He sees the forest, the trees, and lots of shapes in between RARITAN — Tell Gualberto Malave that the world is round and he would have to agree, but on a different level. Because he sees circular patterns in nearly everything he looks at, and inside his shop next to his Leland Street home he brings those shapes into focus.

"Everything I see is round," said Malave, who has developed a passion for a dying art form known as woodturning. The 55-year-old former carpenter readily admits he has been "bitten by the wood turner's bug."

"I don't want to do cabinetry. I don't want to do anything but turning," he said, adding he's been at it for about four and a half years now.

Woodturning, which dates back to the ancient Egyptians and has experienced a kind of renaissance as of late, involves sculpting a block of wood with various carving tools as it spins rapidly on an electric powered lathe.

Visitors to the Bernardsville Public Library last month were treated to a display of some of Malave's work, including a miniature goblet and a huge oyster-like creation.

Malave was first introduced to the art back in high school woodworking class, where his teachers recognized his natural abilities and encouraged him to keep at it.

He said his life seemed to come "full circle" in 2002 when he attended a woodturning show and was awestruck by the beauty of one piece of work he saw.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY

Tax rate drops for 14th year

The Middlesex County Board of Chosen Freeholders has unveiled a $370.65 million budget proposal that reduces the equalized property tax rate for the 14th straight year.

"Given the ongoing plight of property taxpayers throughout New Jersey and the need for meaningful property tax reform at the state level, this proposed county budget includes only essential expenditures and reflects only those cost increases over which the county government has little or no control," said Freeholder Director David B. Crabiel.

The budget was formally introduced on Jan. 18. A public hearing is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 15 in the freeholders' meeting room at the County Administration Building, New Brunswick.

The draft budget unveiled Jan. 11 includes a net tax levy of $259,215,000. The tax levy is the amount to be raised through taxes.

According to Crabiel, the 2007 proposed spending plan reflects the elimination of 35 county positions through attrition in 2006 and large increases in expenses for 2007.

He is chairman of the county Administration and Finance Committee as well as director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Crabiel said the county must account for large increases in debt service, food and medical costs for inmates, pension costs, health benefit costs and electricity, plus Election Board costs resulting from the Help America Vote Act. The increases total $15,695,207.

The county also included increased support for the Middlesex County Vocational and Technical Schools and Middlesex County College.

Despite the increases the county anticipates a slight reduction, about eight-tenths of 1 cent on every $100 of equalized assessed value, in the equalized property tax rate. That number assumes the same rate of growth in 2007 as

County's homeless counted

By ALLISON ELYSE GUALTIERI

Tom O'Leary had a crowd on his hands. The director of the Samaritan Homeless Interim Program in Somerville had put the word out to his clients to be there last Thursday, so they could be surveyed by volunteers from the county for the state's annual count as well as to get information about essential services.

Over the course of the day, more than 100 people passed through the homeless advocacy organization's doors, as volunteers took down their information for the county and gave out housing vouchers, blankets, clothes, and food.

The annual statewide "Point in Time" survey, run by each of the counties, attempts to gauge the number of homeless in the area. While volunteers fanned out across the county from morning to night, hitting the streets to compile answers to the six-question survey, SHIP and other agencies were helping count in other ways.

Theresa Neidich, from the county office of Community Development, had surveyed 10 people by 10 a.m., and had taken over O'Leary's office to conduct a survey.

"The reason we're doing this is that, the more people we survey, the more money we receive and the more services we can provide," she explained to her interviewee, a man who had been in the Air Force, who was one of 52 people surveyed at SHIP.

He answered her questions, including one about being in foster care — "Yes, I had a terrible time with that," he said — and then headed downstairs for hot coffee, doughnuts, food and clothing.

SHIP was not the only agency to pitch in with the annual count. Six other agencies, including Somerset Home for Temporarily Displaced Children and the Interfaith Hospitality Network of Somerset County, helped by counting their clients in addition to those counted on the street by the county's volunteers.

Jeffery Fetzko, executive director of Somerset Home, said that while the children his organization served aren't the people typically brought to mind by the term "homeless," they are a part of the population.

"We call the kids that we work with homeless, because they don't have a viable home to go to. They defy the sort of typical thing you think of when you hear 'homeless kids.' Many of these kids may have been orphaned, and living in group homes, foster homes, and residential centers," he said.

Somerset Home, which has 36 beds for children in crisis or in transition from the foster system, has been participating in the survey for years.

"What homelessness means to a suburban and affluent county like SC is different from what it means in other counties," he said. "They just don't fit the definition that most people have in their heads of the term homeless."

