Directory available

Natural and manmade catastrophes can strike quickly, with little or no warning and with devastating results. Whether is disaster is a natural occurrence, such as Hurricane Katrina, or a manmade catastrophe, such as the events of Sept. 11, 2001, history has shown us that the first response to a calamity is absolutely vital.

The First Responders Directory, created by the Rutgers Citizenship and Service Education Initiative and the Allstate Foundation, was designed to augment the communications resources of Garden State law enforcement and public safety community, the first responders to any natural or manmade disaster. The pocket-size booklets serve as a statewide database of all first responder units in New Jersey. The initiative, based on the New Brunswick campus of Rutgers University, is distributing the First Responders Directory. The booklets were provided to the New Jersey Office of Emergency Management, which in turn distributed the directories at training for FEMA professional development certification.

These booklets are also being provided to the Conference Campus Community Partnerships at Montclair State University; the Linda Rivera Learn and Serve — Youth Organized for Disaster Preparedness program; and emergency management offices in Middlesex County. The database can be accessed at frd.case.rutgers.edu.

Fresh look brings fresh start

Makeover continues at The Bernards Inn

By AMY S. BOBROWSKI
Staff Writer

BERNARDSVILLE — The floor boards still creak and the hallway floor is still slanted, but with the renovation The Bernards Inn, most of the rest of the structure has been or will be refreshed as part of an ongoing renovation project.

The Inn, circa 1907, was purchased by Hampshire Real Estate Companies last April and its award winning restaurant, lobby area, banquet facilities and 20 guest rooms are receiving a facelift. Meanwhile, the inn and its restaurant remain open and ready to serve visitors and hungry patrons.

"We feel like this is a big mansion," said owner Harold Imperatore. "The lobby, we call our front hall. The bar is the library and a dining area is the conservatory. We treat this like a home that people want to return to."

Work on the multi-phased renovation and restoration project started in May, with the lobby, conservatory, library and the much of the exterior already completed.

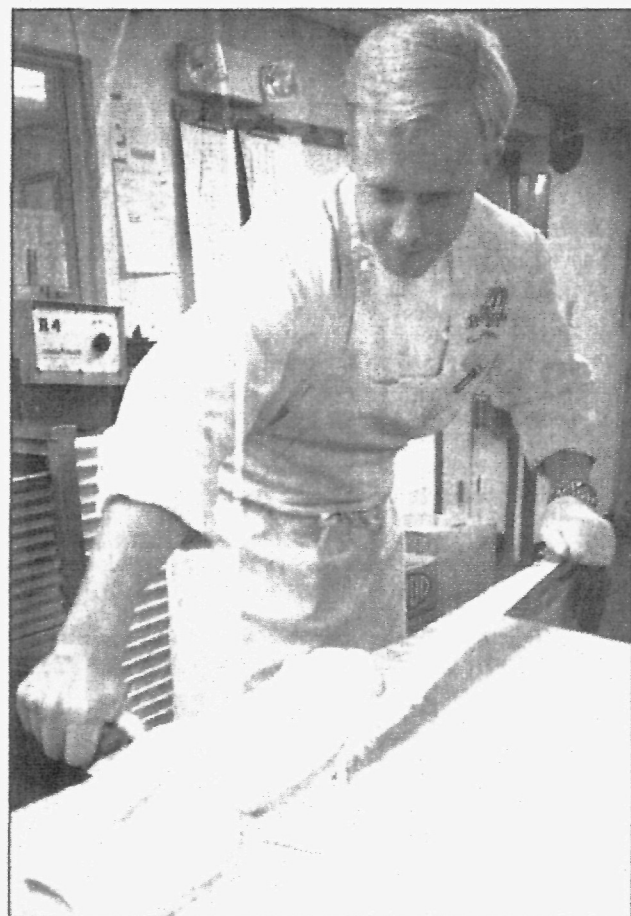

"It's not a house that was converted to an inn, but it has that feeling," said Jeffrey Hanson, executive vice president of Hampshire Real Estate Companies.

In the lobby, the dark forest green walls have been replaced by cream wall coverings and light green accents are bathed in sunlight from the large windows.

"We wanted a warm, welcoming feeling," Imperatore said. "Everything was so dark before. It had a tired feeling."

Previously, dark colored paint and deep wood-worked masked most of the beauty of the inn.

New hospital foundation head named

PISCATAWAY — The Most Rev. Paul G. Bootkoski, bishop of the Diocese of Metuchen, has appointed Peter Connolly as president of Saint Peter's Foundation, the fundraising arm of Saint Peter's University Hospital.

Connolly will continue to serve as Director of Marketing for the diocese and Executive Vice President, Chief Marketing Officer for Saint Peter's, positions he has held since September 2006.

