, and it

Baseball cards add to parade fun

SOMERVILLE — Monday's must-have for downtown shoppers will be limited edition baseball cards available in stores along Main Street prior to the start of the annual Parade of Patriots.

The free cards, available in strips of three, feature Somerset Patriots infielder Billy Hall, pitching coach John Montefusco, and Sparkee, the Patriots' mascot.

Finding the cards could turn into a kind of Easter egg hunt, because the Patriots organization would not say how many cards will be made available April 25 or exactly where they can be found, only that a number of Main Street locations will be participating.

The cards will make even better souvenirs for autograph seekers who plan to attend an autograph session with all the players and coaches 5:15 p.m. at Borough Hall.

The parade, sponsored by the Patriots, The Reporter newspaper and the Somerville District Management Corporation, follows at 6 p.m. and will travel down Main Street from Borough Hall to historic Somerville

Courthouse. This year's event has a U.S. Armed Forces theme, with several veterans reservists who served in Iraq and the Middle Easr as honorary parade marshals. A special veterans' ceremony will take place at the end of the parade as well as the introduction of the 2005 team by

Manager Sparky Lyle. "This year we wanted to use the parade as an opportunity not only to welcome the Patriots home, but the true patriots," said Marc Russinoff,

Dangers of identity theft

By Rep. Rodney Frelinghuysen

If you have ever applied for a charge account, a personal loan, insurance, a job, or made an on-line purchase odds are that there is a file about you somewhere on the Internet or in some company's database.

This file probably contains your Social Security number, information about where you work and live, how you pay your bills, and whether you have been sued or ever filed for bankruptcy.

Most Americans assume this information is safe and cannot be accessed or distributed without proper authorization. However, many are finding out the hard way that with just the touch of a computer button their Social Security number and very personal information could be publicly made available or stolen by an identity thief.

The risk of identity theft is real. Today, with more consumers using the Internet for every day purposes, more hackers roaming online, and the discovery of loopholes in existing consumer protection laws, personal information is at greater risk to identity theft than ever before.

The Federal Trade Commission — the arm of the federal government responsible for responding to consumer concerns — has listed identity theft as its top consumer complaint, affecting almost 10 million Americans last year alone.

Whether it is the result of a lost or stolen wallet, Social Security number, or the stealing of personal information on the Internet, identity theft can ruin your good name and credit. Since most people do not check their credit report on a regular basis, they discover that they are a victim when they get turned down for a car loan, mortgage or a credit card. Once they do figure out that their identity has been stolen, they need to go through an incredibly rigorous process to repair their credit, which, according to the FTC, can take on average 170 hours to get their credit back in order.

Over the past 10 years, Congress has taken the threat of identity theft seriously by responding with a number of critical bills — most notably the Gramm Leach Bliley Act (1999) and the Fair and Accurate Credit Transactions Act (2003) — to increase the rights of consumers, better protect their personal and financial information, and establish a stronger deterrent to terrorism.

Still, some businesses have increasingly found ways to take advantage of loopholes in current law.

The threat of identity theft reached new heights earlier this year, when ChoicePoint — a one stop shop on the Internet for insurance companies to collect data — admitted that con artists and hackers may have compromised the Social Security numbers, addresses and other personal information of nearly 145,000 Americans.

LexisNexis, a data collection competitor of ChoicePoint, also acknowledged that hackers had accessed the personal information of about 32,000 people in one of its databases because it was available to anyone who was willing to pay for — regardless of their need or whether they were authorized to access it

Finally, in March, The Wall Street Journal reported that credit card data on about 100,000 customers was taken from DSW Shoe Warehouse, a nation-wide chain store, while back-up files with data on more than one million Bank of America customers was lost or misplaced.

As the world changes, our consumer protection laws much change with it. Congress should learn from the problems at Choice Point, LexisNexis, DSW Shoe Warehouse and Bank of America and begin to reexamine solutions to protect consumer information and crack down on identity theft.

To help fight this growing crime, I have introduced several pieces of legislation that could help reduce the amount of personal information that governments and businesses can release without the consent of the customer.

