Math teacher Catherine Fortunato and custodian Bruce Speirs arrange a podium inside a classroom at the Academy for Health and Medical Sciences at the Somerset County Vocational and Technical School.

Health academy opens its doors at Vo-tech

By ALLISON ELYSE GUALTIERI
Staff Writer

On Tuesday afternoon, as part of her first day of school, Catherine Fortunato got to go in and start setting up the room where she will be teaching, after a summer of anticipation and preparation for her new charges, the students of the Academy for Health and Medical Sciences at the Somerset County Vocational and Technical School.

Her room, one of the two classrooms carved out of the former Cisco computer systems lab, features new furniture, fresh paint, and an unmarked whiteboard.

She checked out her brand-new desk, picked out the shelves that she will use, and glanced over the brand-new textbooks piled on the bookshelves that she will use for her combined algebra class.

"Aren't they lucky, they get me last," she joked Tuesday. For Fortunato, her days will be split between teaching the Academy students and teaching students in the larger school, which she has done for the past two decades.

"It's a dual role. I'll be working in the upstairs in the mornings and the upstairs in the afternoon, just in different buildings," she said.

Checking out her new room, she noticed the new furniture might lend itself to a lesson. The student desks are trapezoidal, so they fit together in ways her students study.

"We could talk about tessellations," she said, trying out one of the desks herself. "Look at that, they tessellate."

Over the summer, Fortunato has been working with faculty at Raritan Valley Community College, the district's partner in the academy program, to get her lesson plans set. She also took some online courses, and plans on more professional development, which will benefit both her academy and non-academy students.

That dual benefit is just one that having the

Three communities receive 911 grants

State Sen. Barbara Buono, D-Middlesex, Assemblymen Peter Barnes, D-Middlesex, and Patrick Diegnan, D-Middlesex, announced that the East Brunswick, Edison and South Plainfield police departments were awarded Enhanced 911 grants from the New Jersey 911 Commission and the Office of Emergency Telecommunications Services.

The police departments were awarded grants of $35,304 (East Brunswick), $91,622 (Edison) and $21,183 (South Plainfield) for the purpose of purchasing, upgrading, maintaining and operating technology to ensure the reliability of Public Safety Answering Points, New Jersey's emergency telephone reporting system. Funding was also available for consolidation efforts.

"It is especially important that our Public Safety Answering Points are maintained and improved in order to keep up with advances in telecommunications technology," Buono said. "In order to provide our citizens with high quality, expeditious and efficient care, our emergency services need to be upgraded frequently."

Public Safety Answering Points are the facilities that receive all 911 calls, dispatch emergency response services and transfer calls to other public safety agencies. Funding for the system is provided through a 911 System and Emergency Response Fee.

"The widespread use of cell phones makes it more difficult for emergency centers to locate distressed

Former Middlesex County College trustee honored

EDISON — Carole K. Kurtz, former trustee and Board president of Middlesex County College, received the Paige D. L'Hommedieu Outstanding Citizenship Award at the State of the College assembly on Aug. 28.

The award, created in 1975 to honor the memory of the founding president of the board of trustees, is presented annually to a member of the community who exemplifies the highest humanitarian ideals and devotion to the betterment of his fellow citizens.

"Carole Kurtz, has had a profound impact on the lives of people she encountered," said trustee Hank Bauer, who presented the award. "From her earliest days as a teacher, she reached out to children, one by one, and touched their spirits and gave them hope, aspirations and belief in their potential. Throughout the years she never lost sight of her commitment to young people and her belief in their creativity and intelligence."

"As a former member and chair of the Middlesex County College board of trustees, Carole has led and represented our college with distinction, for which we are all grateful."

A graduate of Douglass College, Kurtz combined a professional career with raising a family, diverse graduate studies, civic involvement, business success and quiet philanthropy.

After a career as a teacher in the Old Bridge school system where she developed the gifted and talented program, Kurtz established the Crighton School in 1983, a highly respected private school for gifted and talented children from 5 to 12 years old.

academy in the school will provide, according to Diane Ziegler, director of curriculum and instruction for the district. In between checking off schedule changes, handing out keys, and making last-minute adjustments Tuesday, Ziegler showed off the finished classrooms and the close-to-finished science labs, which were also started in June.

"The whole district benefits. The changes we're making to accommodate our new student population will also give the students here the high level too," she said. "It's a win-win."