"Much of what we are able to accomplish at Saint Peter's University Hospital is made possible by private support," said Bootkoski, chairman of Saint Peter's Foundation. "With the help of our generous contributors, Saint Peter's is touching and improving lives throughout New Brunswick and across the state.

Peter will be a tremendous asset to the Saint Peter's Foundation. We are fortunate to have him take on this responsibility."

In addition to fund-raising, Connolly is responsible for the hospital's advertising, public relations, government relations, research, strategic planning, network development, community outreach, and customer service initiatives.

According to Ronald Rak, chairman of the board of trustees and interim chief executive officer at Saint Peter's, the hospital has embarked on the largest modernization and renovation project in Saint Peter's 100 year history.

"Over the next several years, Saint Peter's will enhance services and make capital improvements in many of its public and patient care areas, including the construction of private maternity rooms and private oncology rooms," Rak said. "Modernizing and expanding existing space is necessary in order to improve delivery of patient care, efficiency of services, and patient satisfaction. The scope of this initiative is such that it will require capital beyond our operating revenue, but we are confident Peter can provide the leadership needed at the Foundation to accomplish our goals."

A high-level marketing professional and former member of Saint Peter's Board of Trustees, Connolly had implemented programs that have transcended a wide range of industries and resulted in significant growth and increased revenue.

Prior to coming to the diocese and Saint Peter's, Connolly was president of Worldwide Marketing and Communications with Tommy Hilfiger Corporation. He had held several senior level marketing positions including, senior vice president of World Wide Marketing at Polo Ralph Lauren, senior vice president of Marketing at CNBC Television Network and chief marketing officer for Ikea North America.

Over the years, Connolly's marketing and communications programs have garnered national and international coverage, as well as recognition in both the consumer and trade press.

"Saint Peter's University Hospital is a premier healthcare institution and its latest building

"It needed a facelift," Imperatore said. "We wanted to make a good investment into the property."

The conservatory, with its black and white checkered flooring, mossy green paneling and over-sized windows with shutters, resembles a breezy and relaxed outdoor porch café.

"We removed so much ceiling plaster already," Imperatore said. "We took out the carpeting and got all new furniture and lighting."

So far, nine of the 20 guest rooms have been renovated and also feature warm two-toned neutral colors complemented by cozy pastel linens, soft carpets and furnishings. One of the rooms' most inviting touches includes the thick drapes that frame the lofted four poster beds. All renovation work has been done by Jeffrey Haines of Butler's of Far Hills.

"Each room will have the same themes, but they won't be cookie cutter rooms," Imperatore said. "They'll all be different and have their own personality."

The rooms each feature flat screen televisions that can be hidden away in large natural wood consoles. By the end of the year, three more rooms and one banquet room should be completed.

Phase three, scheduled for this month will bring the renovation the Great Room, a banquet room on the main level that is now cloaked in dark colors with heavy burgundy drapes and dark wood work. Renovation work is expected to take two to three weeks. The already renovated bar area, or the library, provides a glimpse of what the Great Room could become. In the library, the gold tones and textured finishes highlight the center six-sided bar and the piano vestibule.

Additionally, the two lower level function rooms — the Somerset and Hunterdon rooms — have been renovated. In phase four — scheduled to begin — the Fenwick Room and the remaining guest rooms will receive their face lifts.

"We're told on the lower level there's a fire place hidden behind one of the walls," Imperatore said. "We're excited to see that."

The $1.5 million renovation and restoration project is scheduled to be complete within two years. In keeping the establishment open during the process, crews must work around banquets, guests and the restaurant operations.

While renovation work is commencing, Chef Corey Heyer has continued to whip up tasty meals in the kitchen. Heyer has been with the inn for just under three years and was trained at the Culinary Institute of America.

"We're always changing the menu or adding things according to the seasons," Heyer said as he cut fresh halibut. "In the summer, we focus a lot on seafood and now we're getting into the game season with venison, pheasant and rabbit."

A continual favorite is the creamy lobster bisque soup, but Hanson is partial to the chicken salad.

"It's a non-mayo chicken salad with horseradish sauce," he said. "It's incredible."

There are at least three new dishes added to the extensive menu every six weeks, Heyer said. The renovation project is an encouraging investment into the restaurant.

"It's uplifting," Heyer said. "It motivates you to want to be your best."

One the beverage side, Sommelier Terri Baldwin offers patrons from a list of more than 14,000 bottles of wine in 1,000 selections.

"I love being able to have the opportunity where I can educate and excite people about what they're drinking," she said. "And the renovation shows a dedication to the customer."

Liberal Arts Festival comes to Middlesex

EDISON — Pooja Makhijani, whose writing and speaking have been acclaimed by critics and educators throughout the United States, will be the keynote speaker at the seventh annual Liberal Arts Festival at Middlesex County College.

