Residents in District 2 (Tuesday pickup) and District 3 (Wednesday pickup) should be aware that the recycling truck may come earlier or later than usual. Residents should put their recyclables out at the curb by 6 a.m. of their collection day, as usual.

If recyclables are not picked up on the scheduled day, call the recycling coordinator at (908) 226-7621 or leave a message on the recycling hotline at (908) 226-7620.

The New Market Avenue extension is near completion and is slated to open within days.

Steven Novak

By Jane Dornick

After a 42-year career in the South Plainfield School District, Middle School Principal Steven Novak retired from his position on July 1.

Raised in North Plainfield, Novak graduated from Seton Hall University with a BS in education and obtained a master's degree in administration from Kean University.

Novak began student teaching in the borough in 1968, and the following year was hired as a U.S. and world history teacher at the high school. In the 1970s he pioneered the government and law curriculum, which is still in place today. Recalling his tenure as a teacher Novak said.

"My mentor back then was Larry Carbonetti, the head of the social studies " He also fondly remembers teaching alongside colleagues Tony Massaro, who went on to become principal, assistant superintendent and an Edison councilman, and Mike English, now a college professor and former recreation director and mayor of South Plainfield who is currently again seeking that position in November.

After becoming an assistant principal at the high school, Novak instituted the "four A's": academics, athletics, arts and activities, something he believes every student should benefit from and strive for. In 2005 he was named principal of the middle school where he still maintained the same core philosophy and even added another "A"-attendance.

One of Novak's mantras often heard throughout the middle school was, "It's nice to be important, but it's important to be nice," a quote taken in part from motivational speaker and former professional baseball player John Cassis. He also inspired his students with an added twist on the old Rosie the Riveter, saying "we can do it" telling them "you can do it." During his final days as principal he proudly came up with another addition to his "A" words: appearance.

Not only was he inspirational in the classroom, Novak also brought the same spirit to the players he coached over the years. "I was looking for a (Continued on page 10) at South Plainfield High School. From my earliest days I played teacher and I even put on a veil imitating the dress of the nuns who taught us. My whole education was in Catholic schools," said Zajkowski.

Graduating from Misericordia College in Pennsylvania, Zajkowski was recruited to teach in New Jersey. "At that time [1961], New Jersey needed teachers and my salary was $3,600," she explained. Later she took courses at Rider University and received a master's degree in business education and a master's degree in supervision and administration.

"When I started there were nine teachers in the department-now we are down to three teachers in the business department. Shorthand was big for the girls and many took shorthand-the Gregg method. We found jobs for the kids and placed them with businesses. During my lunch hour I would take the kids to their jobs, the offices located along the border of Rt. 287. Today, our classes include word processing, accounting, personal finance, business esktop publishing. This year we started teaching special education students one day a week, joining our regular computer applications class and they love the class!" said Zajkowski.

In the beginning of her career the teachers were huge fans of the sports programs, observed Zajkowski.

"All the teachers would meet in the school parking lot and went in busses following the student athletes to their events in Atlantic City or at Rider College for the playoff games in basket-ball. Tony Cotoia's basketball teams were champions. Mr. Ranger, whose science classroom was across from mine, started the wrestling program."

A Warning for Parents Following Many Recent Water Tragedies

After five children reportedly drowned in backyard swimming pools and retention ponds in New Jersey in June, Department of Children and Families (DCF) Acting Commissioner Allison Blake is reminding parents and caregivers to vigilantly watch children around water.

"These tragedies are a sad reminder that we should never, ever, leave a child unattended near water, and always ensure backyard swimming pools are child-proof," said Commissioner Blake. "Drowning is a leading cause of preventable child death every year, and with the summer season just getting underway, parents need to know water accidents can occur in a matter of minutes, and children can drown in just a few inches of water, often without any splashing or screaming.

According to the National Center for Injury Prevention and Control, drowning is the second leading cause of death for children under 14. Among children ages one to 4, most drownings occur in residential swimming pools and, in most cases, those children had been in the care of their parents and out of sight for less than five minutes.

This summer, DCF is running its third annual "Not Even for a Second" summer safety campaign to educate parents and caregivers about water safety, and to remind them never to leave children unattended around water, not even for a second.

