The Squeaky Wheel... Works

uring the past few months many residents have complained that their voices are not heard and opinions are not taken into consideration.

Well, take a look at a few decisions that have been made in the past weeks that put that theory into ques-

Last week I attended a school board meeting at which a decision to start the school year three days late was coming up for a vote. Many people attending the meeting were against the plan and expressed their view that their opinions would not count, but they came to the meeting anyway. Lo and behold, the school board did listen to those who spoke and immediately voted to keep the school calender intact.

The same thing happened in the spring when the board was trying to decide whether to keep a few sixth grade classes in the elementary school. Parents came out and expressed their displeasure at the idea of splitting up the sixth grade. At the next meeting the board decided to move all of the sixth grade classes to Grant

Last month, Solaris Health System said it was disbanding Mercy 7, a mobile intensive care unit out of Muhlenberg Hospital because there wasn't enough volume to justify its existence. Once word got out, an outpouring of letters and peritions resulted first in a delay to disband and later a reversal. Mercy 7 will remain on duty to give advanced life support to our rescue squad.

Also, keep in mind how the council changed its minds about the proposed billboard amendment last year. Residents were against this amendment and their

These are just a few examples of how people who care can make a difference. Just these few instances show how very powerful, we the citizens, really are in our community.

So don't say your opinions don't count. They do but you have to come out and express yourself to make a difference. Don't stay at home and wait until after a decision or vote is taken. Come to the meetings that

And while we're at it – voting in the upcoming election is another way to express your views. If you don't vote, your voice will not be heard. Those who took the time to attend the school board meetings or write a letter to Muhlenberg can be proud they took a stand and should get the credit for the final decisions that were made. Good job!

Remember, meetings are usually posted on page 2 of each Observer. Try to attend just meeting one in the next few months. You might be surprised what your voice can do.

The vacant lot is situated right next to the property he wants to build the house on. He tried to purchase the property from the borough last year and after waiting for months, he received a letter saying the borough wasn't interested in selling the prop-

The lot in question is located on Ralph Ave., which is a dead end street. Bengivenga has owned this property for years and his father Ralph, who recently passed away, resided on this same street. Last month Bengivenga attended a council meeting to ask why the borough won't sell the property. Mayor Gallagher told him that the council does not make these decisions and that he should go back to Land Management. Frustrated, Bengivenga decided to ask for the variance.

The Hamilton Industrial Site, which has been declared a Superfund Site, may be redeveloped with the okay of the EPA.

Redeveloping Superfund Site Discussed at Town Meeting

A special town meeting was held on Monday evening to inform the public on redevelopment plans that two of the former owners of the Hamilton Industrial Park, located on Hamilton Blvd., are proposing.

Residents living near the site and members of several municipal boards and commissions attended the meeting. The planners were delighted with the dialog which took place and said many of the suggestions would be considered.

Of the 18 residents who spoke, eight brought up problems of traffic, but all agreed the site would benefit from improvement. The mayor assured everyone that these plans are still in the early stages and that traffic will be addressed as the plans move

At the close of the public meeting the council unanimously passed a resolution endorsing the conceptual plans that the EPA expedite the clean up of the site so that redevelopment plans can be implemented. The planners will now take the input they have received from the public and seek approval from the EPA.

The companies, Cornell-Dubilier Electronics and Dana Corporation, no longer own the property, but are responsible for cleaning up of the site. The 27-acre property was designated a Superfund site in 1998 by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and any redevelopment of the site would come only after the cleanup is completed or while the site is rede-

The proposed redevelopment would consist of retail stores along Hamilton Blvd., including parking spaces, a pedestrian bridge to access the railcar and the downtown area, a mini-storage area and flex office space. The balance, about 40 percent, would be devoted to open space. The present buildings would be removed and replaced with modern buildings.

The EPA has hastened Superfund site redevelopment through the "Brownfields" program. The Brownfields program calls for a timely cleanup, which focuses on the future reuse of the property. Through this redevelopment process, the site would be cleaned up and returned to productive use much faster.

Mercy 7 Rescued

Muhlenberg Regional Center announced last week that Mercy 7 will remain as an active part of their pro-

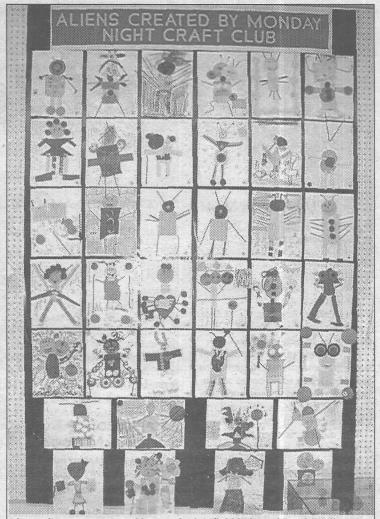

Last month Solaris Health System, which operates three Mobile Intensive Care Units (MICU's), announced they would be discontinuing one of the mobile units, Mercy 7. Originally the date to disband was set for July 7, but that date was extended to August 7.