The three-week campus event will open on Monday, April 9, when Makhijani will deliver her address, "Greater Expectations: The Value of a Liberal Education," at 11 a.m. in the Technical Services Center. A reception will follow, hosted by Thomson Publishing, when her books will be for sale. All events are free and open to the public.

As the editor of "Under Her Skin: How Girls Experience Race in America," Makhijani shares her poignant overview of the essays by women that explore, through a child's lens, the complex ways in which race shapes American lives and families.

"The qualities I admire most about the essays that I finally selected, aside from being exquisitely crafted, are their authenticity and honesty," she said. "My aim in collecting these stories was to showcase the depth and breadth of women's experiences."

Makhijani, who is 26, was born in Queens and grew up in the township. She earned a bachelor's degree in biomedical engineering at Johns Hopkins University and a Master's Degree in fine arts at Sarah Lawrence, where she presently teaches. She also teaches writing and children's literature at Western Connecticut State University's new MFA professional writing program.

Her novel, "Mama's Sari," published by Little, Brown, has just been released. Makhijani has written for the New York Times, Village Voice, Star-Ledger, Writing Weekly Reader, Time Out NY Kids, Cicada and USA Today. Her essay, "School Lunch," appeared in the anthology "Women Who Eat: A New Generation on the Glory of Food" and her essay, "The First Time," was the recipient of the 2003 magazine Merit Award Honor in non-fiction by the Society of Children's Book Writers and Illustrators.

Makhijani is the recipient of the 2007 Janina Domanska/deGrummond Collection Children's Literature Research Fellowship. Her short stories have been published in New Moon and Kahani magazines.

Other events in the Liberal Arts Festival include performances in dance, music, poetry and theater, prize-winning foreign language films and lectures on literature and culture. For a complete schedule, including event locations, go to www.middlesexcc.edu.

For titles and show times of the films, contact Karen Gormish of the Department of Social Sciences and Humanities, at 732-906-2528.

The Level 4 boys showed their stuff at Sunburst Gymnastic's gym in Union. He also received an All-Around 3rd place finish with teammates Evan Longo of Bridgewater, finishing 21st in the All-Around, and Evan Strawderman of Hillsborough, finishing 23rd in the All-Around.

Brandon Apisa (Level 4 Age 8-9) individually placed 4th on Vault, 4th on Parallel Bars, 8th on Pommel Horse and 10th in the All-Around with a 52.6 score. The final meet for the boys was the State of New Jersey competition, which includes all the gyms across the state. A total of 23 boys competed at Level 5 ages 10-11 which include Caleb Jorgensen who vaulted his way to 9th place on Vault. Competing at Level 4 were 92 boys that included Evan Longo, Evan Strawderman and Brandon Apisa. Brandon was at the top his game that day again when he finished 7th in the All-Around. He also individually took 4th on Rings, 6th on High Bar and 8th on Floor. The Somerset Valley YMCA congratulated all the boys on a great season. The boys are coached by Head Coach Rachel Covert and Assistant Coaches Ashley Meyer, Elaina Flanagan and Leah Gimbi. ## Panthers readying for another big campaign

By DAVE ALLENA
Staff Writer

BRIDGEWATER — It's another season and another opportunity for greatness for the Bridgewater-Raritan High girls lacrosse squad.

With a wealth of experience from a club that reached the finals of the Somerset County and North A tournaments while winning Skyland Conference-Delaware Division honors, the Panthers have designs on another big campaign this spring.

Kathie DeBonis begins her 10th season as head coach acknowledging the Panthers' high goals, but admitting this year is no different than any other when it comes to setting objectives.

"Every year I want to see them do something," she said. "I'd like them to win it all this year. I see this team at the top of the county and conference with the usual teams like Hillsborough and Ridge, and North Hunterdon (in the conference) has been making nice progress.

"I'd love to see them win the conference. I'd love to see them win the county. I'd love to see them win the section, although I'm not sure what that's going to be like since they've changed the format (of the state tournament). I'd love to see them have a great opportunity to win a state championship."

"There's a sense of urgency for me every year. We have a number of kids playing their final year, but it doesn't make a difference what classes I have. I want to do well every year. I feel my players are hungry every year. The bulk of the seniors have also played soccer together forever and have done well. It's a close-knit group that wants to succeed."

It's hard to imagine a team with a more veteran look to it. Bridgewater-Raritan lost only two regulars to graduation and opened the season with an experienced player at every position, most of them with two seasons as starters.

"I would say experience is our strength," DeBonis said. "Most of the girls have been playing since their freshman or sophomore year. Most of them have played in two or three county finals and most of them have played in two or three sectional finals."

"I like the talent, maturity and experience of this team. They have all the right tools to be successful. It's a very energetic group that's been together for a while. I think the key to doing what we want to do is just relax, stay calm and do what they're capable of doing."

"It's a matter of everyone filling their roles. We have all the ingredients to do very well this year."