Renee Farrell, of the Interfaith Hospitality Network of Somerset County, a shelter organization, said that most of her clients counted in the survey are not "typically homeless" either.

"We have, certainly, people who are the traditional homeless, but the majority of my clients are employed. I have a client now who works two jobs and has four kids," she said, adding that homeless who are "working poor" are becoming more and more common.

Farrell said her organization submitted paperwork to the count for the clients that were in their programs last Thursday.

"It's very, very important, especially for an affluent county like Somerset, because it puts a spotlight on the fact that there is the population in the county," she said.

According to Kimberly Cowart, director of community development for the county, numbers from the survey will be available in March.

"We don't have a very large homeless population, but it is significant enough that we participate in the count," she said.

RVCC tuition going up $3 per credit

By ALLISON ELYSE GUALTIERI

NORTH BRANCH — The Raritan Valley Community College board of trustees passed a $42 million budget that includes a $3-per-credit tuition hike for the college's students Tuesday night, but college officials will attempt to make $250,000 of cuts to the budget before it goes to the bi-county board of school estimate for final approval Feb. 16.

Part of that uncertainty is due to state budget figures. Tuition, which has risen $27 since 1999, rose $6 per credit last year in the wake of a state budget reduction of $300,000 to the college. When last year's budget was voted on by the trustees, tuition was only expected to rise by $3 to $81 per credit for students.

In addition to an increase in tuition this year, the registration fee would also rise to $22, an increase of $1 over last year.

"State aid could very well be reduced," said John Trojan, vice president for finance and facilities. "We will come up with identifying areas (to cut), but they may not be ones they like."

Trojan would not speculate on what would happen to the expected rise in tuition figures if cuts are made to the budget, but said that the college would still be about fifth or sixth in terms of cost per credit among the state's 19 community colleges.

The $42 million budget, up $2 million from 2006, contains a 5.2 percent spending increase. The board also approved a $5.3 million major capital budget and a $850,000 minor capital budget Tuesday night.

The proposed increase in tuition and fees as a way to ensure that, unlike last year, the college will not have to raise tuition more than expected once the state budget figures are in.

While the number of full-and part-time students has not increased over last year, the number of full-time students has increased 10 percent over the last three years, while the number of part-time students has dropped by 8 percent over the same time period, mirroring a nationwide trend. The number of corporate and continuing education students was not available by press time.

The amount the college is requesting from the counties will increase by 4 percent again this year. Somerset and Hunterdon counties provide just under a third of the college's operating costs.

Tax rate drops for 14th year

was experienced in 2006.

The budget proposal also reflects a small increase in the county's retained surplus to help maintain its existing AAA bond rating from Standard & Poor's and the Aa1 rating from Moody's Investors Services.

"While the proposed budget eliminates any frills and nice-to-have items, it does not eliminate any county service or reduce the level of county services in general," Crabiel said. "In a number of areas, including but not limited to land management, recreation and transportation, county services have been expanded."

ladies hat. It was a beach hat," he said matter-of-factly.

Noticing his enthusiasm, the Plainfield-based New Jersey Woodturners group, a chapter of the American Association of Woodturners, asked him to join.

That wooden hat, and invite, seemed to come at just the right time for Malave, a Marine Vietnam War veteran who was out of work after being diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder in 1999 and needed something to pass the time.

Malave would go on to study under renowned woodworker Mark Siirri at Bucks County Community College in Pennsylvania and attend numerous woodturning workshops, including one where he learned the connection between woodturning and the martial art Tai Chi Chuan, of which Malave is a master. "The body movements are similar," he said. "You keep stable shoulder width. You become one with the tool. The shifting of the weight. It's all about circular movement."

Over the years Malave has pulled boxes, earns, a guitar, pens and baseball bats out of the stumps of wood he keeps piled behind his shop.

"A baseball bat, as simple as the shape is, is very hard to make, because of the subtle 'S' shape that runs along it," he said.

"I tend to use wood that is natural to this area — cherry, oak, ash," he said. "And 'road kill,' meaning free wood Jersey people tend to throw away."

Malave has entered a number of woodturning competitions with his creations, but hasn't won any yet.

"But I've sold pieces, and that's better than a ribbon," he said. Some of his work goes for as much as $300.

And relatives know what to expect from Malave come the holidays.

The front door window was found broken Jan. 27 on a building on Stetson Road. Police were told the vandalism occurred overnight.