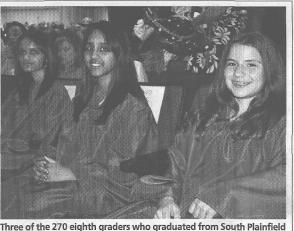

Commissioner Blake stressed the following "Not Even for a Second" water safety tips for parents:

· Always have an adult supervising young swimmers. Never leave a child alone around water. Children are drawn to it, and very young children can drown in just one inch of water.

· Flotation devices or inflatable toys are not substitutes for super-vision. Teach children to swim at an early age.

• Obey all posted or verbal rules, warning signs and other safety signs. (Continued on page 10)

To the Editor:

The Shared Services Committee, chaired by Debbie Boyle represent-ing the Board of Education, and Ray Rusnak, representing the Borough Council, met on June 30 to discuss ongoing shared services programs be-tween the borough and the BOE, and during that meeting the subject of a new facility for the library came up. We're writing this letter to share the content of the discussion and to invite further input and discussion from all those concerned.

During the meeting the committee discussed the possibility of the BOE working with the borough to supply a library facility that meets the needs of the community. Obviously the BOE has an interest in the library, as the library provides South Plainfield students-of all ages-with a variety of resources and programs. That being the case, the BOE members on the committee were eager to help solve the library board's concerns about in-sufficient space, and to that end, dis-cussed an idea that might solve that dilemma

Here's the gist of it: currently the Roosevelt Administration Building is underused. Because of this, the committee envisioned relocating the library there and relocating the school district's administrative offices to the current library building. Under the plan, the library would take over two floors in the administration building, with the first floor keeping its current use (a museum for the Historical Society and the operations center for the BOE's technology department) which could be used for additional storage for the

The idea offers quite a few benefits for residents. Here are just a few:

- The location is next to the building used for Future Stars, which would give parents with children in that program easy access to the library's programs, especially those geared toward preschoolers.

  • The location has abundant park-
- ing, with the possibility of adding more if needed.
- · The location is in an area zoned for this type of use. In addition, all the infrastructure (sidewalks, driveways, etc.) are in place. The building also has an elevator, which would be available to serve those with disabilities.
- · The building is next to Hamilton Boulevard, a main artery. The location would therefore be convenient to the community and public transportation.

The new library facility would have plenty of space and, depending upon how that space is configured could offer room for a computer center, individual meeting rooms for small groups and a community room.

 The new facility would have space for offices for the library director and staff.

• There would be opportunities to offer joint programs between the library and the Future Stars program. Depending upon the ability to negotiate timing, etc., the library could have access to the gymnasium for large pro-

The plan would also offer the library a larger facility, which an architect and engineer could redesign to meet the library's needs. The renovations could be paid for out of the library's surplus.

All the members of the Shared Services Committee, as well as two other BOE members (BOE President Jim Giannakis and Vice President Pio Pennisi), were enthusiastic about this idea and are eager to discuss it with the remaining members of the council and BOE, as well as with members of the Library Board of Trustees. As with any idea, we're sure there will be obstacles we'll have to address and hope fully find solutions for. Nevertheless. we think this is a viable solution to the library's lack of space-a solution the community could get behind.

Since our committee already has representatives of the council and BOE, the next logical step is for us to meet with representatives of the library board. To that end, we'd like to invite two library board representatives to attend our next meeting, which is on Wednesday, July 28 at 6 p.m. at the Roosevelt Administration Building. We'd also like the remaining council and BOE members to give their representatives to the Shared Services Committee their input.

In the meantime, if you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact any of the committee members. We hope the library board will be as enthusiastic about this idea as we are, and we look forward to working together on something that can be a huge positive for our community

Dear Editor.

In response to Bogdan Fryszczyn's letter to the editor in last week's Observer regarding the high school year-book advisors, I would like to let you know that I had applied for the job, as well as the middle school yearbook advisor job last year.

At the elementary school level, the yearbooks are handled solely as a service by the various PTOs and PTSOs with no pay involved to the parents who volunteer. I had been the yearbook advisor at Grant School for three years since no one else was willing to take on the job. That included the advertising, bookkeeping, selling and the actual page by page creation of the book. The final product received rave reviews each year from the students as well as school personnel and gave me great pride in what I had accomplished

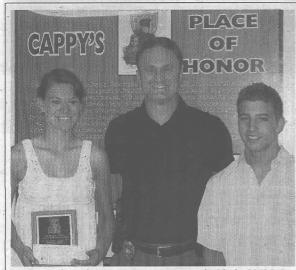

When I saw the job postings on the school website, I sent my application and resume to the Board of Education and I even sent a letter to the superintendent and each board member expressing my desire for the job. Needless to say I was never called for an interview and no one even acknowledged receipt of my application.