While the science labs will not be complete until the end of September, the rooms are a world away from the gutted space where wires had dangled and pipes were exposed in July. The labs, prep space, and teachers' offices are well on their way to being complete, with lab tables and cabinets already installed.

Ziegler had rolled up her sleeves on Friday to get the classrooms ready, pushing furniture around to make sure things were ready when the teachers arrived this week. "The classrooms are all set, because I was hoofing it all around on Friday," she said.

While there are some things still outstanding — not all book orders are in, for example — part of that is due to the hiring of new teachers, Ziegler said.

One of those new hires, Louise Tokarsky-Unda, admitted to being a little bit nervous for the first day. Yesterday was her first time in a high school classroom after a job as a teaching assistant at the State University of New York in Buffalo.

She applied to teach because of the academy's model, and spent her summer getting her New Jersey teaching certificate and writing lesson plans for her Social Studies classes.

"I moved to New Jersey and I was interested in something that had the potential to expand," she said.

While the academy students will be getting heavy doses of science and math, Tokarsky-Unda said she doesn't foresee any problems with her subject material.

"I think it's a matter of how you spin it, getting them to see how it's relevant," she said.

The school welcomed its pioneering class of 33 students yesterday. They will be the first to graduate from the academy's rigorous academic program with a high school diploma and an associate's degree from Raritan Valley Community College.

"It's been so long in coming, and tomorrow's the day," Fortunato said Tuesday.

callers," Barnes said. "Call centers need to interact and communicate with local police, fire and ambulatory services quickly in order to provide the best care."

These awards are in response to the 911

Commission's recognition that in many areas of the state improved services and cost savings could be achieved through consolidation. A study commissioned in March 2005 through the Edward J. Bloustein School of Public Planning and Public Policy at Rutgers University explored such opportunities to provide improved services and reduced operational costs for 911 operations in the state. To ensure the highest quality of service at the state's emergency response centers, the study's recommendations were incorporated into the grant criteria.

"To ensure system reliability, it is essential that our emergency centers are funded sufficiently," Diengnan said. "Due to advances in technology, the need to maintain and consolidate emergency centers has never been greater."

he said.

Chefs from the Pluckemin Inn, The David Drake, Stage Left and Sophie's Bistro are scheduled to appear.

"The best part of the Largest Networking Party is that it encompasses every type and size business in ... Middlesex County," according to chamber President Christopher Phelan. "It provides a platform for these diverse companies, schools and nonprofits to display their products and services.

"It is a great opportunity for people to make new contacts, sample delicious cuisine and enjoy great entertainment," he said.

Over 1,200 attended last year's event and the chamber is anticipating a similar number this year.

Attendees, exhibitors, and sponsors are urged to register promptly as space is limited. Admission is $25 in advance and $35 at the door.

In April 1994, Kurtz was named to the Middlesex County College Board of Trustees where she served for 11 years, including two, 1999 to 2001, as its chair.

She also headed the By-Laws and Nominating Committees, participated on the Academic, Student and Alumni Affairs, Facilities and Human Resources Committees and represented the College as a member of the Board of School Estimate and Trustee Ambassador.

Kurtz and her family endowed a special Foundation scholarship, awarded annually to a South Amboy resident pursuing a nursing degree. She also endowed a scholarship at Douglass College in memory of her mother.

Kurtz continues to be engaged in community-based organizations, family, club and sports activities. She is also active in the Douglass College Alumnae Association.

From a wasteland to a play land

By AMY S. BOBROWSKI
Staff Writer

BRIDGEWATER — Hidden behind Commerce Bank Ballpark on East Main Street is an oasis in the making.

Currently on the 535-acre former American Cyanamid property sits a remediation treatment facility, several offices housed in trailers, and an old warehouse.

But within a decade's time, property owner Wyeth Holding Corporation — previously American Home Properties — hopes to create an 18-hole golf course and a wildlife preserve on the area contaminated by the former chemical and pigment manufacturing company.

"It (American Cyanamid) was one of the largest manufacturing companies in the country," said Steve Roland, president of environmental solutions for O'Brien & Gere Engineers Inc., the consulting firm hired by Wyeth. "They had 5,000 people (working) here right after World War II ... They used to manufacture dyes here. Remember how all phones used to be black? The black dye came from this site."

The property was designated a Superfund site in 1982 and Wyeth took control of the land and remediation in 1994.