Four tires and four wheels were stolen overnight Jan. 16 from a parked car on Bowler Court. Police said the tires and wheels are valued at $1,200.

A motor vehicle, year and make not given, was stolen overnight Jan. 16 from a house on Vasser Drive.

A Hewlett Packard computer, a Samsung cell phone and a Palm Pilot were stolen Jan. 16 from a parked car on Stetson Road.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD
A man was rescued Jan. 28 from a car that went into a drainage ditch near Coolidge Street.

Darryl Quinio, 27, of Piscataway was found inside a 1994 Buick Regal partially submerged in 18 inches of water. He was pulled out of the car by the South Plainfield Volunteer Fire Department and treated by medics from Mercy 6 at Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center.

Quinio was admitted to Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital in New Brunswick with serious head and neck injuries.

The Buick may have gone off the road about 3-4 hours before a bicyclist saw it in the ditch and alerted police around 11:44 a.m., according to a release about the accident.

Quinio was driving northbound on Coolidge Street when the Buick drifted into the woods, sideswiped a tree and went flying through the air across the 15-foot-wide ditch. The car hit another tree, rolled over and landed on its roof in the water, according to the release.

Anyone with additional information on the accident is asked to contact Lt. Kevin Murtagh at (908) 226-7679.

South Plainfield Middle School on Plainfield Avenue was searched Jan. 19 amid a report of a gun.

The incident was the first in the school's history, according to a release from South Plainfield police about the incident.

Police were summoned around 2:30 p.m. after Principal Steve Novak noticed the gun in a student's locker as he was walking by. The gun turned out to be a replica, police said, but it was not immediately known where the gun came from or why it was brought to school.

Pierre Viglianti, left, with his son, Pete Viglianti, in Pro Tour Cycles, which recently relocated from Westfield to Watchung. "It's about working with families and groups of people and getting them enthused to ride," Pete said of the bicycle shop.

Bike shop owner races back into business

Pro Tour Cycles gaining momentum after relocating to Rt. 22 in Watchung WATCHUNG — All that was left was a "We're moving sign" on the door locked shut December 2005 when Pete Viglianti closed his bike shop for the final time in Westfield.

"We were so caught up in the move, I didn't even have a chance to take an ad out in the paper explaining what happened," said Viglianti, sympathizing with the customers who may have felt left behind.

That ending was a new beginning for the 32-year business owner who relocated his store to Watchung for financial reasons.

"The building got sold and the price of rent went up from $1,600 to $4,500."

Like many other small business owners in Westfield, Viglianti, 51, who opened his store in 1974, one year out of high school, with his father Pierre, could no longer afford the steep prices to keep his bike shop in business.

"I didn't want to leave, but I couldn't afford it," Viglianti said.

Although Viglianti never wanted this to happen, he knew it was inevitable. According to Viglianti, small businesses are getting pushed out of Westfield and getting taken over by chain stores. So, Viglianti prepared himself for the worst.

He would often travel to Watchung to buy flowers and Christmas trees from Grey's Florist, all the while building a relationship with the family.

"I would always say (to the florist owner) when the chains come in I'm gonna go under."

And when Viglianti finally did go out of business in Westfield, the open space behind Grey's Florist seemed like a great opportunity.

"We were renovating from January to April," he said.

The store finally opened in March and the restorations have paid dividends.

Pro Tour Cycles, located on Route 22 East, has an ample amount of floor space, making it easy for customers to walk around. The new shop even boasts a full repair department for any make or model bike.

Since business is slower four months out of the year because of the cold weather, Viglianti is trying to be innovative in what his store offers.

"We are trying to start a spin class during the winter months," he said. The idea came from a device called a trainer that rests on the back axle of the bike and allows the back wheel to spin stationary so bike enthusiasts can train during the winter, indoors.

During the summer months, the warm, sunny weather is much more inviting.

"On Saturdays and Sundays we have a 25-mile ride," which starts at 8 a.m. and leaves from the store front, Viglianti said.