Objections to the shut down were raised by local rescue squad members, residents and officials from surrounding municipalities, and South Plainfield. South Plainfield began an aggressive letter writing campaign and several petitions were passed around town.

Solaris Health Systems claimed there wasn't a large enough volume of calls to sustain Mercy 7. Mercy 7 was temporarily relocated to the Edison No. 2 First Aid Squad on New Dover in North Edison. During that period a study revealed that relocating the unit to an alternate site increased the number of Advanced Life Support (ALS) responses to Mercy 7.

Since 1998 Mercy 7 has served the community on a 12-hour shift out of Muhlenberg, along with two other 24-hour units, Mercy 6, also out of Muhlenberg and Mercy 9, out of JFK Medical Center.

Word of the change in status of Mercy 7 was met with delight by members of the rescue squad who were instrumental in the delay of its demise and then in the decision of keeping Mercy 7 as a third mobile intensive care unit.

These aliens were created by South Plainfield kids at the Public Library's Kidcraft program. The program is held on Monday evenings during the summer and is for kids aged six and up. Signup is required in advance.

Teachers Volunteer to Transfer Grant School

At last week's Board of Education meeting board member Frank Mikorski introduced some the teachers who would be teaching sixth graders at Grant School.

Mikorski said he and the board were very pleased that so many teachers volunteered to teach at the new central sixth grade facility. In fact, he said more teachers volunteered than were needed.

Middle School teachers moving to Grant School are Camille Duetsch, Judith Dias, Joann Haus, Barbara Hepburn, Karen Kellerman, Lori Kowalski, Annmarie Nelson, Katherine Wilson, Robyn Mikaelian, Barbara Florio, Kelly Panuzzo and Cathy Coyle. The board has not yet been determined what teaching assignments each teacher will be filling and plan to announce the assignments in the near future.

Also moving to Grant School are Denise Hogan (computer), Joan Stasio (music), Julie Flasser, Gina Capizola, Ann Holtz, Lynn Reebe (special ed), Bruce Hunt (physical ed), Kara Giorgio (art) and Patricia Benward (teacher aide).

Middle School Principal Robert Dogget has already voluntarily transferred and been named principal of Grant Central Sixth Grade Elementary School.

Once again, it's time for news from the South Plainfield Library:

We'll start with our Children's programs. This morning at 11, there's our Children's video presentation, title to be announced. (Miss Linda likes surprises.) Next, here's an important word about the Summer Reading Club: Tomorrow, repeat tomorrow, is the last day for you to check in books. Moving along, there's the Monday Kidcraft program, for children ages six and over, at 6:30 p.m.; please sign up so we know how many to expect. Then there's our usual schedule of children's Storytime programs for children ages three and over. They take place on Tuesday at 10:30 a.m., Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. and Thursday at 1:15 p.m. No registration is required. Wednesday morning at 11, there's our Game Gang program, where kids can play one of our board games or bring in one of their own. Lastly, there's the next installment of our live reading of Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire Thursday night at 7:00. If you have any questions about these programs, be sure to ask Children's Librarian Linda Hansen.

Here are a couple of additional Summer Reading notes. First, time is running out for you to order Summer Reading T-shirts; they cost $8 each. Second, the details of the closing program for Summer Reading are still being finalized. We'll keep you informed.

On the Circuit front, the new group of Circuit videos is now available. This month's titles include Drop Dead Gorgeous, Crazy in Alabama, Snake Eyes, Home Alone 2 and, on DVD; The Outof-Towners. This group will be around until August 28. Also, we've received the first group of Circuit books on CD. Like the books on cassette, they'll circulate for two weeks. At present, they're kept behind the circulation desk; for details on the available titles, check the Circuit audiobook list in the green binder at the desk. And, while you're at it, why not see about one of the Library's permanent collection of books on CD. (We don't have books on DAT yet, but give it

Finally, a word about A/V items and who can borrow them. Some recent news reports have focused on questions at other libraries regarding children borrowing videos. Our policy is that pretty much anyone can borrow pretty much anything. In the case of A/V items, parents must sign a consent form, in our presence, before their kids can borrow such items on their own. After that, they're free to take out anything, including R rated videos. (We feel that parents are much better qualified to monitor their children's viewing habits than we are.) However, parents do have the right to revoke such consent, if they so choose. We realize that this is a delicate subject and that we're treading a fine line. We strongly urge parents to do their part in this area, while we are more than willing to render what assistance we can.