Remediation of the site — a process of extracting or containing the contaminants — is on hold as the state Department of Environmental Protection completes a feasibility study — at the request of Wyeth and O'Brien & Gere — on how to best clean up the property.

"The first Record of Decision (on how to complete remediation) said to first address the impounds, then the soil and then the groundwater contamination," Roland said. "But that was inconsistent with our vision.

We asked for a 'time-out' because we need a comprehensive plan that includes all of those as one and DEP very much agreed with us."

Additionally, noted Roland, different end uses of the site require different remediation standards.

The area is bound by Main Street to the north, the Raritan River to the south, Interstate 287 to the east and the Raritan River to the west. Already parts have been remediated to allow for parking at the ballpark. The former Cyanamid plant sat among 190 acres and about 95 acres is along the river or is considered wetlands. A landfill for stabilized materials, with a capacity for 1 million cubic yards, is 55 acres and the wastewater impounds take up another 95 acres.

The DEP is expected to complete the study later this year. Over the course of the next year, the department along with the Environmental Protection Agency will review the plan, hold public hearings and issue an updated Record of Decisions or a remediation strategy.

An ambitious time table indicates that the cleanup could be complete by 2011 with redevelopment of the site slated to finish in 2012.

The vision plan calls for an 18-hole links style golf course among the former main manufacturing area. A 60 million gallon reservoir could provide the necessary water should the region suffer a drought.

Additionally, Wyeth seeks to create an ecological habitat preservation area along the river and the wetlands. In that area, past the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks, deer frolic about and cranes and egrets soar above the earth blackened by former iron oxide extraction sites.

"We did an ecological inventory some time back," Roland said. "We didn't find any endangered or threatened species, but it's a pretty rich area. We have box turtles, deer, and many species of birds."

To bolster the preservation area, each year on Earth Day, Wyeth and O'Brien & Gere employees take time to build nests and bird houses.

Where the golf course could be now sits a 90,000-square-foot remediation treatment facility. The white, hanger-like enclosure is where employees treat and stabilize contaminated materials.

"We have all the controls in place to rid of contaminants," Roland said. "Air comes in through vents. There are six air changes per hour."

As it is removed from the enclosure, the air goes through a carbon treatment process where contaminants in the atmosphere bind to carbon particles.

Once all the contaminants are clear or treated, the building will be demolished to make way for the golf course that could be run by the county or township.

"Wyeth will always own the site, but we're offering the golf course to the town," said Roland, who noted that construction of this type of course is expected to cost $8 million. "It should generate $1 million net revenue each year."

Dog days of summer may have been few, but there was fun

Labor Day weekend brought rain and cool temperatures. Memorial Day weekend wasn't much different. In between the two, this wasn't a summer of sweltering heat — in fact the only "heat wave" was a short week-long blast of 90-plus degree weather at the beginning of August — but there was sun, there was fun and now, at a time when we say hello to fall, here's a look back at some summertime moments in Somerset County. Vavante Gordon, 14, above left, keeps his cool at Michael Lepp Park in Somerville on July 18. The New Jersey Festival of Ballooning made its yearly visit to Solberg Airport, drawing thousands, including these kids and teens pictured above walking through a hot air balloon on July 29. The blast of summer heat brought out entrepreneurs, Michael Frauenheim, 9, and his sister, Lauren, 11, pictured above right, on Aug. 1 selling iced tea in front of their Somerville home.

Panthers need to jell quickly

BRIDGEWATER — It shouldn't have taken long for Bridgewater-Raritan High to find out where it stands in the Skyland Conference's toughest division.

With the Panthers set to open the season last night against visiting Franklin in a Delaware East Division test, and with division games scheduled for two of the following three weeks, a young and inexperienced team will have to mature quickly if it's to bounce back from last fall's 4-6 campaign.

Tony Maglione, in his third season of his second stint as a head coach in the district, understands the pitfalls Franklin could represent, but as always remains optimistic about the Panthers' chances.

"Franklin is a very big test for us," he said earlier this week. "They always have very good team speed, and they're always dangerous when they have the ball. They're a well-coached team with some quality athletes. It's going to be a great test to see where we're at."

"I always say I'd love to go undefeated and win a state (sectional) championship. You have to start your season thinking that way. We're making progress. We've got a nice mix with some veteran players and some inexperienced kids. We just need to keep working and improving."

"What I like about this group is it's a team. We have great leadership from our four captains, who have been doing a great job. The whole senior class has been great. Injuries will be key. We're not a very deep team. If we were to get a couple of injuries it would mean mass changes. If we stay healthy, especially in the skill positions, we'll be OK."