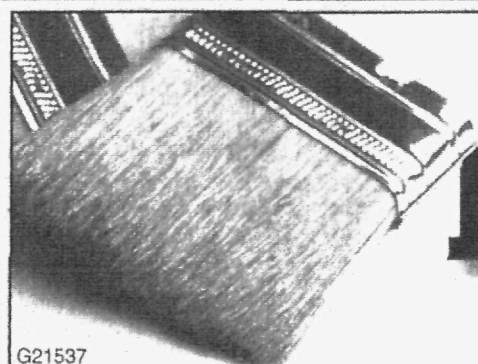

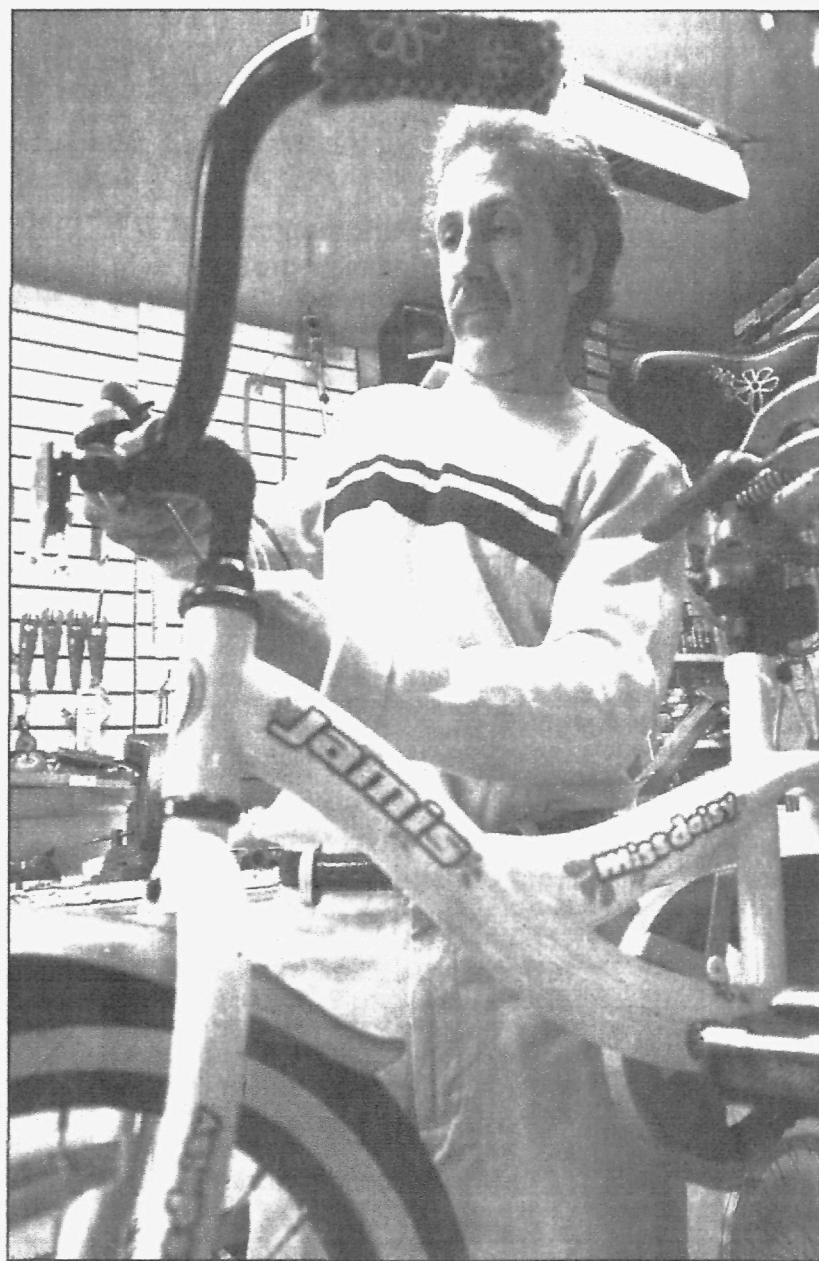

All throughout the year Pro Tour Cycles carries five or six different brands of bikes and many different types of accessories.

"One of the most popular bikes is the hybrid," said Viglianti, who described it as a cross between a mountain bike and a road-racing bike.

Since moving from Westfield to Watchung, Viglianti has relied on word of mouth to gain more customers, but he remains faithful to his longtime customers from the original store.

"I didn't want my clientele to think I just left them, but I had to do what I had to do," Viglianti said.

Still, his enjoyment in his work remains the same. "It's about working with families and groups of people and getting them enthused to ride," he said.

Panthers hold on, take over first place

By ALLAN CONOVER
Sports Editor

BRIDGEWATER — With 15 points separating the teams with six minutes to go, it was time to hit the panic button. Apparently, for both sides.

"A deer in headlights," said Bridgewater-Raritan High Head Coach Tim Ortelli, describing the way his Panthers reacted to Immaculata's furious down-the-stretch charge Tuesday night.