With that, we'll wrap it up for this week. See you next Friday.

Volunteers Sign Up For Committees at BOE Meeting

Members of the Board of Education were pleased Monday night, not only with the turnout, but also with the enthusiasm of residents willing to serve on one of four committees. Over 60 residents attended and at least a dozen, who were unable to attend, called to say they would like to sign up for a committee.

The four committees formed are, architecture, curriculum, technology and public relations. Members of the board of education and representatives from Prisco & Edwards, the architecture firm hired by the board, will also be on hand to answer questions and gather any information the group may need.

These committees will meet through September and ultimately make recommendations to the board. The board will take this information and a referendum will be scheduled for December. By asking residents to participate in the planning, the board feels the next referendum should receive voters' approval. Voters have already rejected two school bond referendums this year.

The committees will be meeting every Thursday night to report on their progress. Keeping the public informed at each step is very important to the board. Most residents who attended Monday's meeting did not have all the facts dealing with overcrowding and what was covered in the previous referendums.

If anyone would like to join a committee, they are welcome to attend a Thursday night meeting and volunteer. The meetings start at 7 p.m. and are held at Grant School on Cromwell Place.

Grant Renovations On Schedule

Superintendent of Schools Guy Ferri reported on the progress of the renovations of the new sixth grade Grant School. The school has been home to the administrative offices, adult school, special education classes, Future Stars and Juvenile Police Bureau. Most of these offices are moving, some are being condensed and others are relocating to the middle school.

Ferri explained that demolition happens much faster than renovations. He said in some instances they are ahead of schedule and in others, behind. He is confident the school will be ready for September opening.

Renovations are taking a little longer. Many of the removed classrooms had been used for other purposes during the past years and are in need of thorough cleaning. Floors need to be scraped and sanded, especially where cabinets and cases stood. Walls require extensive patch work and all classrooms needs painting.

The halls are lined with lockers which all need locks installed. A fence will be needed in the building's rear to separate younger kids and their playground equipment. Light bulbs in all classrooms must be brought up to code.

The intercom system needs upgrading throughout the school. The communication equipment and fire detection system must be upgraded as well.

Another large project will be moving desks and books from the middle school. The teachers have volunteered to come in early and get the school prepared.

Crews are working hard to handle tasks and problems as they arise.

"42nd Street" Rocks the Summer Drama Workshop 2000 Stage

Twenty-nine years ago a group of people banded together to form a children's summer theater. Little did they know that this small group, offering a different take on available summer fun, would, in time grow to include casts of 85 plus students. Summer Drama Workshop (SDW) has come a long way. While minimal funds boosted 1972's Bye Bye Birdie, expenses have skyrocketed, making each

While the new staff worked with the performers, the Observer caught up with them and asked them to share their thoughts on the program.

Choreographer Patti O'Brien said, "The Summer Drama cast of 42nd Street is one of the most motivated groups I have worked with. 42nd Street is an extremely challenging show. This cast has proven that with hard work and which makes the jobs of the director and assistant director hundreds of times easier. I realize that many of the people involved with SDW have been here for many years. As a newcomer, I have received nothing but support and encouragement."

Director Eric Hafen provided the Observer with detailed take on Summer Drama Workshop and children in theater. (See be-

The show features incredible tap dancing, a fast-paced storyline and classic Broadway hits such as the title song, Lullabye of Broadway, We're in the Money and more. The cast of 42nd Street invites you to "Come and meet their dancing feet!" 42nd Street runs Thursday, Aug. 3-5 at 7 p.m. and Aug. 6 at 2 p.m. in the SPHS auditorium. year a study in planning and compromising. SDW took the leap into the current era when they became incorporated this past year. Instead of a few producers holding it all together despite incredible odds, now there is a board of 19 to delegate the work. Parents are now required to help and support the show instead of simply signing up a child.

Times have changed and over the past few years Summer Drama Workshop has moved forward in leaps and bounds. Their 2000 production may well be one of the most difficult shows they have performed to date. Students portray adults in the last days of the Great Depression. Despite the complexity of the show, rehearsals suggest that the kids will more than pull it off. This year's staff for SDW is unique in that most are not from town and don't know the kids or the program. Some saw this as a drawback, but in reality it has been a blessing. There were no preconceived notions when the children auditioned. Each child went in facing a stranger, the same as they were to the staff. The SDW staff during the past few years has been made up of local residents, several of whom were former students who returned to share their talents with dedication they can meet that challenge.'

