Boy, 14, brings knife to school

A 14-year-old Middle School student allegedly brought a 12-inch knife to school with him, according to a police report.

The boy was charged Monday with unlawful possession of a weapon after he was found carrying the knife at school, police reported.

Police said the youth told them he carried the weapon, which was kept in a wooden case in his coat pocket, because several students had threatened him.

Callers snow Sound Off with complaints

The school system continued to be a popular topic for Sound Off callers last week, but more than a few expressed anger over the condition of borough roads following the Jan. 4 snow storm and last Friday's ice storm.

Truck explodes

Firefighters hurt, hundreds evacuated following propane blast at Synergy

By SYLVIE MULVANEY

THE REPORTER

A Synergy Gas Corp. propane storage truck exploded on South Clinton Avenue Tuesday night, setting off a series of other explosions and forcing rescue workers to evacuate several hundred people and close parts of several major roads.

Two firefighters suffered minor injuries as a result of the blast, which destroyed two storage trucks and damaged a third, authorities said.

Investigators from the Middlesex County Prosecutor's Office are looking into the cause of the explosion, South Plainfield Police Officer Karl Schuetz said.

First on the scene, Officer Schuetz said he responded to a call on a possible fire at the South Clinton Avenue facility at about 7 p.m.

Apparently a woman at a dance studio across the street saw flames coming from the vehicle parked in the lot and called police, he said.

As he approached the scene, Officer Schuetz said he could see fire at the rear of the building.

"Flames were shooting out from the front portion of the truck," he said. The policeman said he ran into the building and alerted an employee, who moved several trucks away from the one on fire. Just as the first handful of firefighters arrived, "the canisters started shooting off," he said. "Luckily, nobody got hurt."

Three-hundred cylinders, each with 33-gallon capacity, were involved, said John Granelli, public information officer for the South Plainfield Office of Emergency Management.

It was unclear how many exploded.

"Everybody said it was just a popping of the cylinders," Mr. Granelli said.

The explosions scattered shrapnel and sent flames as high as 150 feet into the air, he said. Its glow visible for miles, the fire was under control after about an hour and 15 minutes, Mr. Granelli said. Occupants of 20 homes were evacuated, as well as people at Home Depot and Caffe Piancone Ris-

torante on Hamilton Boulevard, and Feigley's

School of Gymnastics and Jo-Ann's Dance Studio on South Clinton Avenue, he said. Employees at the nearby Days Inn offered evacuees refuge from the cold until the area was cleared for their return about three hours later. People also were moved to the Holiday Inn on Stelton Road from the Comfort Inn off Interstate 287 for fear that further explosions could "shoot off like rockets" and project metal across the highway.

Roads within a quarter mile, including I-287, Hamilton Boulevard, Tyler Place and parts of Stelton Road, were blocked off for about two hours.

Nearly 200 rescue workers from South Plainfield, Piscataway, Iselin, Plainfield, the Middlesex County Hazardous Materials Unit and Emergency Response were on the scene. Many remained in and around the command post in the Caffe Piancone Ristorante parking lot well after midnight.

One of the injured firefighters suffered a burn on his hand, Mr. Granelli said. The other slipped on the ice and injured his shoulder.

Lisa Conrad, 11, of East Brunswick and Kim Dziomba, 8, of South Plainfield still seem shaken by their experience as they talk to reporters following the explosion.

Council to weigh options for sewer management

New sewer line is among choices for So. Plainfield

By SYLVIE MULVANEY THE REPORTER

The borough's direction on wastewater management planning could be determined tonight, depending on research results expected to be revealed during the Borough Council meeting.

Officials are looking at two options — establishing a partnership with the Plainfield Joint Meeting, or building a borough sewer line. Both options have good and bad points, although not all council members agree on which points meeting, Mayor Michael Woskey cording to calculations by the borasked for information on whether the borough could meet the March 1 deadline for submitting financial applications for a state Department of Environmental Protection and Energy (DEPE) grant.

Officials said that depends on how long the project's bond counsel would need to prepare the necessary documents.

If the deadline can be met, the borough could continue to be considered for the grant. If not, application could be delayed one year, or dropped altogether, they

About 50 percent of the $10 million would be provided through the grant at no interest, the consultant said. The other half would be had at market rate.

Although the borough would have more control over expenditures and timing with that plan, it also would assume full responsibility for maintenance and upkeep.

"Right now this is the most cost effective (proposal)," Mayor Woskey said.

The other alternative would be to work into a partnership with the joint meeting, rather than continue to rent capacity.

Mr. Pulomena said the bulk of future growth is predicted for the business district, which will de-

He argued with Councilman Willard Carey over the likelihood of the ban being lifted soon. Mr. Pulomena said the joint

Mr. Carey said reasons given by the joint meeting for the overflows never were proven, and information from the joint meeting has been scarce.

New Councilmen Jim Vokral and Ed Kubala said they had a lot of homework to do on the proposals before approving continuation of the application process.

Residents steamed over snow Denounce cleanup

by public workers By SYLVIE MULVANEY

THE REPORTER

Depending on who you ask, snow and ice management efforts in the borough following last week's storms were either commendable or abominable.

Officials discussed the road situation at Monday's Borough Council meeting, and whether the public works department has a policy it follows in determining which streets are cleared when.

None of the officials knew whether a policy exists, but all agreed that one is needed if such a policy currently is lacking. "If there isn't a process, we need to put one in place," Councilman Jim Vokral said.

Though present for part of the meeting, Public Works Superintendent Joseph Glowacki couldn't be reached for comment on his department's efforts either before or after the meeting. He did not return two phone calls to his office.

"I don't think we were any worse than any other communities," Mayor Michael Woskey said. Plows couldn't make it to some roads early enough, and the roads iced over, he said. Salt applied to the ice only works if the tempera-ture rises and ice begins to melt.

The mayor said one reason for the poor conditions in some areas was the lack of help from the county.

"We haven't seen a plow for the county in here," he said. Councilman Daniel Gallagher said he had seen county vehicles on Hamilton Boulevard, but not further into town.

From the audience, Lee Place resident Michael English faulted the public works department for not clearing side roads, especially those that slope.

There's absolutely no way you can get up them," he said. Mr. English said a neighbor suffered a heart attack Sunday in his car at the bottom of the Lee Place incline, and later died. As family and friends arrived at the house, four people fell on the ice, he said. Unable to drive the rig down the slope, rescue workers had to take a stretcher from the vehicle and walk it down to the victim - Mr. Gallagher's uncle.

Mr. Gallagher said Tuesday he was unsure how big a part the weather played in the events, but 'I certainly don't fault anyone.'

He said his 73-year-old uncle had a history of heart problems, and perhaps "it was his time to go." After freeing a police car stuck on the street, public works employees sanded and salted the road, the councilman said. Still, Mr. English wasn't satisfied. "I think the public works depart-the New Jersey Small Employer Health Benefits Act is advising employers to learn all the facts before acting.

However, a few callers defended the school board. One woman wondered when other Sound Off callers would stop "Board of Education bashing.

When are people going to realize it's not necessarily the Board of Education who is responsible for all these problems," she said. They can all be directly related to the high administration in our school system, especially superintendent Cole. Stop blaming the Board of Education for every problem that exists and start blaming a high-paid administrators who are not doing their jobs," another woman said. "Also, I'd like to commend the callers who defended a Board of Education member. Since when do South Plainfield residents criticize other South Plainfield residents who are unselfishly giving their time to better the education of South Plainfield students?'