After learning that two inexperienced teachers had been chosen for the job I asked a board member why I had not been considered. Several excuses were given to me that came from the superintendent. One was that I had to be a teacher, because according to their contract they get first dibs and, gorgeous drive on the fourth hole that his: short of the green and rolled to within a foot South Plainfield of the cup for a tap-in Golf League eagle. That marvelous shot ignited his Oak Tree Dental squad and they went on to whip first-place Twin City Pharmacy, 151/2-41/2. Oades earned the medal for his team with a 38 Teammate Robert Pornovets who.

after three terrible rounds at the start of the season, was all set to sell his clubs and play checkers in the park on Tuesday nights with some senior citizens, came through with a 41 to help Oak Tree Dental gain a tie for firstplace in the American Division. Robert's father's advice to hang in there paid off. So the moral is-Always listen to your dear old dad.

Sean Brooks of Witty's Liquors is on fire. He had a superb birdie on the second hole, ripped a splendid drive on the fourth that led to his second birdie, and crushed his tee shot on the eighth hole and made his third birdie for the low round of the night, a sparkling 1-under 32. Hereafter, Sean will be known as The Birdie guy. With Brooks again showing the way, Witty's went on to win a close match over 2 Buds, 2 Dubes, 11-9. Nick Tonzetich pitched in with a solid round of 38.

Dubes was Grace Ciampi. the first woman to ever play in the South Plainfield Golf League since its inception over 50 years ago. Before teeing off, Captain Dale "The Needler" Dube told her since this was a men's league, she would have to play from the white tees. "I had a great time," said Grace, who shot a 47. Dube also had an enjoyable experience: "It was fun having a woman who works as a bartender as a playing partner. It was a nice change from having to golf with that incon-sistent dip stick, Jeff Orth."

Andy "The Caddie Comedian"

Hayward had some hiccups here and there but still managed to post a 38 to lead the Roughriders to a huge win over Unique Sports Accessories, 18-2. Frank Weingart bombed some drives on his way to a 38, and Bob Nilan had both an eagle eye and a hot putter and also registered a 39. The Roughriders decided that they had better get on their horses and ride for a win before the scheduled roundup at The OK Corral next week to show their captain what they are really made of. Ted Stanik of Unique Sports shot a 37 that easily could have been several strokes lower, and Jay Bertleson had a 39.

After getting pounded last week by the Italian American Club, 19-1, KC's Korner bounced right back and won decisively over McCriskin's Home For Funerals, 16-4. Dan Conti gave a stern lecture to his balky puter, and the big stick obediently listened to its master as Conti earned the medal for his team with a fine round of 37.

Mark "Mr. Steady" Chichvar was reliable as ever as he carded a 37 for McCriskin's in a losing effort.

Even with some different line-ups each week, Alfie's Boys looks like they're finally getting their act together as they hammered the Italian American Club 16-4. Bill Mann and John Gavin turned in a pair of nifty 36s, and Mike King left a few strokes out there but still man aged a 38. With this win, Alfie's Boys improved to a .500 and are now in a three-way tie for second place in the National Division.

Pat Romano of Sport & Social is so full of confidence when he steps up to the first tee each week that he no longer bothers to take any practice swings or do any stretching to loosen up. He simply waggles his driver a few times, takes his stance, and proceeds to split the fairway with what is often his best shot of the night. Romano did his thing against the Polish National Home, but then, for a change, he followed up with a lot of other good shots and put together his best round this season, an impressive 3over 36, to lead Sport & Social to a 131/2-61/2 triumph over the Polish National Home.

The dynamic duo from Gotham City, Ray Starnick and Tom Kaufman, were in top form for the Polish National Home as Starnick fired another gem, a 1-over 34, and Kaufman was just 2 strokes back with a fine round of 36.

Low scores for the night: Sean Brooks, 32, Ray Starnick, 34, John Gavin, 36; Tom Kaufman, 36; Bill Mann 36; Pat Romano, 36; Guy Severini, 36; Mark Chichvar, 37; Dan Conti, 37; Andy Hayward, 37; Ted Stanik, 37.