Maglione will turn the reins of his multiple-set offense over to junior Alonzo Miller, who didn't get much time at quarterback in 2005 but did get a handful of starts as a freshman because of injuries. He'll look to pair of experienced backs to help him carry the load.

Ryan Clifford, a 5-foot-11, 200-pound senior, returns at fullback while classmate Mike Shedlosky (6-0, 195) will start at one of the halfback spots. Shedlosky went into last year as a starter but was injured in the second game and missed the rest of the campaign.

Juniors Devron Dash and Michael Rice have been battling for the other halfback job and both should see extensive action, while senior Ron

BRIDGEWATER-RARITAN FOOTBALL

Lettermen Dave Krajewski and Matt Driscoll will share the split end assignments. Senior Tim Teeling (5-10, 180) will get the start at tight end with classmate Nick D'Alessandro (6-1, 175) also getting time there.

The Panthers return one starter and three lettermen up front with senior James Goodwin (6-2, 195) returning at center. Seniors Jim Stanley (5-10, 205) and Brian Papky (5-10, 210) will start at guards, while senior Walter Seme (5-9, 230) and junior Mark Erickson (6-2, 230) will handle the tackle spots. All but Papky lettered a year ago.

Also expected to see action up front are junior center Matt Fernosky (5-11, 220) and a pair of sophomores, guard James Mirra (6-0, 200) and tackle Joe Grabler (6-1, 200). Junior Robert Pennella, who kicked four field goals last year, will do the place-kicking and Shedlosky will handle the punting.

"Offensively we've been getting better every day, which is key," Maglione said. "We'll be more multiple this year because Alonzo can do more. I like the idea of having a quarterback with escapability."

Defensively, B-R will also utilize multiple looks, although a 4-3 could be its base set. It's a unit without a lot of experience as just two players have any starting experience, and neither is back at the same position.

Clifford moves from outside linebacker to the middle while Shedlosky, who started at safety before he got hurt, is now at outside linebacker. Junior Brian Dolen (5-9, 205) will complete the starting linebacker corps with Umphenour and Willis also getting playing time there.

Senior Matt Sutton (5-11, 205) and Stanley will start at the ends while senior Andrew Pouch (6-2, 250) and Erickson will man the tackle spots with junior Dave Loats (6-2, 220) rotating in as well. Senior Kevin Anderson (5-10, 165) and junior Eric Atanasio (5-9, 170) are the cornerbacks and Driscoll, Krajewski and Miller will share time at safety.

SOMERVILLE-IMMACULATA GIRLS SOCCER

Pioneers expect strong season

With a sturdy cast of proven performers back in the lineup, Michael Kydonieus feels there's no reason why Somerville High's girls soccer squad can't improve on last year's results, which should produce quite a decent season if it happens.

The Pioneers posted an overall 12-5-2 record in 2005, when they advanced to the semifinal round of the Somerset County Tournament and the quarterfinals of the Central Jersey Group 2 playoffs.

"We should be better this year," said Kydonieus, who's taken over as the Pioneers' head coach after assisting Sean Casey the past four years. "We only graduated one starter and have some top-end players who are a year older and more mature. And we've added some younger, quality players as well."

Leading the way for Somerville are senior captains Danielle Lella, Erica Midgley, Mary Holloway and Dana Bradley, all of whom can shift between forward and midfield positions depending on what alignments Kydonieus is implementing at the time.