Vitto Garcia, vocal director, agreed with O'Brien when he said, "42nd Street is rarely done at this level of theatre. It's a pleasure to see such a young cast perform as a family of profession-

Former SDW student Melinda Fore returns to the program as assistant vocal director. She offers a view that can only be gained by seeing the program through the eyes of a student and a staff member. Melinda said, "As part of the production team, I finally realized the grueling amount of work that goes on behind the scenes; not including the actors. It takes a lot to put this program together, more than it takes to put on a professional gig, because we incorporate education into the mix. It has been so rewarding for me to put back into the program that I grew from."

Assistant director/stage manager Heather Giorgio had this to say about SDW, "I have never worked with a student program before which was as organized and as prepared as the South Plainfield Summer Drama Workshop. We have very dedicated people helping in all aspects of the props, costuming and sets,

Why Do A Summer Drama Workshop Like South Plainfield's?

By Eric Hafen

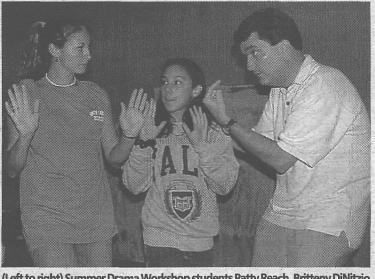

With the lack of funds available at the secondary school level for non-revenue generating programs, the Summer Drama Workshop gives students the active opportunity to express their creative side. It is amazing what you discover when you lift off the lid of a shy or insecure child-you find a bubbling artist just trying to get out. There is no better way to build self confidence in students than in the theatre. They are allowed, even encouraged, to try anything within the parameters of the script and given an opportunity to express themselves.

Live theatre at times seems so foreign to students. Yes, an occasional visit to the local professional theatre fits nicely into a school curriculum and the obligatory symphony concert. But actually doing theatre-the mounting pressures-the demands on the individuals-the living breathing audience watching you. It's an entirely different dynamic. 42nd Street gives youths the opportunity to explore their individualism within a crowd, within a chorus. There are many crowd scenes. But part of the charm is the crowd (the chorus), the important part of the musical, often times (as in 42nd Street) the meat and potatoes of the show. The musical is about the chorus, "the crowd," and one girl's chance to break away from the "crowd" and to become a star. But all in all, she too remembers that there is life and beauty in "the crowd".

I have directed these students to explore their individual contributions to the musical, from a game of craps to a hot dog vendor to a girl playing hop scotch. Everyone is contributing to the whole, with the sole purpose of entertaining an audience. These students have worked hard and are ready to show what they can do.

Eric Hafen serves as director for the Summer Drama Workshop. He is intent on providing an opportunity for introducing the theater, and thereby a sense of childhood confidence and selfesteem, into the lives of South Plainfield's children.

Roma Food Claims Third Championship

Roma Food won an unprecedented third championship in a row on Tuesday, July 25, at Veterans Memorial Park to be Men's South Plainfield "A" League Champions. Guided by the leadership of player/manager Bob Boyle, Roma came storming back to win the final two games in the best of three series after dropping the opener to the Bazookas 11-3.

Roma, which finished in first place during the regular season, had to call on its battle tested six straight championship finals lineup to deliver the come-frombehind victories in the last two

Although Roma pitcher Frank Delgaldo had been pitching well, he and his Roma mates found themselves trailing by a run late in the pivotal second game. It was at this point in the top of the sixth that Roma needed its veteran players to step up - and step up they did, as Ricky Bolesta, Jim Parker and John Bjorlo opened the inning with consecutive base hits. Steve Bolesta and Bill Mosier followed with back to back doubles to give Roma a four run inning that proved to be the difference in the 7-5 victory.

In the deciding final game, Roma once again found itself trailing in the fourth inning when, after a double by Jim Parker, shortstop John Bjorlo hit a massive homerun to left center field. Not to be outdone, Steve Bolesta stepped up to the plate and delivered a titanic homerun which put Roma in the lead in what proved to be the championship clinching run.

Roma's defense slammed the door after that and secured the 7-3 victory.

The Piancone Family of Roma Food have sponsored this threepeat championship team for the past eight years.