Middle School Bids Farewell to Six Retirees

By Jane Dornick

South Plainfield Middle School has six employees retiring who have in combined total of 160 years working in the district. The four teachers leav ing are: John Limyansky, Jim Makowski, Jeff Middleton, Bill Mosca and Jeff Spezio, along with secretary Thia Kirchofer. All were honored at a picnic in the school courtyard on June 22 which was attended by the staff, teachers and administrators from other schools in the district, as well as Board of Education members.

Jeff Spezio attended Trenton State College and Rutgers University and has been a graphic arts teacher at the middle school since December of 1977. He was the expressive arts department head and past student council and newspaper advisor. Spezio was honored with a PTO Caring Award. His most memorable moments at the middle school were helping to organize the first eighth grade Washington, D.C. field trip and assisting in the building and dedication of the 9/11 Memorial in the court yard. In his retirement he plans on spending more time fishing and doing wood working, and most important, spending time with his family.

Thia Kirchofer began working at the middle school 25 years ago in the information center. In 2005 she moved to the main office as a secretary and has remained there ever since. She is looking forward to retirement and spending more quality time with her family and friends.

Bill Mosca graduated from Montclair State College with a BA in industrial education and began teaching special education woodshop in Irvington schools from 1972 through 1973. He has taught mechanical drawing and woodshop at the middle school for 35 years. Mosea coached high school baseball for 33 years and basketball for eight years. One of his accomplishments at the school was helping to build the 9/11 Memorial. He received a Governor's Teacher of the Year Award in 1988, the PTO Caring Award in 1994 and has chaperoned every eighth grade Washington, D.C. field trip and high school Project Graduation. Mosca also finished the New York City Marathon in 1986.

Jim Makowski is a lifelong South Plainfield resident. He graduated from Middlesex County Collège and Kean College with an MA in special educa-tion. He began teaching at the high school in 1980 and moved to the middle school in 1987, which was supposed to be a short term stay. Makowski received a Governor's Teacher of the Year Award and a PTO Caring Award in 2001. He served as a team leader and department head of special education and could be heard each day delivering the morning and afternoon announcements as well as being the master of ceremonies at nearly all school functions.

Jeff Middleton earned his BA from Frostburg State College in Maryland and an MA from Indiana State University in athletic training. He began his career in the Old Bridge school system in 1974 and in 1985 he began working in South Plainfield. Middleton has been the president of both the Athletic Trainer Society of New Jersey, the New Jersey State Federation of Umpires and was instrumental in writing the Athletic Training Practice Act.

John Limyansky graduated from Rutgers University with a BA in mathematics and has been a math teacher in the district since 1973. He first began teaching at the high school where he was a winter and spring track coach for four years. In September of 1975, he transferred to the middle school Limyansky also coached the middle school track team for four years, was a student council advisor for over 25 years, stage manager for 20 years, talent show advisor for 20 years, has been the school deejayed since the early 80s and deejayed the Battle of the Teams since its inception. He was honored with the Governor's Teacher of the Year Award in 1981 and a PTO Caring Award in 1995.

"I would like to thank the South Plainfield community for 37 years of a lifetime of memories. There are so many families that I have gotten to know. You have students in the 1970s and then years later their children walk into your room. I enjoy telling a student that I had your mom or dad and they were also as nice as you.' I will miss all of this, but it is time for me to do the other things I love. I hope that I have had a positive effect on all those who have walked through my classroom door. I also hope that the students will remember the fun dances we shared, especially the eighth grade dinner dance. Once again, thank you South Plainfield!" said Limyansky.

County to Celebrate Anniversary of Americans With Disabilities Act

The 20th anniversary of the signing of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) will be marked Monday, July 26. On Thursday, July 15 the Middlesex County Board of Chosen Freeholders will sign a proclamation declaring the county's recommitment to the ADA.

The proclamation is part of the "2010 by 2010" campaign spearheaded by the National ADA Symposium. The drive seeks to generate 2,010 proclamations of recommitment nationwide in 2010 to signify government's united desire to provide equality.
Since 1990, Middlesex County

built a new administration building, featuring wheelchair-accessible, automatic doors, an infrared listening system and accessible bathrooms on each floor. The Board of Elections worked to ensure polling sites are accessible, and the Commission for Persons with Disabilities presents an annual forum on a disability-related topic.

The county also instituted Project Lifesaver, a collaborative effort between the Departments on Human Services and Senior Services and Sheriff's De partment to help locate persons prone to wander due to disability.

The Transportation Department increased its ridership and incorporates mainstreamed transportation for persons with disabilities on its shuttle service.