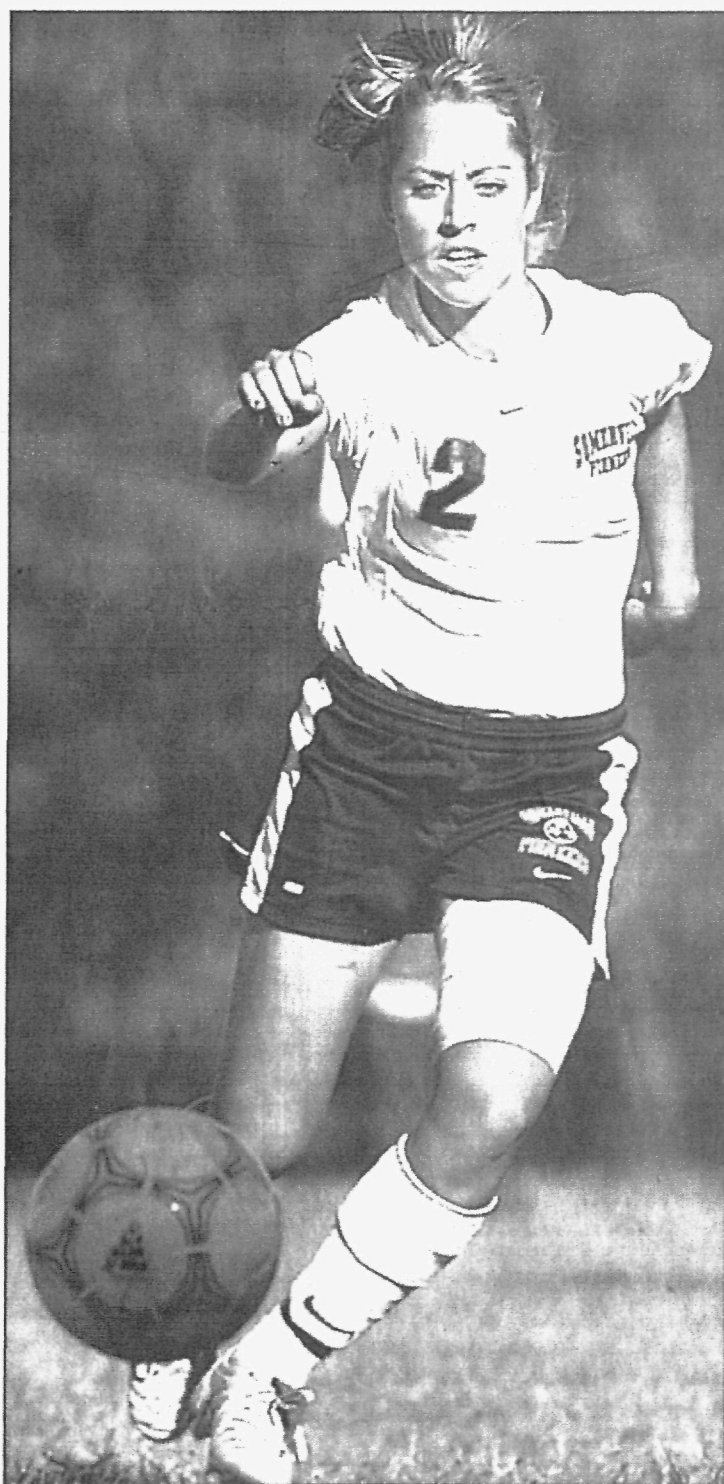

Among the junior standouts back for the Pioneers, who opened their season yesterday at Hackettstown, are Mirando Maniscalco, their top scorer a year ago, along with Tess Harvey, Lindsay Mortellaro and Amanda Johnson.

With Caity Laub opting to concentrate on her basketball skills, sophomore Kara Lazauskas takes over at goalie with Jamie Belardo figuring to fill a reserve role.

"Kara doesn't have a lot of experience," said Kydonieus, "but she brings a high level of intensity to the position and is really into it. She went to three goalie camps this summer."

Others vying for varsity playing time are Amanda Jordan, Kaitlyn Narlis, Jo Spinelli, Laura Juliano, Jeff Kienery, Amanda Reynolds, Shannon Grunwald, Lauren Szabo, Eileen Black, Lindsay Callander, Katie O'Neill, Ashley Lockwood, Erin Delaney, Amanda Petronio, Kaitlin Brenn and Amanda Madden.

"Our goals are to have a better record and to go further in the county and state tournaments," said Kydonieus. "We just want to basically improve on all of our performance aspects as well as maintain a positive attitude, which has never been a problem with this team."

IMMACULATA

A former Spartan star herself, Jen Eickhorst-Reeves feels she's seen some progress in her squad as she begins her third campaign as Immaculata's head coach.

"We're starting to work pretty well together in terms of putting consecutive passes together and getting shots on goal," said Reeves last week, moments after watching the Spartans topple Manville 4-1 in a scrimmage. "Last year was difficult for us and we're still a work in progress, but I think we're starting to jell."

Immaculata, which was 1-13 last fall after winning four times the previous year, got two goals from freshman forward Shauna Mulkerin against Manville and one each from sophomore Kaitlin Barry and senior Jamie DeNizio.