"There's been a lot of accusations in Sound Off that the current board is not fulfilling their charge and letting these janitors that have been convicted and accused of drug charges keep getting pay while they are out of work," another caller said. Councilman John Pulomena delivered the address at the council's Jan. 1 reorganization meeting. Last week, The South Plainfield Reporter printed the text of Mayor Michael Woskey's address.

First, let me welcome our new council people, Ed Kubala and Jim Vokral. This is a day of personal celebration for you, your family and friends. Your taking of the oath of office is also a celebration of our democracy. Once again, power has been transferred not behind the barrel of a gun, but by the placing of your hand on the holy Bible

Ed and Jim, do not take lightly the responsibilities which come with the taking of public office. You have today given your sacred oath to work, to the best of your ability, for what's in the best interest of the people of South Plainfield. Remember that oath every time you attend a council meeting. Always follow your conscience. Do what you think is right and you can't

With your election, the council majority has shifted from Republican to Democratic. On election day, Nov. 2, the people of South Plainfield sent a message that they no longer will accept a credit card approach to government. As Democrats, we pledged to end the pattern of borrowing which has seen our borough debt increase to nearly $40 million over the last five

Let me today affirm what was before now a campaign promise. Dan Gallagher, Ed Kubala, Jim Vokral and John Pulomena set as the official policy of the 1994 borough council that the practice of borrowing in order to balance the borough budget is at an end.

During the calendar year 1994, this council will not bond for any purpose, except in the case of an emergency threatening the health or safety of our residents. We also pledge to this year start pre-paying the bond obligation imposed on our taxpayers by the previous administration.

We cannot do it alone. We need your understanding and your support.

This pledge means that no capital improvements will be bonded this year. Wherever possible, we will repair the borough's infrastructure through the use of our public works employees. We simply cannot afford to continue to increase the debt obligation of our taxpayers without considering the consequences.

Do not be misled. Higher debt means higher taxes. We warned you in April that by bonding $15 million, taxes would have to increase just to pay the interest. Sadly, our warning became reality just two weeks ago. On Dec. 20, as one of its final acts, the 1993 council passed a budget that included a 5 point tax increase. As a result of the enormous borough borrowing, last year's Republican majority had to raise taxes in order to pay off the interest due on South Plainfield's debt.

The amount of the tax increase was approximately $600,000. This is the same amount which the borough debt service increased from 1992 to 1993. The buck spiraling borough debt will be reversed. You have our people. word on it!

see an agenda which is both informative and understandable. It's time that elected officials realize that the people aren't the enemy, but the boss.

We believe that an informed public will support its council members. Information and understanding can only help the process of government, not hurt it. We also today direct the borough clerk, Mr. Eckert to place a large suggestion and complaint box in the hall outside of this chamber. Let us know what you think needs attention and we will use our best efforts to address your concerns.

I hold a box with the names of those who have asked to serve on the taxpayers advisory group. Before this meeting is adjourned, our new council people Ed Kubala and Jim Vokral will choose the names of the 10 people to serve on that board. I ask our borough attorney to draft an ordinance for this council's review creating the taxpayers advisory group. It is our intention that every ordinance or resolution to be adopted by this council will be forwarded to the taxpayers advisory group for their review and input before it becomes the law of this borough. It's time that participatory Democracy be fostered, not frustrated, in South Plainfield.

At our next meeting, I will also be asking the council to support the creation of a business advisory group. One need look no further than the ill-advised trailer ordinance, the unenforceable spray paint ordinance, and the litigation between our mall owners and the borough to see that business input should be received before an ordinance is adopted, rather than ending up in court after adoption. A healthy relationship between business and government should be fostered in order to attract clean and attractive enterprises to our borough.

Finally, to Mayor Woskey and council people Carey and Denardo, let me offer the full cooperation of the new Democratic majority. Although there may be a difference in approach, both Democrats and Republicans want to do what's best for the taxpayers. Regrettably, South Plainfield has a history of unproductive political bickering at council meetings. Let's agree to use our best efforts to stop the pettiness and work for the public good.

If we improve the working environment of this council, more of the people's work will be done. Let us start today by agreeing to treat the citizens of our borough, and each other, with respect and dignity.

George Washington agreed to serve as our nation's first president, because he believed that, in a democracy, public office should be the highest calling for any citizen. When you are tempted to block an appointment, or delay an important vote or vote against something simply because members of the other party voted for it, think of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Franklin Roosevelt, John Kennedy and all of those young men and women who gave the ultimate sacrifice in the service of their country so stops here and the borrowing stops now! In 1994, the that we would be able to sit on this dais as council

Let us go forth from these ceremonies committed to work for the right, regardless of the political consequences, in our hearts knowing that with God's help

The real enemy

Tenure, not school board is real problem in schools

Just what is going on in the school system?

That seems to be a popular question these days. With one janitor suspended and a second fired, both on drug charges, a third suspended for yet undisclosed reasons, and concerns welling up over violence in the high school, the question is not altogether unreasonable.

Calls to The Reporter's weekly Sound Off hotline have become increasingly strident against the school district, administrators and school board members. Residents wonder why the school board did not immediately fire janitor Harry Caravello in 1990, when he was first arrested on drug charges. They demand to know why Paul Zawacki has been suspended with pay pending disposition of drug charges lodged against him Dec. 14.

The obvious answer, that these men are innocent of all charges until the courts decide otherwise, is not the end all of the reasons behind the school board's apparently tardy

The truth is, school officials are restricted by contractual agreements and state laws in dealing with employees accused of a crime. If they act out of instinctive outrage at the prospect of drug abusers working with children, if they simply fire these people on the spot, school officials could end up getting the district sued. Or, worse yet, they could find they've punished an innocent individual.

School officials are not the bad guys in this scenario. The real villans are tenure laws and give-away contract agreements that tie the hands of school officials struggling to deal with potentially criminal employees.

Tenure is virtually non-existent outside our school systems. There's a good reason for that. Once, tenure laws protected school employees from unjustified dismissal. No more. A myriad of other checks and balances are in place to protect employees, including discrimination laws that cover everything from age to race.

One caller to Sound Off asked "if there is anyone who can let us know where we write to get rid of this tenure." Our best suggestion is to address complaints to state Department of Education officials.

Surely, South Plainfield cannot be the only district in the state suffering under the yoke of an outdated concept.

Martin Luther King's message may be more important than ever

It may come as a jolt to those who belong in the baby boomer or older generations, but more than a quarter of the United States population was not even born nearly 26 years ago when Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn. April 4, 1968. Monday is the national holiday celebrating the birth of this great man of peace, and it has particular importance for our nation's youth.

It's not that young people are indifferent to Dr. King's message of human tolerance and equality. But they weren't around to experience the intensity of the opposition to Dr. King's message, or to feel the muted power of truth in that message or of the awesome force of non-violent protest fueled by truth. They weren't around to know what it was like to be treated like second-class citizens, being told to sit only in the back of the bus or to have lunch at a counter reserved only for members of your own race.

The beauty and truth of Dr. King's message is that individually we deserve to give and receive respect, no matter how much our opinions, beliefs, language, religion or skin color might vary from those of the majority.

Today, a tumultuous world generates a renewed influx to our neighborhoods of emigres seeking to give and receive of the classic American tradition of freedom and respect for the individual. Some of their languages, dress, customs and religions are foreign to the majority already here. Prejudices and worse can build among the majority in the absence of understanding, communication and common civility.

The antidote is to be found in the ringing message of Dr. King — equality, fairness and mutual respect.