— The Online Privacy Protection Act of 2005, H.R. 84, would direct the Federal Trade Commission to put out regulations requiring online services to protect the confidentiality, security, and integrity of the personal information it collects from individuals. The regulations must require web site operators to provide a process for individuals to consent to or limit the disclosure of personal information.

— H.R. 92 would allow all Medicare beneficiaries to have their Social Security number removed from their Medicare cards. Lost or stolen Medicare cards with personally identifiable information on them, like Social Security numbers, can be easily used by criminals to steal someone's identity and commit fraud

— The Wireless Privacy Protection Act, H.R. 83, would require wireless service providers to disclose to customers in writing about their practices of collecting personal consumer information, how the provider uses that information and what information may be shared or sold to other companies and third parties. The customer must agree in writing to the collection and use of such information.

The wireless service provider must also establish and maintain reasonable procedures to protect the confidentiality, security, and integrity of the information the carrier collects and maintains in accordance with the consumer's consent.

— The Social Security Online Privacy Protection Act, H.R.82, would protect consumers by regulating the use of Social Security numbers and other personally identifiable information available through online services.

The bill would make it illegal for online service providers to share a consumer's Social Security number with any third party as a means of reference, service, or for any other reason without the prior, written consent of the consumer.

With identity theft among the fastest growing crimes in America, every consumer should take steps to protect themselves and avoid falling victim to attack.

From using a secure Internet browser to putting passwords on credit cards, bank and phone accounts, consumers can make sure their personal information is secure and better protected against identity thieves. Also, starting in September, New Jerseyans will be eligible for an annual credit report when they visit: www.annualcreditreport.com. After confirming their identity, this website will allow residents to print their credit report free of charge.

Letters to the Editor

Friends of library thankful for help

To the Editor:
On behalf of the Friends of the Piscataway Library, I would like to thank everyone who came to the Friends Spring Book Sale at Kennedy Library last weekend. The sale earned $5,400 which will be used for improvements to the library and its collections in the future. Recently the friends donated new display racks for magazines for Kennedy Library and a computerized poster maker for staff use.

I would also like to thank all those who donate books to the library throughout the year; for, without those books, there would be no sale.

With a membership of close to 300, the friends group is a non-profit organization whose dues also support projects at the library such as concerts, film programs, and the summer reading club. In addition to getting a tax deduction for membership dues, members receive the library's newsletter mailed to their homes, and they get first pick at the books sold at the book sales. Anyone interested in being a member

Earth Day is time to appreciate outdoors

Earth Day provides a perfect excuse for a springtime hike in one of New Jersey's fabulous state parks or forests.

But it is also a good time to step back and assess what we have done for the environment over the past year.

As chairman of the Senate Environment Committee, the story of New Jersey's environment is a tale of two States: one a sprawling industrial metropolis, filled with vast superhighways and towering smokestacks; the other a lush, green Garden State, filled with vast greenways and towering trees. I am proud to report that we are making great progress and the state of New Jersey's environment in 2005 is much better than it was a year ago

Balancing the unique environmental needs of each is at times a challenge, but when you can find that balance, the rewards are rich not only for yourself but for generations of New Jerseyans still to come.

As chairman of the Senate Environment Committee, I have the honor to serve New Jersey in one of the most environmentally historic periods of our state's history. Many of the bills we sent on to become law will undoubtedly shape the state's environmental policy for years.

Last year, we approved one of the most significant environmental achievements of the past 20 years in the Highlands Water Protection and Planning Act. This milestone will protect the water quality for nearly half of New Jersey's population for years to come. Highlands Act couples an aggressive preservation policy with smart growth planning to create one of the most comprehensive environmental safety nets ever seen in the Garden State. Action was necessary because of the threat of encroaching development and suburban sprawl, which jeopardized the pristine quality of the Highlands water resources. In response to flooding last summer in southern New the Senate Jersey, Committee Environment approved a bill sponsored by Senator Wayne Bryant to give Department Environmental Protection the authority to penalize negligent private dam owners who let their dams fall into disrepair. Coupled with efforts pending to free up State bond funds for public and private dam improvements, these measures will go a long way to ensure the safety of communities at significant risk due to dam failure.