With Reeves employing a new alignment this year, Barry was expected to be the lone forward yesterday when Immaculata went against Montgomery in its opener. Twins Jamie and Cristie DeNizio and classmate Amanda Jones are the starting center midfielders while fellow senior Meghan Natalicchio is an outside middle and sophomore Marie Caruso is an outside halfback.

Leading the backfield contingent are seniors Brittany Monterao and Rachel Sheridan, freshman Brianna Rano and soph Stephanie Whiteley, while senior Kaitlin Schechter is at goalie after missing the 2005 campaign because of an injury.

Confident Panther girls set sights on state title

BRIDGEWATER — One might call Bridgewater-Raritan High's upcoming campaign the season of great expectations.

Considering the Panthers return 19 letter-winners, including starters at eight positions, from a team that finished 19-2-1 and won two titles last fall, their goals should be aimed pretty high.

For Bob Morris, who saw his Panthers capture the Skyland Conference's Delaware East Division and North Jersey Section 2 Group 4 crowns last year while bowing in the Somerset County Tournament and State Group 4 semifinals, his 23rd season as head coach could turn out to be one of his best.

"One of the goals we've put out there is to win everything," he said last week. "It's something we've talked about as a team. The seniors would like to go out leaving their mark. A title of some sort would be the bare minimum. Not winning anything would be a disappointment."

"I think this team is just as good, if not a little better, than last year. This team feels strongly they want to be a champion of something. Whether it's just the league or the county — the big thing of course is state champion. They definitely want to leave with something."

With so many returning players, including 15 seniors, the Panthers will be familiar to everyone but their approach will have a couple of distinct differences.

For the first time under Morris, Bridgewater-Raritan will go with a flat-four defense rather than playing with a sweeper and stopper. Offensively, the Panthers will play with three forwards this season.

"We're going with the flat-four for the first time basically because Lina (Starpoli) and Chelsea (Regan) played it with their club team, and they were confident it would work well for us with the players we have coming back," said Morris. "We implemented it in camp, and we're going to give it a shot."

"If we were going to play a new style this was the year to do it just because of the makeup of the group. You need a close-knit group of players that works well together, and with the 15 seniors we have that. Everybody has bought into it and is excited, so it seemed to be the right thing to do."

"If we're going to play a new style, we know we're going to go through some growing pains we'll have to overcome. We have to play through them and learn from them, and just keep improving if we're going to be successful."

B-R should provide a formidable challenge for anyone this year, no matter their plans, because of its experience and talent throughout the field.

"This is a team that's balanced from front to back," Morris said. "On paper, I can't look at any area and say we're stronger there than in another. We have veteran players, and we're not hiding any of them in any aspect."

At midfield B-R has a pair of senior standouts in third-year starters and four-year lettermen Starpoli and Regan, although Regan is trying to come back from an ankle injury and could miss the first week or two. Last year she paced the Panthers with 20 goals, while Starpoli connected for 10.

Senior letterman Bianca Santulli will open at midfield along with Starpooli while junior Kelsey Vlachos, who started last year when B-R played with four halfbacks, will start until Regan returns.

Senior Jazmine Farrell (10 goals) and junior Jackie Greco are back as starting forwards with senior Noelle Zielinski, who missed last season with a knee injury but lettered as a sophomore, will complete the front three.

In goal, senior Becky Reinhardt and junior Stephanie Miragliotta will start the season splitting time, as they did much of last season.

Defensively, senior Liz O'Rourke and junior Lindsey DiOrio return to starting assignments and will play in the middle. Two letter-winners at each outside slot — senior Kelly Thomas and junior Samantha Andrea on the right and seniors Kelly Golej and Kate Miller on the left — entered the week vying for the starting jobs.

Coming off the bench at fullback will be seniors Robin Doane, who missed the last two years after lettering as a freshman, Beth Monahan and Jackie Trombley and soph Jen McCallen.

At midfield, senior lettermen Christel Sacco and Melissa Sprockle along with freshman Gabriella Guzman will get playing time. Junior Pam Masin, soph Jessica Derrico and freshman Kimberly Dahl will see action at forward.

Patriots stay in playoff hunt

Catcher Jim Buckley's ninth-inning double sent in the deciding run Monday night when the Somerset Patriots claimed a 4-3 victory over Long Island in an Atlantic League of Professional Baseball contest in front of 6313 fans at Citibank Park in Central Islip, N.Y.