His message is as alive as the individuals behind the daily swirl of a changing world and as alive as each of us who bears the dark human proclivity to belittle the stranger. But is that message getting through to our youth?

Dr. King's dream lives on. Let us resolve to bring that dream one step closer to reality.

Letters to the editor

Thanks for help with 'Tiger Gold'

On behalf of the South Plainfield Middle School PTA, I would like to express our thanks to all the merchants of South Plainfield who made a contribution or donated a prize for the Tiger Gold program.

Tiger Gold is a new program at the middle school to promote good citizenship and encourage positive behavior of students. All too often, it is the student who follows all the rules (and) is helpful to teachers and classmates who goes unnoticed and unrecognized. Tiger Gold is a certificate awarded to students who exhibit these qualities. The student saves these certificates and can redeem them three times a year for a prize.

Through the generosity of local merchants, the PTA is able to fund this kind of innovative program. Without community support, Tiger Gold would not be possible. Now more than ever we need to send a positive message to youngsters that good deeds don't go unnoticed, and that as adults we appreciate their efforts to make a difference.

If you have not made a donation and would like to contribute to this effort, please contact the South Plainfield Middle School PTA. Thanks again to all those who have already contributed to Tiger

BRC aids utilities, not consumers

To The Reporter:

The recent decision by the N.J. Board of Regulatory Commissioners (BRC) to let Public Service Electric & Gas Co. continue giving "free" heating service to its customers, shows the contempt that BRC has for the consumer. Although a judge found PSE&G was losing money on their service operations and subsidizing the loss through their rate base. What does that mean to a consumer and how does that hurt them?

The average company renders a service or product to the public and must show a profit or go out of business. A regulated monopoly is, however, guaranteed a profit. If it can prove to the BRC that it's ness, they can price their product - gas or electricity profits are below the levels guaranteed by the state, it asks for a gas rate increase from the BRC and nine times out of 10 they get what they ask for.

To increase revenues and earnings, all a utility has to do is provide a product on which they lose money such as "free" service and underpriced maintenance agreements. Then they show a loss, then turn that loss into a profit by getting a rate increase from your BRC, which cares more about utility profits than the residents of New Jersey.

Another thing that utilities do with "free" service is drive small, profit-making firms out of business (according to U.S. Department of Labor statistics, 90 percent of all new jobs are generated by small businesses), thereby contributing to unemployment.

Also if the utilities succeed in driving the independent tax paying, job providing companies out of busi-- through the roof and there won't be anyone to stop them. As your BRC has shown, they are for the big guy, and let the little person be damned.

Sounding off about 'Sound Off'

By EVELYN HALL THE REPORTER

You may have noticed a column called "Sound Off" running every week in The Reporter.

The idea behind Sound Off is that people who may hesitate to state their opinions in a letter to the editor, might find it easier to pick up the phone and speak their minds. So far, it seems the idea has been successful. This week, 22 people called the Sound Off line.

Obviously, the public is pleased with the call-in line. For one thing, it is instant gratification. Did you slip on your way to the mailbox because your street wasn't plowed, sanded or salted after last Friday's ice storm? Want an instant outlet for your frustration? Call Sound Off. Seven other residents did just that, taking advantage of the Sound Off line to express their anger while their complaints were still fresh in their minds.

The anonymity of the line is also a plus for callers. It is an unfortunate fact that sometimes, when people raise valid points of concern, they are labeled troublemakers and their complaints go unheeded. Sound Off allows residents to voice their opinions without fear of repercussions.

Finally, some people simply find it more convenient to make a phone call than to sit down at a typewriter. So, for many reasons, Sound Off works for the people who call in.

It also can work well for me.

Editor's corner

public opinion that the actual voices of members of the public. Sound Off has given me insight into the concerns and philosophies of the hundreds of residents whose voices I have heard on the call-in line since I took over as editor of The Reporter. More than one phone call has led to a full story, so the phone line also helps me make sure people are getting information they need.

However, I am not blind to the dangers Sound Off can present for you, the readers, and me, the edi-

For you, calling a public hotline and speaking out on an issue is a good start. But Sound Off may be lulling some of you into thinking a mere phone call is enough. It is

Do not use Sound Off as a substitute for acting on your own problems. Are you angry at your school district, school superintendent or Board of Education? Did you call Sound Off and vent your spleen? If so, then good. Now go to your next Board of Education meeting and repeat your complaints, even louder. Don't stop with one phone call; follow through. We'll do what we can to see your concerns brought There is no better barometer of should, ever be the sole agent of with the system.

change in any community.

I'm beginning to think the greatest danger Sound Off presents to me is a threat to my posture. After I transcribed 22 phone calls earlier this week, co-workers began to notice my phone-cradling shoulder appears to be getting significantly higher than the other. I also experience periodic bouts of frustration when a caller complains about a condition on a certain street, but neglects to name the street in question, thereby crippling any effort I might make to research the

On the brighter side, most callers politely end their messages "Thank you," or "Goodbye," and I've even come across the occasional "Have a nice day." I listen to every one of those pleasantries, and I appreciate each one; they reassure me that the callers are aware there is ultimately a human being listening to them on the other end of the phone lines.

However, there are also the callers who are obviously out to have fun at someone else's expense. They send me multiple calls on the same fabricated issue, poorly disguising their voices with phony accents, or they degenerate into profanity that would make a longshoreman blush. I suppose it's a hazard of the business, but really, the joke is on them in the end.

We have a complex, state-of-theart phone system that pretty much requires a manual to operate. But deleting an unwanted message was to light, but no newspaper could, or the very first thing I learned to do

Pot to lid, marriage is a perfect fit

There is an old German phrase that I can't begin to pronounce, let alone write, but it means, "For every pot, there is a lid." It sounds a lot more profound in German, as I found out one day when I tried to console a widowed friend who is desperately searching for a soul

"That's easy for you to say," she snapped. "You've found your pot." I thought about it. Anyone who knows Jim and me will agree that I'm the one who can more aptly be described as a pot, but we do fit together quite nicely. Of course, when a pot is tightly lidded, things tend to boil over, and our marriage is no exception.

Friends can't always figure out what draws us to each other. He is logical, calm and at times, shy. While the rest of us are hysterically laughing, he often sits blinking at us like a wise old owl. It's not that he doesn't have a sense of humor; he's just not as silly. But I keep him from being too serious.

I am loud and boisterous - the comedian. Life to me is a banquet, figuratively and literally. I strike up a conversation with everyone I meet - from the lady feeding the ducks to the produce guy in Pathmark - while Jim waits patiently for me. In short, I can be a hyperactive nut. He keeps me from burning out like a super nova.

I annoy him when I eat too much, ignore my health problems, nag him, change my mind too often and don't trust his business instinct (which is invariably right on the nose).

He annoys me when he refuses to ask for directions when we're lost (which I understand has something to do with testosterone), complains about his commute, or puts off going to the doctor.

I hate the fact that he won't bring me flowers for no reason at all and he can't understand why I see nothing wrong with blowing $100 on the slots in Atlantic City.

But we somehow manage to stay in balance. We both work full-time (although, he reminds me, he commutes to Brooklyn each day, and I whiz to my job in 10 minutes flat). I cook, clean and generally keep the house in order; he vacuums, KURT H. BERG mops, does the laundry and the yard work. He feeds the cat and I clean the litter and let him sleep draped over my legs at night (the cat, not Jim). I handle the everyday stuff - making phone calls, appointments and straightening out life's little messes; he takes care of the finances. I spend and he saves. I grocery shop; he unloads and puts away. We both eat.