It's just that this deer wasn't crushed by an oncoming 18-wheeler, although that's exactly what Immaculata must have looked like. Bridgewater-Raritan, which sank a grand total of one basket during the game's final seven minutes, pulled out a 62-59 triumph to extend its winning streak to 16 games and assume sole possession of the top spot in the Skyland Conference-Delaware East Division standings.

As sharp as the Panthers (16-1 overall, 7-1 in the division) looked during the third quarter, when they shot 9 for 10 from the floor, their performance radically unraveled after the opening moments of the final period.

Jared Rothbard's two free throws staked B-R to a quite comfortable — apparently too comfortable — 57-42 lead with 6:10 remaining but that's when the Spartans (13-3, 6-2) decided enough was enough.

Helped by five B-R turnovers and two shots that missed from three-point range, Immaculata went on a frenzied 17-2 tear, with 10 of the points coming from reserve guard Gamal Mohammad, to pull even at 59-all with 1:31 to go. But Keith Woung-Fallon's foul shot with 4.3 seconds left and two more by James McNally a second later gave the home team its fourth straight victory over Immaculata in the past two seasons.

"We played our best 10 minutes of basketball of the year, by far," said Ortelli, "and then we were playing not to lose. But Immaculata had something to do with that. They were desperate, they played desperate and we were very fortunate to pull it out."

"I knew they're tough and they were going to fight back," said Woung-Fallon, who totaled 11 points. "We panicked and maybe showed some fatigue. We all got tired a little bit and kind of fell apart with the pressure. Maybe we needed to slow down more."

Immaculata Head Coach Mike Frauenheim felt his Spartans let the game get away from them at the outset of the third period, when their man-to-man defense was carved up by the Panthers, both from the perimeter and the inside.

"We came out for the second half flat-footed," said

Frauenheim, whose club wasn't at all helped by the fact that high-scoring forward Jeff Cullinan and Tim Sanderson got into first-half foul trouble and spent plenty of time on the bench. "We talked to them about coming out with some energy and playing intense defense, and we came in like we were satisfied being up three at halftime."

"Bridgewater may have missed only one shot [in the third quarter] but we didn't make them miss, either. We were a step slow coming out after halftime and that's been a bugaboo of ours the whole year. As much as I'm proud of them for coming back the way they did, I'm also disappointed that they gave up five minutes of the game and that's what cost us the game. Until this team learns to play 32 minutes, there are no championships on our horizon."

McNally, a 6-foot-6 senior, led B-R with 21 points, including the Panthers' only two buckets during the final quarter off feeds from Dave Pilla and Woung-Fallon.

Immaculata senior Brian Kerwin scored 14 of his team-high 20 points in the first half and Mohammad, a transfer who didn't play in the first B-R game three weeks earlier because he wasn't yet eligible, finished with 19, all during the last three periods. Both guards gave B-R's man-to-man defense fits.

"Mohammad has a little bit of shake-and-bake going," said Ortelli, "and he obviously makes them a better offensive team."

Mohammad hit three straight driving shots in a 1:21 stretch which tied the game at 59 and the Spartans gained possession again after McNally missed a one-and-one with 0:57 to go.

Cullinan then missed two shots and teammate Jason Cimino got the second rebound but his pass in the lane was picked off by McNally, who fired the ball to a breaking Woung-Fallon. He was fouled going in for a layup with 4.3 seconds remaining.

He missed the first free throw but the second one dropped off the rim and went through, and B-R retained possession because Immaculata had been whistled for a deliberate foul on the play. McNally, fouled while taking the in-bounds pass, canned both free throws for a 62-59 cushion and Cimino's lengthy heave at the buzzer was short.

Panthers coast to another title

By ALLAN CONOVER
Sports Editor

BRIDGEWATER — Two full months into the season, there still seemed to be a lot of talk about last year's Bridgewater-Raritan High team. Specifically, about what those Panthers could do compared to what these Panthers couldn't.

Well, this winter's edition went out Jan. 26 and did something last year's squad couldn't do — win the Somerset County Meet by a 65-point margin over its closest challenger.

John Benigno, Kevin Gallagher and Josh Gonzalez led the Panthers to some superb accomplishments one season ago as seniors, including wrestling the county title away from Hillsborough by a 53-point difference while setting three meet records. B-R was the favorite again this time around but the likes of Hillsborough and Pingry were expected to make things much more difficult for the Panthers.

"You can never replace those three seniors we had last year," said B-R senior Andrew Frank, "and I think a lot of people were doubting how good we really are. We wanted to go in and show them how much talent and heart we have, and we do have guys with so much heart."