The Cultural and Heritage Commission continues to educate and advocate for access to the arts. All commission materials are available in a range of accessible formats.

One of the crowning jewels of the county parks system is the Level Playing Fields complex, which is believed to be the first 100 percent accessible sports facility in the nation. The popular Playsin-the-Park series includes wheelchair seat ing, sign language interpreted perfor-mances, audio description, open captioning and sensory seminars.

To mark the 20th anniversary of ADA, Middlesex County is calling upon all its departments and all 25 municipalities to observe this anniversary with a training or event in July, or simply noting the ADA anniversary. The Middlesex County Office for the Disabled is available for further information and assistance as a resource for any disability-related issues. Contact Judy Cusumano, director, Office for the Disabled and Middlesex County ADA coordinator, at (732) 745-4013 or email judy. cusumano@ co.middlesex.nj.us.

Career Spans Three Generations

(Continued from page 1) growth spurt early in Zajkowski's career, outgrowing the original high school building. Two trailers were brought onto the parking lot and math classes were held in them. Durath ing that era, the district went on split sessions while the new "open space" high school was being constructed.

Teachers were sent to Ithaca, New York and other areas to see how they were run," explained Zajkowski. "We found little schools that had half the population of our school. When the high school was first built it was a school without walls, with lightweight wallboard between and curtains separating classes. The noise was incredible There would be a movie running and the kids would throw paper airplanes into the next class," she recalled.

"My biggest accomplishment in teaching came when high school Principal Harry Lobby appointed me to be chairman of business education in 1977," she said. Zajkowski remained as chairman until 1986, when the chairmen of each department were reorganized into team leaders.

In addition to her teaching schedule and administrative duties, Zajkowski was class advisor to the classes of 1965, 1969, 1973, 1977 and 1979 with another teacher guiding each class from freshman through senior year. She also initiated fundraising projects to provide for the senior breakfast and other programs.

Zajkowski also worked with Ann Brown and Susan Goldey, "internal coordinators" who sought reaccreditation by the Commission on Secondary Schools of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools

Zajkowski has not only taught the parents of some of today's students. but also some of their grandparents. Her students have included physical education teacher Bill Schulte: Mike Timko, an official with NJSSIA; and Richie Steele. She is always available to her students and occasionally some will forget where they are and address her as "Ma." Others, who might feel will ask for and receive a hug. It's this concern for students that made her reject any suggestion she become a principal after becoming certified in supervision and administration.

To those who suggested a possible switch from teaching, she said, "No thank you. I'll never leave my kids."

Zajkowski, who has been traveling from Manville since she began teach ing in South Plainfield, believes she will continue her rapport with students while retired.

"Tve gotten requests to substitute at a private girls school in Somerville. But I won't miss getting up at 4:15 a.m. every morning to get to school,"

(Continued from page 1) baseball job, but there was only an opening for soccer," said Novak. "I didn't know if a soccer ball was round or square." But the late Tony Cotoia, a successful basketball and football coach, teacher, athletic director and principal at the high school said to Don't worry about it. I'm very confident you'll do a fine job.' And indeed he did, coaching varsity soccer for 10 years and the varsity baseball team where he stayed for 17 years. Novak led the baseball team to six championships and was named Coach of the Year those six years. He was also a student council advisor and initiated the senior citizen holiday luncheon hosted by the high school, which is still an annual event.

Novak was the recipient of numerous awards over the years, including the Governors Teacher of the Year Award and was inducted into the NJSIAA Hall of Fame in 1999

AUTO BODY

Not only was he a leader in education, Novak took the political world by storm by becoming mayor of his hometown at 23 years of age. He served in that position from 1974 until 1988 and went on to become the town's recreation coordinator, which he retired from last December. Novak was also honored by his high school alma mater as an inductee in their Hall of Fame in 1995.

Novak and his wife, Barbara, a 1965 graduate of SPHS, have resided in Green Brook for many years. They have two sons, Thomas, a naval architect, and Steven, an assistant athletic director at Boston College.

"Over the years I have had a lot of cooperation from a lot of nice peosaid Novak, who is most proud of the new gym and lockers at the middle school. His greatest accomplishment, however, was attaining the highest NJ ASK test scores in the school's history last year.

"South Plainfield is a great community and a great school district, alive with talented and energetic staff helping eager students to learn and grow. I have many great memories of my 42 years as a teacher, coach and principal," said Novak, adding, "Tve worked with a lot of great people," one of whom he says was former Superintendent Len Tobias.