> Sometimes we argue. Who doesn't? Usually it gets downright babyish: we start arguing about whether to put anchovies on the pizza and end up saying bad things about each other's parentage. But the good times outweigh the > bad. We enjoy socializing and exploring new places. Sometimes we just sit and watch TV, but talk during most of the shows. To our amazement, we still have much to say to each other. There are also private moments swimming in the moonlight, walking hand in hand or simply sharing a hug - that round out our marriage. In a world where many of our friends are divorced or embarking on second and third marriages, we are full of awe at the fact that through love, perseverance and a lot of hard work, we're still together after 17 years. There are times we want to throttle each other, but for the most part, I can't picture life without him. We've had our share of crises, but always remembered through them what it was that first brought us together.

The simple fact is, life is better when we're together than it is when we're not. But I guess that's to be expected when you're married to your best friend.

Happy anniversary, Jim.

Happy returns from library staff

By KENNETH MORGAN

SPECIAL TO THE REPORTER

Well, as usual, the beginning of a new year signals the beginning of tax time. (There will be a brief pause for the reader to moan, "Oh no, not again!") And as I did last year, it's time for me to tell you about the resources the South Plainfield Public Library has for you on the subject of taxes.

Just before I started writing this, we put on display the first batch of new tax forms. As usual, we have a supply of various types of forms, as well as the instruction booklets to go with them. Also, we have examples of several types of tax forms that you may photocopy for your use. (By the way, the forms are blank. This isn't like buying term papers in high school.) Forms are available from the reference librarian.

We also have several books in our collection (particularly the reference section) that outline tax law and requirements. As with our tax forms, information is available for both state and federal returns. We also have books which purport (note that I say purport) to give tips on interactive play for children 3-6 more advantageous returns. years old 7-8 p.m. Thursday, This is a good spot to repeat a Jan. 27. Anyway, within limits, we at South Plainfield Library stand ready to help you with your tax forms. So between now and April 15, feel free to come in and ask. Personally, I'm already set. I'm going to consult two highly experienced tax experts on my return. I refer, of course, to my mom and dad.

Special rum cake delivered picture-perfect memories

SPECIAL TO THE REPORTER

Usually I would glance through my album first, but on occasion I was known to start with the two blue albums etched with gold letters spelling "Frank Jr." - two thick books crammed with pictures of all my brother's firsts. His first day home from the hospital filled eight pages. Next came his first smile, his first bath, his first tooth, his first step, and his first birthday. You get the picture. My parents sure did. They photographed every moment of his life for three years until my sister was born. Patricia's baby album was pink

We would then study the albums together as mom narrated. We would giggle about the re-occuring cake. No matter what album we looked through, there was always the same cannoli-filled rum cake in the middle of the dining room table. The wording on the top changed with each occasion, but the ladyfingers always stood tall around the sides of the cake. My relatives loved the cake, and eager to please, my mother would make it for all the parties.

So when I was deciding on a special cake for my daughter's christening, naturally I asked for and also had her name engraved in the recipe. I was pleasantly surgold. It too was filled with pictures prised at how easy it was to preof her firsts, but this time only pare. Now the cake has reappeared enough to fill one large album. Each student in Mrs. Pendzuk's class chose a country to research, based on his or her own ethnic background, culture or country of interest. A great deal of effort went into the preparation of oral reports to be given to the class.

Students then dressed in costumes representing natives of each port. Everyone experienced a bit of a holiday celebration as well as a cultural celebration.

Students learned about such places as Africa, Italy, Israel, Poland, Vietnam, and Germany, to name a few. Authentic clothes, photographs and cookies were some of the items brought to share.

Curtin flourishes at guard as Tigers keep on pressing

By JOSEPH W. SAMULKA

THE REPORTER

The mark of a true athlete is to understand one's limitations and to be able to overcome weaknesses that may hinder performance.

South Plainfield High point guard Christine Curtin, a four-year starter, is such a player who understands her role in the Tigers' system and flourishes

Curtin, who led the Tigers in assists, rebounds and points last season, is currently the second-leading scorer on the team with an average just under 11 points per game.

She's a player who succeeds at a position where superb speed something she lacks - is usually an absolute necessity.

"I'm not that quick but the moves I put on somebody are," said Curtin. Head Coach Bill Schulte agrees.

"Her weakness is that she's not real quick but she uses her knowledge of the game to steal the ball away. She understands the game and knows where the ball is going.'

In the constant pressing schemes Schulte uses it's impor- in a one-on-one situation. tant he makes sure his starting point guard is not worn down. He took advantage of the opportunity her in the back behind the two pressing players and by playing her on the side opposite of the opposing point guard.

"I lose a lot on defense because I'm working hard and my adrenaline is pumping," said Curtin.

But what she lacks in speed she makes up for in tenacity, aggressiveness and court savvy. She's a tough player and at 5-foot-8 she can score in the middle if she chooses to.

Her ruggedness has been her trademark and she sometimes overwhelms her opponents when given the opportunity.

"Some people say she plays like a guy," said Schulte. "The other day two or three officials said she does so well because of her hard dribble and the way she fakes her opponents," said Schulte. "Sometimes she even fakes herself out because she's trying to do too much."

Another area where the senior who has been named to several All-State and All-County teams shines is when she's being guarded accomplishes this goal by playing and pumped in 21 points, her season-high.

"They (the Lady Spartans) were a young team and their skills needed work," said Schulte. "She used her skills and drove on them they couldn't match up with her."

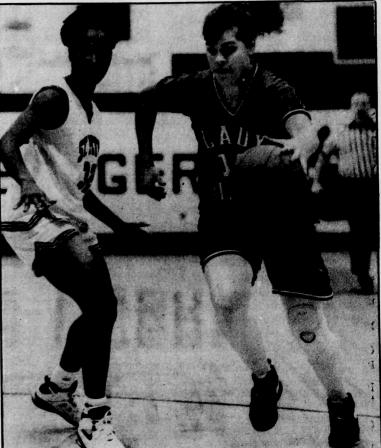

Curtin said, "I look to score in every game but when they play me man-to-man it makes it easier for me because I have more room to attack the middle."

This season Schulte has also played the senior in the forward spot when he felt the team was being outmanned on the boards. Curtin doesn't mind banging down in the low post but still prefers playing the point.

"If she's not a scorer she doesn't care," Schulte commented. "If I want some more from her offensively I'll play her in the forward spot. When I put her there she gives us a scorer inside that gets the other team in foul trou-

Ferguson adjusts to college sports

By JOSEPH W. SAMULKA

THE REPORTER

At South Plainfield High School, Melissa Ferguson was one of the most heralded field hockey players in school history.

However, when the Messiah College freshman realized she was going to be treated just like one of the many hockey players with a stick on the field at the next level, she had to make adjustments in her game.

Obviously field hockey is more demanding at the college level than at the high school level and Ferguson reflected on some of the problems she had in her college maiden year.

"I guess I expected a tough game - It's a lot more spread out," said Ferguson.

The 1993 South Plainfield graduate also had to face the fact that she wouldn't be playing every game, yet alone starting every contest. Ferguson started in about half of the games this season, usually rotating with other Lady Falcons.

However, as the season continued, Ferguson found herself starting most of the games in the latter part of the year. "I had to adjust to sitting on the bench - it was hard because I wanted to play," said Ferguson.

"But in another sense it was motivational because sitting out made me want to improve."

The left link had to also overcome being in awe of her teammates and the school's storied hockey history.