"That's what it takes to win. All that heart — you just can't describe that in words."

But results will do, and they looked pretty impressive last Friday at the Somerset Valley YMCA. The Panthers, who collectively bleached their hair for the occasion, took first place in six of the 11 races while piling up 291 points to easily outdistance runnerup Hillsborough (226) for B-R's 10th county championship in the last 11 years.

Frank, a co-captain with Kevin McCallen, won the 500-meter freestyle for the fourth straight year, also took the 100 backstroke and was on a pair of first-place relay foursomes.

SOMERSET COUNTY BOYS SWIM MEET

Classmates Mike Randall (50 free) and Josh Klitenick (200 individual medley) also claimed gold medals.

It was a dominant showing by the depth-laden Panthers, who had finishes of first and third in the 50 free and backstroke and second and fourth in the 100 breaststroke.

"It was a bit more one-sided than I thought it was going to be," conceded B-R Head Coach Sean Foley Saturday afternoon. "It wasn't what I expected but, as I've said all along, a lot of people have underestimated us this year, saying we lost too much to graduation. But the guys have stepped up and gave us some amazing swims last night."

That started with the initial event — the 200 medley relay — with Frank, Randall, Klitenick and Frank Cuzzola blazing to a 1:51.56 triumph, better than five seconds ahead of second-place Pingry.