We approved a bill to require that mercury switches be removed from automobiles before they are scrapped or recycled, a move that will reduce the danger of mercury contamination in New Jersey. While this dangerous substance has been eliminated in newer vehicles, many older cars still contain mercury switches. When the cars are melted to recycle steel, the mercury is released, polluting our air, and causing developmental problems in children and nervous system disorders in adults. This measure became law in March, thanks to the efforts of Senators Stephen M. Sweeney and

The committee also passed a bill, which became law in January, that contains reasonable limits on liability for redevelopers of brownfield sites so they are not held liable for natural resource damage done by previous owners of a contaminated site, who remain responsible for site cleanup. This bill will stimulate the redevelopment of previously contaminated properties.

As we look ahead, a number of important initiatives, for which we've already laid the groundwork, are major priorities in 2005.

We will look to reduce air pollution in the Garden State of am sponsoring a bill to reduce emissions from certain vehicles and equipment powered by diesel engines. The program would establish new, stricter standards for diesel emissions from certain vehicles, such as commercial buses, sanitation vehicles and local diesel trucks. This will limit public exposure to diesel emissions, which causes cancer in roughly one in every 1,600 New Jersey residents. The national average is one in every 2,754 people. Approximately 1,000 New Jersey residents die each year from exposure to diesel particulates. Hundreds of millions of dollars are spent on health care because of this insidious air pollutant. The New York, Philadelphia and Trenton metro areas have some of the highest occurrences of cancer, heart problems and death from diesel emissions. Also, accordto the Environmental Protection Agency, New Jersey does not meet health-based standards for fine particle pollution.

This legislation would substantially decrease diesel emissions through the retrofitting of diesel engines. The bill would also strengthen school bus idling standards and could provide for air pollution control devices on school busses for the protection for our children. The diesel emissions bill would also appropriate $24 million to help finance the retrofitting of regulated vehicles with filters to help reduce emissions.

Maximizing the benefit from our environmental dollars is paramount. The Senate has passed legislation, sponsored by Senator John Adler, for site remediation and brownsfield redevelopment. This is a shining example of the sort of fiscally sound, environmentally sensitive development which will restore our urban areas, make use of existing resources, and bring commercial opportunities into our State's cities.

Lastly, we have given statutory direction to the Green Acres land preservation program, which requires that New Jersey focus its land acquisitions on properties that are protective of water resources.

New Jersey is a state where large tracts of open space and immense urban landscapes can coexist side by side, but only if we are ever-vigilant as to the impact that we have on the environment. If we are responsible, we will be able to enjoy the natural beauty of the Garden State and protect the health of our citizens for many years to come.

High school joins OPSHBX

Somerville's Immaculata High School is gearing up for a collection drive designed to gather thousands of items that will be boxed and shipped to U.S. armed forces in Iraq and the Mideast.

Operation: Shoebox New Jersey 2005 posters are taped to walls and tacked to bulletin boards throughout the school. The drive will begin May 2, and culminate with a special program May 12 that will feature a video shot in Iraq by Army Maj. Sal Abano, an officer in the 250th Signal Battalion, 42nd Infantry, a National Guard unit based in Franklin that was deployed to Iraq beginning in October. His daughter is a student at the school.

The supplies will be gathered and picked up May 12, and will be boxed, packed and shipped during a special event in downtown Somerville on Saturday, May 14. (Details below).

Special thanks to Veronica LaVista, an English teacher at the school who was one of the original volunteers to join OPSHBX. She has been a whirlwind and an inspiration to the entire OPSHBX organization, full of great ideas and committed to the cause.