"It was kind of overwhelming because we had such a good field hockey team and we had some All-Americans on the team," said Ferguson. "After one month I started to feel comfortable.'

Ferguson's most impressive game of the year occurred Sept. 18 against Albright College in Pennsylvania as the freshman aided the Lady Falcons in the rout over their state rivals by scoring two goals.

"It (the goals) was kind of funny. The first one I was playing left defor me I had a good shot but obviously it wasn't going in until the other defensive players tipped it," she said. "The second one I was playing left wing because we were winning so badly. The pass came across the cage and I hit it in (she one-timed it)."

Playing on the offensive line was quite unique for her because it was the first time in quite a while she wasn't playing midfield or defense.

"I was so used to playing defense - that was hard to adjust to," said Ferguson. "It was hard to stop running back on defense, but it was fun. I don't think I ever scored two goals in a game before."

Although the Lady Falcons were 9-15 they qualified for the NCAA Division III tournament. Messiah, which plays in the Middle Atlantic Commonwealth League, made it to the final 16 before they succumbed to Mary Washington of Virginia, which went to the finals.

In the first round the Lady Falcons defeated Eastern Mennonite College in Virginia 3-0. Ferguson explained that was rewarding because their foe had beaten them 3-0 earlier in the regular season.

"I need to improve my dodging because college is a step up from high school," said Ferguson. "It's harder to play against people who had experience so I will work on getting around people when I have possession of the ball." Now that the field hockey season is over, Ferguson is turning her attention to playing point guard on the Lady Falcons basketball team.

Ferguson individually is averaging 1.3 points, and one rebound a game. Her season highs in both categories occurred against Gettysburg in a 93-57 Lady Falcon win on Dec. 11 in which she collected six points and four rebounds.

"I haven't been shooting and playing as well as I can." said Ferguson. "This game (Gettysburg) was a turn-around game for me because I now have confidence that I (Please turn to page A-10)

Tigers get pinned in loss to Barrons

By JOSEPH W. SAMULKA THE REPORTER

The South Plainfield boys and girls bowling teams concluded their arduous early-season schedule as they both were shut out by Woodbridge 4-0 last Thursday.

The Tigers were going up a couple of superb opponents. Last year the Woodbridge boys team was the runnerup in the Greater Middlesex Conference to Bishop Ahr and the girls team took the state champion-

The Barrons handled the Tigers quite handily as they won all three games by scores of 968-846, 884-829, and 939-802. The Lady Barrons won by scores of 940-769, 872-713, and 892-874.

"We (the boys team) did not have a good day," commented coach Raiph rech. off day and Woodbridge had a decent day. They just bowled better than us this season." High scorers for the Tigers included senior captain Chris Brooks who totalled 545 and Will Fitzsimmons who tallied 510. Brooks' high game was a 205 in the third game while Fitzsimmons's high game also occurred in the third as he rolled a 179.

Matt Stanislao and Robert Walker registered a 177 and a 171 to round out the solid Tiger performances.

Fech also related that some team members, who he declined to identify, were sporting new balls they'd received as Christmas gifts.

He was a bit perturbed that some team members were experimenting with the new-found gifts during game action. He even said that one player suffered from a swollen thumb during the match and had to be replaced with another bowler in the latter games.

"It wasn't that we got off to a from Allisa Jenkowski.

slow start it was that we never got started," said Brooks. "They just bowled better than we did." The Tigers' record fell to 1-3-1 but they're still in high spirits and expect to rebound. "I think we still can be contenders and will win," said Brooks. "It's just a matter of bowling what we're capable of.

We'll have a winning season but it's still a question of winning the tough matches." The Barron pin total reached 2791 to the Tigers 2477.

Still, if the Tigers are to make run later on in the season Brooks feels he'll have to improve his game to help assist his squad in reaching its potential.

"I'm having an off season -I'm not happy with the way I'm bowling," said Brooks. "Bowling is a streaky game and hopefully I can start turning the season around for me." As a result, the captain has begun adjusting his delivery which he hopes will generate higher scores. "I'm still trying to feel the lanes out," said Brooks. "I'm moving inside more to the left on my delivery.' As for the Lady Tigers, they were overwhelmed in the first two games by 171 and 159 pins before they rallied to put up a fight in the third game.

However, it took a herculean effort by two Woodbridge bowlers, who struck out in the 10th frame to best South Plainfield by 18 pins. "It would've been nice to win the third game and take a point from Woodbridge," said Fech. Top bowlers for the Lady Tigers included Allana Melhorn and Lorraine Starr, who bowled a 477 and a 468 in the threegame set.

Another top performance for South Plainfield included a 167

Fishermen blitzed by the cold as they settle for ice fishing

Unseasonably cold weather in the past few weeks has made fishing impossible in rivers, and lake fishermen have been forced to icefish for success. The cold weather arrived earlier than usual this year, as I recall catching trout on the Raritan River's South Branch last New Year's Eve.

This year's annual New Year's Eve fishing trip was a jaunt to Pennsylvania's Broadhead Creek, but the river's bottom had between three and five inches of ice on it, making wading too dangerous to attempt fishing.

If I had fallen, regaining my footing would be quite difficult, resulting in a life-threatening situation. Instead, I drove to the Windsor Fly Shop in Stroudsburg, bought fly-tying materials, and prepared for the ice-out.

Ice fishermen, however, are thriving on the cold weather, as all major impoundments have enough ice to make ice-fishing safe.

For those new to ice fishing who are looking to try the sport, Zebco-Quantum pro staffer Ray Serfass is offering ice-fishing trips on his private 300-acre lake. All bait equipment and shelter is provided, and for those looking for lodging, Ray offers accommodations for groups ranging in size from one to 25. For more information, call Ray at (717)

Last year's winter bow season yielded 838 whitetails, the lowest of any deer season. This low number is not necessarily due to few deer being around (permit shotgun season, which runs the same time, yielded 12,964 deer last year), but rather few hunters going after the deer. Ferguson will improve as she sees more action at the collegiate level, however, the only question left is in what sport she will see action in since the freshman may be spreading herself too thin with playing field hockey and basketball in addition to majoring in bi-

'It's pretty hard but not impossible (to do all three). With sports it's just a matter of managing your time and fitting things in," said Ferguson. "As for now I'm going to play both and see how things go. Right now I want to play both.

Pelican Ski Report

The winter storm last week was great! Snow was everywhere and even Hunter Mountain reported at least 30 inches of new natural snow (they still have the highest base in the tri-state area with 106 inches).

The only problem was that a lot of people in Middlesex, Union and Somerset counties were stuck at home because of the icy road conditions.

However, this new snow does present a very good opportunity for all those out there who may be reading this column but sitting there saying "There is no way you are putting me on two pieces of wood and psuhing me down a slope covered with snow! I said this exact statement more than eight years ago as a freshman in high school, and only saw skiing as a potential for serious injury. Boy, was I wrong and now I can't get enough time on slopes (Although, can anyone ever ski too much?). of deal for the beginner looking to start skiing. You should be of the house. Some people use it looking for a basic package when going for the first ski trip, which should include: a lift ticket, ski rentals and a group lesson. Anything besides the basics are certainly additional benefits, but watch the price. Most ski areas are very good with pricing beginner packages and it is affordable for most families.

Vernon Valley offers a package for $48 (adult) and $38 (junior), which includes all of the basics. However, the lift ticket is only for limited use of the mountain. This price is a definite discount considering a full day lift ticket and rentals cost $51 if paid for separately.