The victory capped a sweep of the three-game series for the Patriots, who improved their second-half season record to 22-24 and pulled to within three games of South Division leader Lancaster as they continue to battle for a post-season playoff spot.

Somerset is home at Bridgewater's Commerce Bank Park 7:05 tonight against Long Island and again faces the Ducks 1:35 p.m. tomorrow before hitting the road again.

The Ducks (21-23) had scored three times off starting pitcher Ben Crockett in the third and took a 3-2 lead into the eighth, when Somerset pulled even on Henri Stanley's RBI double to left-center. Reliever Todd Moser, forced to bat because of the Pats' roster shortage, had doubled with one out before being tagged out on Pat Boran's grounder. But Boran then was able to score on Stanley's two-bagger.

In the ninth Larry Barnes led off by dragging a bunt single to the right side but was soon erased when Travis Anderson grounded into a double play. Jim Burt then reached on an error by the third baseman and scored when Buckley smacked an 0-2 pitch for a double to deep right.

Stanley's fourth home run of the year in the opening inning had given the visitors a quick lead and they added another run in the fourth on successive two-out doubles by Anderson and Burt.

Crockett went six innings, allowing six hits and three walks while striking out seven batters. Moser, winner Saul Solveson (4-4) and Hector Almonte (12th save) finished up with a scoreless inning apiece.

Patriots 5, Long Island 4 — Leadoff man Boran went 4 for 5, including his first homer of the year, and had one of the Pats' season-high five stolen bases Sunday night in front of 6571 fans. Long Island also exceeded the 3-million milestone in attendance since Citibank Park opened in April 2000.

Neville Smith

BOUND BROOK — Dr. Neville V. Smith, 64, died Aug. 18, 2006 at his home in California surrounded by his family. Although his illness was acute and his decline rapid, he died peacefully.

Dr. Smith was a well-known experimental physicist. His work earned him the prestigious Davisson-Gerner prize in 1991 and the Alexander von Humboldt Fellowship more recently. More importantly, his work gained him the respect and friendship of esteemed colleagues in the international scientific community.

Born in England, the son of Horace and Ethel Smith, he came to the United States in 1966 to do his postdoctorate at Stanford University under Bill

Spicer. Dr. Smith completed his degrees at Queens' College, Cambridge, England. He lived in New Jersey for 25 years where he worked at AT&T Bell Labs. During that time he received the Distinguished Service Award and served as research head for three years. For 14 years he and his wife, Betsy, lived in Bound Brook, where they raised their two daughters, Kaci and Libby. Dr. Smith was an active member of the community there. He was a founding member of Citizens United for Education, a group that attended every Board of Education meeting to safeguard the interests of the children in the town's public school system. He was the silent author of a series of satiric stories featuring characters based on members of the small town's educational community. During his time in Bound Brook, he also served on the Twin Boro Scholarship Committee, a post he enjoyed very much.

In 1994 he moved to Berkeley, Calif., and began working as the scientific director for the Advanced Light Source at the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory. He enjoyed working there and valued the new friendships he made. He also stood on advisory committees for similar facilities around the world. He was currently collaborating on a paper with a colleague from Kiel, Germany, and he was very excited about it.

Dr. Smith was an avid reader and passed his love of books on to both of his daughters. They could look forward to receiving a pile of books he had chosen for them at Christmas and birthdays. He loved to garden and do crossword puzzles, and was known for his quirky sense of humor. For 32 years he designed and block printed the family's original holiday greeting cards. At the time of his death he was setting up an art studio with Kaci for them to use together upon his retirement. In addition to his wife and daughters, surviving are a daughter-in-law, Arin; and a sister, Kathleen. Celebrations of his life will be held in California in October; in England in April and in New Jersey in August. Local arrangements are by the Hagan-Chamberlain Funeral Home.

A Gold Mine in Bedroom Drawers

Newsire: People are selling their old scrap gold that is gathering dust for its cash value because gold prices are so high. With the price of gold at a 25 year high (over $650.00 per ounce), it makes sense. ScrapGold.com, a gold recycler, offers free insured recycle kits so people may cash in their scrap with 24 hour service and guarantee satisfaction. They accept broken and outdated items like chains, charms, rings and more. "Everyone has bits of gold just lying around which can be turned into cash" says Richard Zakroff, VP of marketing. "Even old dental gold has value." ScrapGold.com processes over 10,000 recycle Kits per month. People can get a free GoldKit at 1-800-283-4700 or ScrapGold.com.