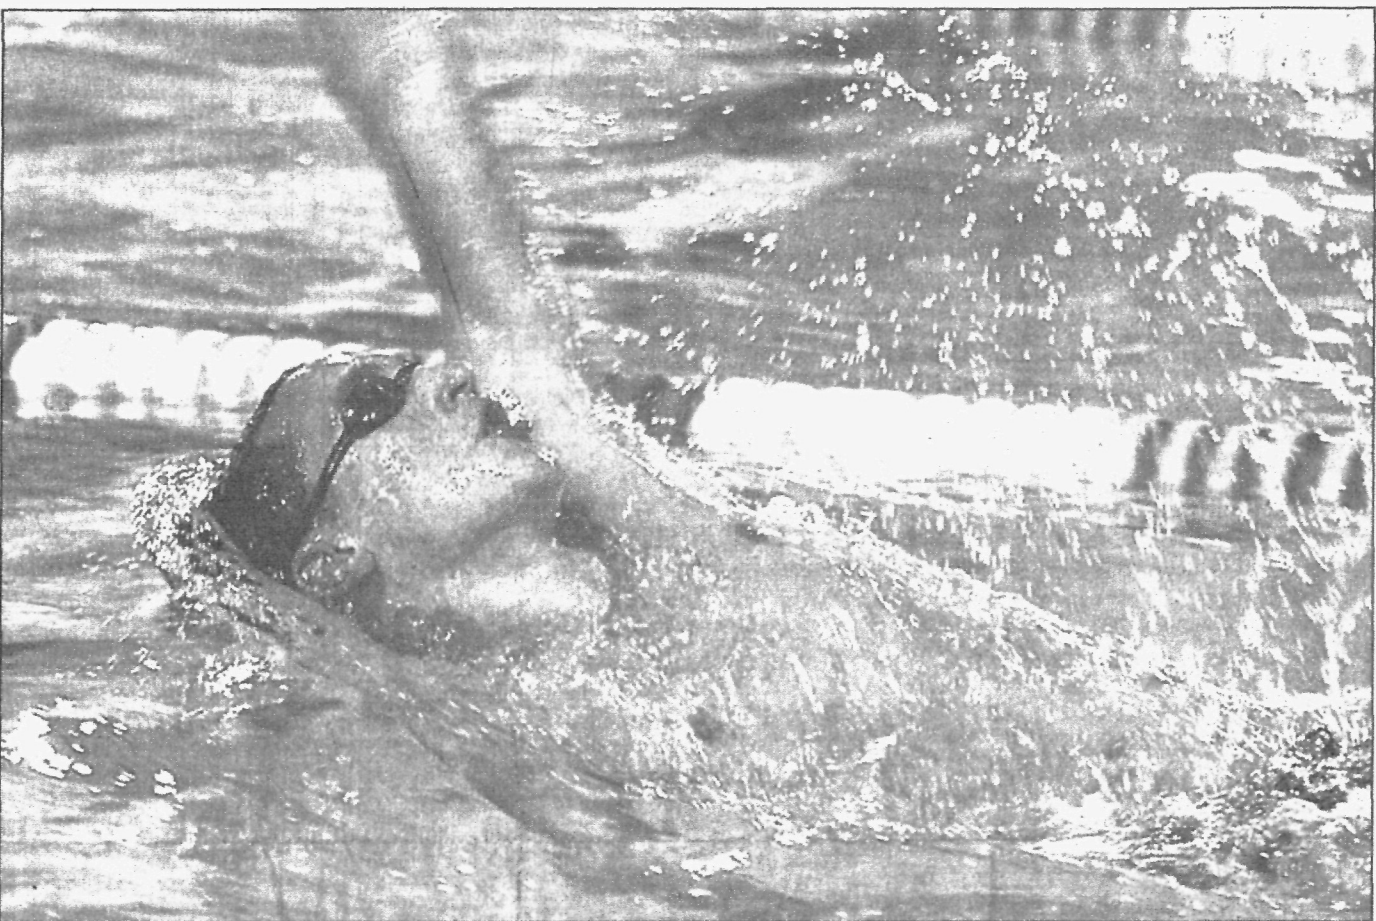

"That just got us going and sent the energy level straight up," said Frank. "Everyone was just swimming out of their minds after that."

The most stirring performance was delivered by Klitenick, who captured his first county championship with a remarkable rally in the IM.

He was a full four body-lengths behind Hillsborough's Robert Webb during the breaststroke leg but gradually closed the gap and, at the turn on the closing freestyle portion, had cut the deficit in half. He pulled even with Webb with 10 meters to go and passed him in another five, finally winning in 2:18.57 while Webb finished in 2:18.79.

"Josh swam with his heart — that's exactly what that was," said Frank.

"That race might've been the biggest shock," added Foley.

GEORGE PACCIOLLO/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Bridgewater-Raritan High senior Andrew Frank won the 100-meter backstroke and 500 freestyle and also was on a pair of first-place relay teams, helping the Panthers capture their second straight Somerset County Meet championship by a 291-226 difference over Hillsborough.

"We really didn't have anyone in the IM and people made some moves, and I think Hillsborough might've thought Webb was going to do it. But Josh put on an unbelievable swim. That was big — it was very unexpected for us."

Randall, in fact, pointed out Klitenick's showing provided him with a huge emotional boost for the next event — the 50 free.

Randall, the No. 4 seed, secured his first county crown by taking the race in 24.99 seconds, just touching out Hillsborough's Pat Kuehne and Cuzzola.

"I fed off the energy after what Josh did," said Randall. "That got me pumped up and I just wanted to take it out hard and win. I was fast in warm-ups, so I felt good going into the race. At the turn I saw Frank (Cuzzola) and I was ahead of him, but I didn't know how fast he was going."

And only a record-setting

1:08.39 effort by Kuehne prevented Randall (1:08.91) from winning the breaststroke.

Frank, meanwhile, easily took another 500 free in 5:21.78 while Pingry's John Guiffre was next (5:25.22). He was on call again for the next event, coming through with a 24.11 anchor split as the Panthers won the 200 free relay in 1:40.21. Moments later he was in the water again for the backstroke, edging Montgomery's Drew Talarick with a 1:01.24 showing.

Another area champion was Immaculata junior Mike Vernoia, a Hillsborough resident whose furious closing surge gave him first place in the 200 free and also was a close second in the 100 free.

Vernoia, who competes at the Somerset Valley-Bridgewater YMCA with many of the B-R High standouts, trailed Hillsborough's Tim Rauch and Talarick in the 200 before a huge effort during the final 30 meters carried him to a 1:58.51 victory. He's the first county champ from Immaculata, which has no swim program, since Dan Thomas took the 100 back in 1991 and only the school's fourth in history.

Strong finish gives Panthers crucial victory

By DAVE ALLENA
Staff Writer

BRIDGEWATER — Receiving big bonus points from some unexpected sources, Bridgewater-Raritan High put itself in position for another title Monday.

Already with the Somerset County Tournament crown to their credit, the Panthers moved to within a victory over first-year Montgomery (last night's match) of claiming their second Skyland Conference-Delaware East Division championship in three years by handling Watchung Hills 41-23 in a showdown for the division lead.

Trailing 23-14 with six bouts remaining, B-R closed out the clash by winning all six as Andrew Conkin jump-started the rally with a 49-second fall at 125 pounds, while Eric Willis followed by pinning his opponent in 3:15 to give the Panthers their first lead of the night.

"Sometimes some of your better kids don't have their best matches, and you need others to step up," B-R Head Coach Greg Evans said. "The kids that won it for us tonight were Cody Hresan, Andrew Conkin and Eric Willis."