One of the more unique opis offered by Craigmeur in Rockaway Township, Morris County. Craigmeur is a small area, utilizing only four trails, but it is what they do with these trails which makes it ideal for first time skiThis is the area where I first night of skking otherwise.

Right now, Craigmeur offers an overnight Ski & Stay package in cooperation with Sheraton Hotels. For $50.50 per person (Based on double occupancy), you receive a one night stay at the hotel and a beginner package at Craigmeur.

Todd Silverman, vice-president for the ski area, said this is great people who enjoy short, overnight get-aways and a chance to get out of the house. "We always have packages for the first time skier," he said. This package is for those who Each ski area offers some type might not be concerned with traveling far but want a night out as a weekend vacation.' For more information on the Ski & Stay, you can call Craigmeur at (201) 697-4501.

If you are not interested in the overnight stay, Belle Mountain in Mercer County is now offering a package for the whole family. The management of Belle Mountain announced they will begin offering a weekly family ski special this Thursday night (Jan. 13). Family Night will feature lift tickets for every member of an immediate family for a total of only $20. This special will run every Thursday night until the end of the season.

If you ask me, you can't beat portunities I have seen this year this deal anywhere, for the simpaying an arm and a leg for it.

ple reason that it allows a family to enjoy a night of skiing without Will Berkheiser, general manager of Belle, said the special is

"We know it might be tough for a family with thre or four children to all come to Belle and ski together," he said. "But, at the same time, we consider ourselves a family ski area, and we love to see families skiing together. This is our contribution to 'skiing togetherness.'

TIPS ON -HOW TO WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT SELLS

REFRIGERATOR/FREEZER, General Electric, 19 cu. ft., three years old, gold, automatic ice maker, automatic defrost, like-new condition. $400 or best offer! Moving, must sell immediately. Call Saturday between 8AM and 9PM. 000-0000

- 1. Use a KEYWORD. This immediately tells the reader exactly what it is you have to sell.
- 2. Make your description CLEAR and FACTUAL. State the year, make, model, color, size, and tell what condition the item is. Also state the special features.
- 3. State the PRICE. Successful Classified advertisers have learned that the price in an ad helps increase the chances for results.
- 4. If there's a genuine sense of URGENCY, say so. The words, "We're Moving" or "Must Sell Fast" suggests that readers respond immediately.
- 5. Include your PHONE NUMBER. Classifieds get results fast and often generate immediate sales. If you cannot be available to answer the phone at all times, be sure to specify special calling times such as "after 6 PM" or "Before 11 AM".

If you need assistance ask one of our friendly AD-VISORS to help you word your ad.

QMy 1988 Dodge Daytona came with factory-installed rear window louvers. The quick-disconnect fasteners fasteners have worn or popped out. Our local Chrysler dealer couldn't get these fasteners from the factory source. I've hit all the junkyards, auto glass replacement shops, etc. I even called Chrysler and was told the only way to get these fasteners is to buy a new set of louvers. They wouldn't give me the name or address of the company nor would they ask the company to call me.

A Over the years, I've been sent hardware and fastener catalogs that list almost every connecting device known. I don't have one to refer to right now, but a library could point you in the right direction. Libraries can cross-refer com-panies by product and who they sell to. A local race car to someone who can. I'm sur-your Ford dealer is right. Ford then it's OK. I've gotten used mechanic but he says there doesn't seem to be anything

> A I haven't run into this prob-lem myself, but in perusing the pages of an old issue of Motor magazine (a trade journal for technicians) I came across a possible remedy for the problem. The electronic engine management system has a built-in self-testing circuit that may have a lead that's being grounded to the body. It will probably take a mechanic to find it and isolate it but, according to Ford, this simple task should cure it. Isuzu Rodeo proves its off-road mettle suzu's Rodeo LS is a flawless off-road performer, in the opinion of our test driver, automotive writer Tom Hagin.

By TOM HAGIN

FORBES NEWSPAPERS

When automakers designate a particular automobile for press use, the idea is for the journalist to test that vehicle in the area for which it was designed.

When Isuzu shipped in a dozen or so Rodeos to Colorado Springs, Colorado for the Isuzu/GPS Rally last August, it knew its best-selling Sport/Utility Vehicle (SUV) would be pushed to its limits.

My mission was to climb aboard the SUV with two other journalists, follow the comour destination, the gaming tables of Cripple Creek. Printed directions were in the glove from the rally.

only. Two trim levels, the S and upscale LS, can be had with a either a four-cylinder or V6 engine. Our test model utilized the huge P245/70/R16 tires and special alloy wheels.

Hailed as one of the sharpest SUVs on the road, our LS rig shows clean lines and, with the repositioned rear-mounted spare, the view behind has been enhanced.

INTERIOR

Reclining front bucket seats are covered in tweed upholstery which was a bit "scratchy" but firm and durable - a necessity for SUVs. Air conditioning and outside mands of a slick little navigational device power mirrors and windows are standard called the Scout GPS, and wind our way with LS trim, while cruise control, a rear through the Rocky Mountains for hours, to cargo net and a four speaker, AMFM cassette stereo are standard as well.

There are lots of features on the LS box of each Rodeo, but to break the seal on Rodeo, in fact, the only options available on the envelope would mean disqualification the upscale model are a CD player and sunroof. Overall cargo volume is cavernous, with almost 75 cubic feet of space for "stuff." sized machine made by Trimble Navigation Our V6 model was equipped with a center of Sunnyvale, Calif. directed us to 48 pre-set console and floor shift that gives a generous

The Rodeo performed flawlessly, with an unexpected detour taking us through rivers, over large granite boulders and up steep, rocky hills. Our model came with a smooth duces wheelspin on slippery roads. shifting four-speed automatic transmission, with revised shift points, which proved extra worthy during the horrendous hillclimb sections. Those teams equipped with manualtransmissioned Rodeos found it difficult to complete the steeper parts.

HANDLING

Very little of our test was actually on-road, but the new twin-cam V6 provides improved low-end performance while better power steering feel gives the Rodeo more refined road manners. The wing window has been replaced by an integrated rear-view mirror, and a swing-out tailgate and full-sized spare gave me confidence while traversing trails covered with sharp granite rocks.

Are those oil additives á good idea?

By BOB HAGIN

recently bought a 1991 Buick Roadmaster station wagon that runs and looks like new at 22,000 miles. Inasmuch as this will probably be the last car I will ever own, I wish to keep it in the best possible condition. I used the additive Slick 50 in previous cars and felt it was most helpful. I asked the sales manager at the Buick dealership about putting Slick 50 (or any additive) in my Buick. He said no. He also said to use premium gasoline but the owner's manual says to use regular unleaded. I've been using regular unleaded with excellent performance. The owner's manual says to not add anything to the car's oil. Can I add Slick 50 or another product that you recommend? Is the information in the Buick owner's manual a sales gimmick? Should I really not add anything to my oil?

No additive maker in his right mind would market a product that would damage or reduce the life of an engine. The real question is whether or not adding something to your motor oil will void any part of your factory warranty. Helen Hutchings (my official Buick contact person) tells me that while Buick doesn't recommend the use of any oil additive, the company position is that using one will not void the car's warranty. Your car will soon be out of warranty anyway and after that, you're on your own. I don't recommend using Slick 50 (or any other additive) because I don't think modern motor oils need help. On the other hand, I've never had a letter from a reader that says that putting an additive in the oil hastened its demise. Other readers would do well to review their own owner's manual to make sure that their vehicle's warranty isn't voided by using an oil additive.