In parting, Novak reflected, "If I had it to do all over again I would still have been a teacher." His one regret though, is not becoming a principal sooner. "I would have affected more students, but I will continue to keep a close eye on the South Plainfield community and school district."

Novak plans on spending more time fishing and at his second home in Trinity, Fla. He added, "I would like to learn to play golf better, too."

A retirement dinner honoring Novak is set for Thursday, Oct. 14 at The Primavera Regency in Stirling.

Safeguard Your Children

   Don't mix alcohol and supervision of children.
- · Always drain and store plastic or blow-up wading pools in an upright position. Enclose pools completely with a self-locking, self-closing fence and do not leave furniture around that children can use to climb over the fence. You can contact the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs for more information regarding pool construction and residential codes: www.nj.gov/dca.
- Be sure to remove pool covers completely to reduce the risk of children getting caught underneath.

Commissioner Blake also reminded parents about the dangers of leaving children unattended in or near cars. Several children in New Jersey have been killed or injured in the past years after being left or trapped inside a ve-

"Even on a moderate day, the inside of a car can heat up to dangerous levels in a short time," said Commissioner Blake. "A child left alone in a vehicle, even for a short time, is in danger of abduction, injury, dehydration and even death."

In My Opinion

(Continued from page 2) two, that I would be around children therefore I needed the proper degree. There is nothing in the SPEA contract to that effect and I even called the New Jersey Education Association and asked where this was in writing and was told angrily that stipends were for teachers and they basically hung up on me. The high school yearbook is an after school club. It is an advisory position not a teaching one. The middle school yearbook is completed on a computer with no club and students involved.

Another excuse given was that I did not have enough college credits. I asked for a job description to see what the requirements were for the jobs and was told by the business administrator that they do not exist.

On another note, I would like to know why the gate between the middle and high school parking lot is still closed. School is out!

Corrections

- In last week's article, "School Board Votes Nay on Negron Contract Renewal," the dates regarding the second resolution presented to renew Superintendent Jose Negron's contract for one year were incorrectly reported. The dates should have been reported as July 1, 2011 through June 30, 2012, as his current three year contract ends June 30, 2011. In the same article, it was incorrectly reported that Business Adminis trator Rich Guarini retired. Guarini resigned effective June 30, 2011.
- In last week's article, "Excellence Has Its Rewards," the amount of The James Painton Award was incorrectly reported. The scholarship amount was $1,000.

New Technology Enhances Quality of Life For People Needing Inpatient Care

A long-term care patient in New Jersey uses a webcam to read a favorite story to his grandchild in California. Another patient takes a walk along a virtual recreation of the street where she grew up, and re-connects with treasured memories from her childhood. New computer technology is restoring the quality of life for people who, until now, may have felt that they have lost important parts of themselves when they entered an in-patient facility.

Transforming traditional "nursing homes" into state-of-the-art inpatient facilities offering the latest in medical and rehabilitative technology is just part of what puts AristaCare Health Services in a league of its own.

Now this internationally-recognized healthcare provider–known for doing whatever it takes to ensure the highest possible levels of patient care– is using incredibly innovative technology to help engage patients with the outside world. Named "It's Never Too Late (IN2L)," the system has tremendous therapeutic applications.

"AristaCare has brought in a record amount of technology to help pa-tients on a clinical level with their rehabilitation and physical well-being. This is the first major technology available that targets quality of life and impacts our patients on the social level," says Senior Vice President René Rruzansky. "To really focus in on a patient's social well being is the missing link that others ignore. We know what it takes to help people recover physically and mentally. IN2L completes the circle of care because it enables us to focus on each person in their entirety.'

IN2L makes therapy fun and helps keeps patients engaged for longer periods of time. They use their cognitive and motor skills, and work on their eye/hand coordination, by playing bingo with friends in real time, emailing friends and family, working a jigsaw puzzle of a treasured family pet, and connecting with others dur-ing an interactive Wheel of Fortune game on the giant screen. They can use the system to 'escape' to the outside world and 'visit' places they wouldn't normally see during therapy.

And they can do so whether they are sitting, standing or lying down.

Each of AristaCare's five locations will use IN2L computers for individual sessions and for cognitive. occupational and speech therapy as well as therapeutic recreation.

AristaCare Health Services is head-quartered in South Plainfield.