Stanley Cup Star, Newscaster and Politicians Join Forces To Support Annual Leukemia Walk

The Northern New Jersey Chapter of The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society are pleased to announce the honorary chairpeople for their upcoming Light the Night Walk, which takes place in six locations throughout northern and central New Jersey over the weekend of Sept. 22-24.

The Northern New Jersey chapter has selected Dennis Marco, vice president of External Affairs and Corporate Communications for Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield of New Jersey, as their overall, Honorary Chairperson for Light the Night. Mr. Marco himself was diagnosed with Acute Myelogenous Leukemia (AML) in March of 1996. His treatment, which consisted of three high doses of chemotherapy as well as an Autologous Bone Marrow Transplant-stem cell rescue, was performed at St. Joseph's Hospital & Medical Center in Madison. His treatments were successful and we are happy to say that Mr. Marco is currently in remission.

The Light the Night Walk will also be supported by some very notable New Jersey residents. Joining the society as honorary chairpeople will be State Assemblywoman, 34th Dist., Marion Crecco; State Assemblyman, 31st Dist. and Mayor of Bayonne, Joseph V. Doria, Jr.; Congressman, 7th Dist., Bob Franks; State Assemblywoman, 5th Dist., Marge Roukema; team captain and member of the 2000 Stanley Cup Championship NJ Devils, Scott Stevens; Senator Robert Torricelli; and "Good Day NY" correspondent, Cheryl Washington.

The Light the Night Walk is a 2-3 mile walk which takes place during the evening hours. Participants carry illuminated balloons to signify their commitment to the mission of The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society-curing leukemia, lymphoma, Hodgkin's disease, and myeloma, and improving the quality of life of patients and their families.

Patients and survivors will light the way with glowing white balloons, while friends and family will carry brilliant red balloons. All participants will celebrate the tremendous strides that have been made in leukemia research during a post-walk festival.

Walk locations include: Hudson County Park in Bayonne, Brookdale Park in Montclair/Bloomfield, Millburn High School, Ramapo College in Mahwah, Douglass College in New Brunswick and Giralda Farms in Madison.

If you would like to volunteer behind the scenes, organize your own team of co-workers, family or friends or become a corporate or community sponsor, contact the Northern New Jersey office of The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society at (973) 376-9559.

101st Screaming Eagles Hold Annual Picnic

By Patricia Abbott

South Plainfield American Legion Chaumont Post 243 hosted the 101st Airborne Division Assn. Screaming Eagles, Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe N.Y.-N.J. Chapter's Third Annual Vietnam Memorial Picnic on July 15. The event commemorates the 35th anniversary of the deployment of the 101st Airborne Division 1st Brigade to Vietnam on July 29, Unfortunately the inclement weather forced the picnic to be held inside the American Legion.

The memories shared by these Vietnam Vets are strong and showed on their faces during the brief indoor ceremony.

The cramped quarters did little to dampen the spirits of these veterans. The flags they saluted were mere inches from their faces but the memories and camaraderie were there.

Regardless of which era of combat they represented, the phrases "Welcome Home" and "Never Forget" were heard often. A few of these vets were from an era long before Vietnam or Desert Storm, going back to WWII, Korea and various small engagements in between.

Their motto hung in the air despite the carefree picnic fun, "We Remember! We'll Never Forget!" To place an ad call 908-668-0010.

West Nile Virus Info

The summer weather brings with it warm temperatures and stagnant water which breeds one of New Jersey's biggest pests, the mosquito. This year many people are con-cerned over the reported cases of West Nile Virus.

The virus is a mosquito-borne illness. Humans get infected by being bitten by an infected insect. The mosquitoes become infected by biting birds who carry the virus. While birds may die of the virus they are not known to transmit it to humans. Symptoms include fever, headache, body aches, skin rashes, and swollen lymph glands. More severe symptoms may include meningitis, encephalitis, coma and on rare occasion, death. People over 50 and those with weak immune systems are at greater risk for more serious illness. There is no specific treatment for this virus and there is no vaccine. Most people recover completely within two weeks. In severe infections, hospital care may be nec-

A little knowledge and preventative measures can go a long way towards alleviating fear and decreasing the risk of being infected.

Steps to protect your family include: Eliminate standing water on your property. Clean clogged roof gutters. Empty plastic swimming pools and drain pool covers. Change water in bird baths and flush sump pumps weekly. Check/repair screen doors. Stay indoors during dawn, dusk and early evening hours when mosquitos are most active. Wear long sleeve shirts, long pants and socks when you are outdoors. Avoid areas with heavy bushes and trees. Apply insect repellent sparingly to exposed skin and follow the manufacturers instructions carefully. Don't apply insect repellent on children less than three years of age.