The Union County Arts Center

It's always showtime at Union County's cultural crossroads in Rahway

> By ANNIE ALPERT WeekendPlus Writer

he Union County Arts Center building has been called the "proud old showplace that refused to die.'

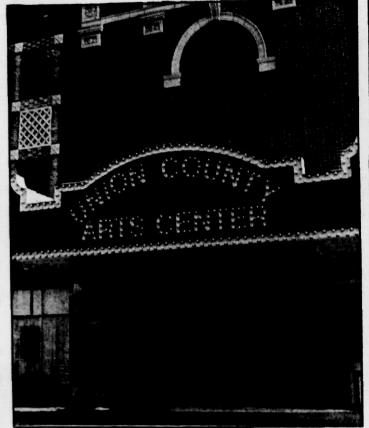

In 1928, a bright, new vaudeville playhouse was built in Rahway by local businessman Barney Engelman to cash in on the fad for public variety theater. When vaudeville died, the theater lived on - first as a grand movie palace, then a budget cinema and finally as a dreary X-rated movie house.

The once-sumptuous coliseum boasted Grecian-muse friezes, helical lobby columns, gold-leaf trim and a barrel-vaulted theater ceiling. A mighty Wurlitzer seven-rank pipe organ graced one wall. By 1981 it was a mess of cheap vinyl tile, crudely-built plywood walls, grime and crumbling plaster. A group of local citizens had already begun an effort to purchase the theater and preserve it as an arts center by forming a nonprofit corporation, Rahway Landmarks, but funds and interest were

The community went ballistic when the New York City group leased the Rahway Theater for the exclusive showing of "adult" films in 1981. Rahway is a community with historical roots as a former colonial settlement and is now a fair balance of private residences, factories and businesses. Adult film parlors did not suit an image Rahway's citizens wanted to perpetuate

The adult-theater fiasco was the impetus needed to stimulate a drive to raise the necessary funds and three years later, in 1984, the title to the theater was transferred to Rahway Landmarks, Inc. A few weeks later, a messy and massive restoration was underway.

The renamed Union County Arts Center opened quietly in 1986 with a production of the 1970s hit musical "Shenandoah." Since then, the theater has presented everything from silent films and concerts to Uncle Floyd and George Carlin. Other luminaries presented have been Tammy Wynette, Lionel Hampton, Jose Greco, Eddie Rabbit, the Amazing Kreskin, Chinese acrobats. Glenn Miller Orchestra, Marvin Hamlisch, radio personality Don Imus and the Alvin Ailey dancers, among many, many others.

The latest of many marquees for the former Rahway Theatre, which hosted vaudeville shows, top-name entertainers, budget movies and even X-rated films before being revived as the Union County Arts Center.

Not all acts booked into the Union County Arts Center are national names, of course. The theater offers a showcase for many of the fine independent theater, dance and music groups in the area. It is also a great place for family and children's entertainment. Entertainers like Tom Chapin play there regularly. Upcoming shows will include The Michael Taubenslag productions of Beauty and the Beast, The Little Mermaid, Sleeping Beauty, and a Kean College production of Cinderella. A new version of The Ugly Duckling will be presented by Bits 'n

Upcoming evening shows include the "Return to the Source" ensemble (see sidebar) as part of the theater's Martin Luther King Week celebration, jazz-stylist Marlene Ver Planck (Jan. 29), and salsa king Tito

Puente and his orchestra just before Valentine's Day (Feb.12). The American Repertory Ballet, meanwhile, will perform jazz and neoclassical dance on March 12, while a refreshing evening of barbershop-style singing with the Jerseyaires and Suburban Sounds will be back by popular demand on April 23.

The Union County Arts Center is located at 1601 Irving Street in the heart of Rahway's revitalized downtown center. For a complete schedule, or to order tickets for any performance, call (908) 499-8226. Tickets prices range from as low as $6 for children's shows to $26.50 for the best seats in the house at other general programs. Plenty of protected parking is available less than a block away.

Concert tribute to honor King

The Union County Arts Center will kick off a weekend-long tribute to the late Martin Luther King Saturday with a performance by the musical ensemble Return to the Source.

Founded in 1985 by attorneyperformer Junius Williams and Marcia Brown, RTS consists of six singers (including Williams, who sings bass and also plays harmonica) with instrumental backing led by music director Tony Jackson. Their repertoire, according to Willams, attempts to show the connection between traditional African-American music like blues, jazz and gospel with modern music like rap and hip-hop.

Saturday's program will include standards like Robert Johnson's "Sweet Home Chicago" and Duke Ellington's "It Don't Mean a Thing" along with a unique arrangement of "Lift Every Voice and Sing." RTS will also perform "Freedom Rap No. 2," an original rap written by Williams and arranged by Jackson. Tickets are $12.50, $10 and $8 for Saturday's performance, which begins at 8 p.m.

Monday, the celebration continues at the Arts Center with a memorial service organized by the local Martin Luther King Anniversary Committee. Admission is free for the service, which will run 10 a.m.-noon.

The Union County Arts Center is located at the corner of Irving and Main streets and Central Avnue in the heart of Rahway's Historic Restoration District. For more information, call (908) 499-0441.

Bungle in the jungle

Disney tosses up a brick with predictable 'The Air Up There'

By JEFFREY COHEN WeekendPlus Film Critic

f you can buy Kevin Bacon, standing maybe 5 foot 9 on his best day, as a former college basketball star, you'll have no trouble believing anything that goes on in The Air Up There, a basketball comedy that the pre-fab folks at Disney (here defined as Hollywood Pictures) have released with an eye toward the grosses of everything from The Mighty Ducks to Cool Runnings

Bacon, playing Jimmy Dolan, is an assistant basketball coach at his alma mater, St. Joseph's College (a fictional school) and is (now brace yourself) "not a team player" who must learn to "see past yourself and toward the good of the team." That's about the level of originality at

The head coaching spot is up for grabs between Jimmy and an evil colleague, and Jimmy, messing up prospect after prospect, is not on the fast track. But one day in a drunken stupor he notices a guy in the background of a home movie about missionaries in Africa, and decides he's discovered the next Shaquille O'Neal. No, I'm not making this up.

Before you can say "pass the Milk Duds," Jimmy has hopped a plane to Kenya and is doing his fish-out-of-water best to prove that Americans really are all concerned with creature comforts and making money. Lucky for him, the prospect (Charles Gitonga Malina) really has talent.

Unlucky for him, the talent doesn't want to leave Kenya to play roundball in America, especially since his father the king (I swear I'm not making this up) doesn't want him to go, having no one else to pass the kingdom onto since his elder son and he had a falling out and the king disowned him. We've clearly never seen anything like this before. So Bacon, who is considerably more charming in this role than he's this is clearly your first film. Ever.

There's even the kindly old sports-loving priest, followed quickly by the flinty missionary nun appalled at all the boys-will-be-boys goings-on round her village. If she weren't a nun, Bacon would be falling in love with her by the end of Act 2.

And yes, we have included the ritual-to-include-the-lily-whitenewcomer-into-tribe scene. And then he goes up into the mountains (to search "the air up there") and finds his spiritual self. Or something.

All of this is served up as if it mattered by director Paul M. Glaser (who used to be Paul Michael Glaser, who used to be either Starsky or Hutch), screenwriter Max Apple and Bacon, who must have seen what The Mighty Ducks did for Emilio Estevez's asking price. In all, it's cute, it's all predictable and it's all over in 88 minutes. And when I say over, I mean over. This film will disappear from your memory by the time you walk in your front door. It's disposable as all get-out, and succeeds to be what it sets out to be: a perfectly homogenized film entertainment with not even one frame you haven't see somewhere else before.