"When you look at our lineup those aren't the kids you expect to get bonus points from. We were hoping to win at 125 and 130 but we didn't expect to get pins from them. Once we got the second one, we felt pretty comfortable."

Watchung Hills built an early 15-0 lead as 160-pounder Brendan Ard opened with a 3:22 fall and Robert Scriffiano followed by decking his man at 171. Chris Smith then stunned county champion Andrew Hampton 8-6 in overtime to continue the Warriors' early run.

"I was impressed with the way our kids went after it," said WHHS Head Coach Danny Smith. "They showed a lot of heart, which is something that had been lacking. No matter how we drew it up there was no way we were going to win unless we had four or five big upsets. We got a couple, but they weren't enough."

For Dragon, it was another milestone as he registered his 100th career pin to cap a busy three-day stretch.

Saturday he won three times, and Sunday he competed for the third year in the New Jersey Coaches All-Star Invitational. Facing defending state heavyweight champion Zach Rey of Hopatcong, Dragon lost for the first time in a 3-0 setback.

"The 100 pins is a nice milestone, but it's not the main goal," Dragon said. "It's not something I've thought about. It's more of trying to get six (points) for my team. My style is to go out and pin."

Hresan then took the 103 bout with two big flurries, starting with an 8-0 surge and then finishing with 10 points in the final minute of the second period, including a reversal and two-point near-fall in the final five seconds. That gave him a 20-4 technical fall.

WHHS regained some breathing rooms on consecutive major decisions as Tommy Ross won 9-0 at 112 and Chris Valerio claimed an 8-0 verdict for the Warriors' 23-14 advantage, but those proved to be their final victories.

Conkin, moving from 119 to 125, made the coaching staff look brilliant with a pancake that produced his quick fall, and Willis followed by using a headlock 45 seconds into the second period to end a bout that had been 2-2 moments earlier.

"I knew I had to come out with a win but I knew we needed a pin so I went for it and got it," Conkin said. "I felt a little pressure going out there, but I knew I had to step up."

"I definitely fed off Andrew's pin," Willis said. "That was a big momentum boost for the team. I tried to stay away from (my opponent) in the first period, but that's my move. I felt I had him, and I caught him."

With four county champions following Willis, B-R had control and didn't surrender it. Adam Friedman, Danny Liss and Tyler Riccio won decisions and Wayne Hampton (152) closed it out with a 1:33 fall.

Both teams qualified for the North Jersey Section 2 Group 4 tournament. WHHS, seeded fourth, will face Edison in Tuesday's quarterfinals at Phillipsburg with the winner to face top-rated P'Burg in the semis later that night.

B-R, seeded second, will be home Tuesday and goes against the winner of the North Hunterdon-Perth Amboy match which will be contested earlier in the evening.

Nurse is tops at medical center

SOMERVILLE — Registered Nurse Maureen A. Schneider, who has served as vice president of patient care services and chief nursing officer of Somerset Medical Center since June 2005, has been promoted to chief operating officer/chief nursing officer. Schneider brings more than 25 years of executive healthcare leadership experience to this new position. In her role, she oversees the medical center's nursing staff, laboratory, pharmacy, radiology department, behavioral health program, surgical services and rehabilitation services.

"Maureen has been instrumental in building Somerset Medical Center's reputation for quality medical care and service excellence," said Ken Bateman, president and chief executive officer of Somerset Medical Center. "Her leadership and expertise will be invaluable as we work on developing a strategic plan for the medical center's future that will ensure that we continue to meet the evolving healthcare needs of our community."

Schneider began her career at the New York Hospital, Cornell Medical Center, where she held several leadership positions including director of nursing during her more than 17 years of service. She served as the corporate vice president of patient care services and chief nursing officer at Cathedral Health Care System for both St. Michael's Hospital and St. James Hospital. From there, Schneider held the position of vice president of patient care services and chief nursing officer at Community Medical Center in Toms River, part of the St. Barnabas Health Care System and most recently she was the vice president of patient care services and chief nursing executive at Nyack Hospital in New York, part of the New York Presbyterian Health Care System. Schneider has also served as a consultant, adjunct professor and board member to several healthcare and education organizations.

Schneider was awarded the prestigious American Nurses Association Magnet Recognition Award for Nursing Excellence in 2003. In 2002, she served as the first nurse executive appointed to the board of trustees for the New Jersey Hospital Association. She also serves on the board of directors for the New Jersey Organization of Nurse Executives and was the recipient of the New Jersey State Nurses Association Award for Nurse Administrator in 2003.