Operation: Somerville Supply Line

Somerville residents, elected officials and the business community will join with the volunteers of Operation: Shoebox New Jersey 2005 May 14 in downtown Somerville to participate in "Operation Somerville Supply Line," a four-hour event during which we'll pack, wrap and ship boxes for U.S. armed service personnel from the Central New Jersey region who are serving in Iraq and the

We hope this event will act as a blueprint for other communities, civic organizations and business groups in Central New Jersey. Monster burger

The Association Independent Competitive Eaters is posing a challenge to those who think they've got what it takes to wolf down a 12.5 pound monster hamburger with all the trimmings. Where's the Beef?

Mike Zambas of the Clinton Station Diner off Route 78 in Clinton concocted the "Zeus" burger to celebrate the oneyear anniversary of the diner a few months ago, and soon after, joined with the volunteers of Operation: Shoebox New Jersey 2005, donating 15 percent of his Monday night dinner receipts every other week to the all-volunteer effort which collects Zambas was contacted by Arnie Chapman, president of AICE, who was interested in promoting a contest at the diner; Zambas suggested Chapman consider donating the entry fees and sponsor fees to OPSHBX.

"America's Biggest Burger Eating Competition" already has five teams of three persons each lined up for the 1 p.m. event May 9 at the diner. It will be a timed event, with one "Zeus" served to each team. The team which cleans its plate first will be declared the win-

Based on previous years' plays, crowds of 500 people are expected at the 7:30 p.m. Friday performance and 7 p.m. Saturday performance, according to Ferris, who explained that the required admission will be a bag of donated items which will be sent to the soldiers. The producers will also accept cash donations, which will be handed over to OPSHBX.

Art Auction benefits Operation: Shoebox

Raritan Antique Village, just 1 mile off the Somerville Circle, will be hosting an art sale and silent auction to benefit Operation: Shoebox New Jersey 2005, a five-day event that begins May 18 featuring presentations and demonstrations by the artists.

A portion of the silent auction proceeds raised by the sale of the artwork will be donated to Operation: Shoebox.

The antique store is located at 44 West Somerset St. in downtown Raritan.

Local artist Cliff · Brown approached Ellyn Brannick, owner of the antique store, with the idea of an art show where a portion of the proceeds would be donated to a charity. Together with designers Kelley Evens and Kolbe Clark, they worked out the details. Brown, a regular fixture on the local art circuit, has been showcased as an artist in residence both in the United States and abroad. He will preview some of the pieces for the weekend's art show as well as talk about and demonstrate techniques used in the artwork on Wednesday, May

WWII POW recalls enslavement by Nazis

"A Hogan's Heroes scenario" is what World War II veteran Bernie Melnick remembers it being like after he and thousands of other Army servicemen were taken prisoner by the Nazis during the Battle of the Bulge in December 1944.

But that would all change.

"The Nazis ordered all enlisted men of Jewish faith to step forward. So I stepped forward," said Melnick, now 81. "Never in my wildest imagination did I think I would be asked to step forward and be sent off to the unknown.

"They separated us, men in American uniforms. They sepa-

Melnick and 349 of his fellow soldiers had been singled out as being Jewish (though only 100 actually were) or some other ethnicity despised by Adolf Hitler, and shipped by railroad boxcar from where they were first held at Stalag 9B at Bad Orb, Germany, to Berga am Elster, a satellite of the notorious death camp at Buchenwald, on the banks of the Elster River. There they were forced into slave labor for the German war machine. Seventy of the 350 men died under the nightmarish conditions — 12-hour works shifts with frequent beatings and no food or water followed by the infamous death march before liberation. Many of the survivors were never the same, including Melnick who kept his experiences at Berga a secret until a 1983 Florida newspaper interview, which then opened the floodgates to numerous news stories, documentaries and books about Melnick and his comrades including the book "Soldiers and Slaves" by Roger Cohen, to be released

Melnick, who again told his tale during a visit to this newspaper last week, spoke at Raritan Valley Community College earlier this week as part of the school's Holocaust and Genocide Studies program to commemorate the 60th anniversary of the liberation of Holocaust survivors.

Originally from the Bronx. N.Y., Melnick, who now resides in Cape Coral, Fla., served with the 110th Infantry Cannon