Yes, the African locations look pretty, and yes, it has enough predictable jokes to keep kids interested, but The Air Up There also has more profanity than you might expect in a PG movie. Parents with children under 8 might want to see the film before letting the kids go, but that would require watching it twice. Think about it.

'Morning Glory'

Morning Glory would have made a fine Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation on TV; as it is, the cassette is just right for an evening's viewing. Christopher Reeve and Deborah Raffin (who co-wrote the script) star as a drifter just out of jail and an odd woman who many for convenience and then, yes, fall in love just in time for him to be accused of murder again. Don't you just hate when that hap-

'Hot Shots! Part Deux'

The latest in the deep tradition of Airplane! is Hot Shots! Part Deux, a sequel to...,well, you know what it's a sequel to. This one takes on Rambo movies and other silly adventures, and scores a few big jokas, a number of smaller ones and a lot of very, very silly ones. If you enjoyed all the others of this kind, there's no reason to think you wouldn't like this one, too. It's Plow will finally make its debut this month when it premieres Friday at the Vil-lagers Theatre in Somerset.

Mamet's gripping satire, which looks into the cynical behind-thescenes business of Hollywood. opened to mixed reviews at the Royale Theatre in New York City in 1988, but drew a great deal of attention, not the least of which was due to the cast, which included Ron Silver, Mamet mainstay Joe Mantegna and, making her major stage debut, Madonna

Mamet, of course, is the prolific Pulitzer Prize-winning author of many gripping dramas, including American Buffalo and Glengarry

The Villagers' production of Speed the Plow will also feature a talented cast under the direction of Doug Eaton, who proved his ability to handle such dramatic material while directing A Few Good Men for the Villagers last winter.

The cast will feature Tara Langella, a Bound Brook resident along with John Hickson of Highbridge and Michael Hodson of Summit.

The production will be coproduced by Denise Perrotte and Iris Green, with set design by Gordon Danieli, costumes by Camille Cusimano and lighting by Joe

Simon's 'Barefoot' on Circle stage

ust about everyone has seen at least one Neil Simon comedy, but have you ever seen one of "in the round?"

For this unusual perspective, head to the aptly-named Circle Playhouse in Piscataway, which will premiere its production of the ever-popular Barefoot in the Park on Friday

One of Simon's early Broadway hits. Barefoot chronicles the comic misadventures of a newlywed couple coping with life in New York City, a dilapidated apartment and a meddling mother-in-law, who finds her own romance with her daughter's elderly and eccentric

Local actors and actresses appearing in the production include Kristin Barber of Bound Brook as Corie Bratter, Kathy Mattingly of Piscataway as Corie's mother, Ethel, and John Boucher of Somerset as Ethel's charming suitor, Victor Velasco

The play will be presented 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday evenings through Feb. 5, with a 2 p.m. Sunday matinee on Jan. 23. Tickets are $10 for Friday-Saturday performances, and $8 (or two for $15)

'Tangents' to premiere at George Street Playhouse

ould the psycoligical drama be the most original drama from of the 20th

Certainly it's one of the most popuhar, having crossed successfully from the stage (Equus and Agnes of God are two examples) to film (The Three Faces of Eve. Prince of Tides) to television (the legendary final episode of M*A*S*H is a classic example of the form. Sybil is another).

Now comes Tangents, a world-premiere work by Elizabeth Hansen running through Jan. 30 at the George Street Playhouse in New Brunswick. Directed by Alyson Reed (star of the film version of A Chorus Line and Broadway's current A Grand Night For Singing), Tangents takes a look into a familiar dramatic disorder - multiple personalities, this particular case afflicting a young coed, whose case becomes an obsession for Dr. Nancy Ellis.

The twist here is that separate actresses will inhabit the various personalities exhibited by the girl.

"I thought it would be interesting to see the different personalities of the woman portrayed by five or six actresses," said Hansen, who was nominated for an Emmy in 1990 for writing the CBS Schoolbreak Special American Eyes. "You can't get more theatrical than that.'

Previews began last week for Tangents, which makes its official premiere Friday. Saturday, Jan. 22, George Street will host a related symposium titled "Myths About Madness: Images of Mental Illness in Art and Popular Culture." The symposium, which begins at 2 p.m. and is free to the public, will explore and contrast the images of mental illness in art and popular culture with medical fact.

Panel members will include several noted professors of literature, art and art history. The symposium will be moderated by Laurie Wilson, professor of art history and art therapy at New York University, who will provide a medical overview of perceptions of mental illness.

Books

Florio-Whitman between the lines

NJN correspondent documents memorable race for governor's office

By NATHAN M. SHASHOUA WeekendPlus Writerr

olitical buffs, CNN junkies and armchair campaign managers should enjoy a new book which tells the behind the scenes story of Governor-elect Christine Todd Whitman's November 1993 victory over Governor Jim Florio.

The book, Governor's Race ($14.95, Rutgers University Press), is the diary kept during the campaign by New Jersey Network senior political correspondent Michael Aron. Aron's diary freely comments on the rumors, scandals, and strategizing in ways that he himself admits he could not while reporting for NJN.

The best reason to read Governor's Race is that, usually, the public has to wait much longer for the type of campaign stories Aron tells to come out in print, in one form or another. Aron also manages to describe events in a lively manner, avoiding political science textbook-style writing.

Aron offers his own opinions on the motivations behind the actions of the candidates and their staffers, from the early primaries through November 2. He shows how NJN and New Jersey newspapers covered the charges Florio and Whitman made against each other over the course of the campaign

Governor's Race devotes a good amount of space to the Republican primary between Whitman, former state attorney general Cary Edwards and former state legislator James Wallwork

Aron points out Edwards' failings and Whitman's strengths in campaigning.

"Edwards has said...that he thinks of himself as better at government than at running for office, and even some of his supporters agree," Aron writes. He explains that Whitman won the primary because she kept calm and cool in debates, bounced back from mistakes better and showed a better presence on Aron chronicles the valiant efforts of Florio and his campaign team to come back from low ratings in the polls. However, Aron feels that the Florio camp spent too much time attacking Whitman and too little time promoting their own accomplishments. He writes,"A large part of the Florio story is the many good bills he has signed and sensible policies he has backed that people are not generally aware of. Instead, his ads ridicule Whitman, as if a calculation has been made that you can't get undecided voters to vote for Florio.

The poise Whitman exhibited in the primary helped carry her through numerous missteps made when going up against Florio, according to Aron.

Aron even managed to fit in a postscript on the Ed Rollins affair. In an insightful analysis, he writes that Rollins "was so eager to show off how cleverly he and the Whitman campaign had outfoxed Carville and the Democrats that he confessed to his own dirty tricks!'

Another interesting aspect of Aron's book is that readers get to see when his instincts were wrong. He writes that he believed the conventional wisdom and the polls which showed Florio would win re-election, albeit barely. He believed, at one point, that Edwards could still pull off a victory in the primary. Aron's own perceptions help capture the uncertainties of the 1993 race

Former Somerset County Freeholder Christine Todd Whitman's successful campaign against incumbent Jim Florio for the New Jersey governor's office is chronicled in NJN correspondent Michael Aron's timely book Governor's Race.

The history of underwater exploration from the 16th century to the present is the subject of the "Deep Sea Treasures" exhibit running through Feb. 21 at the New Jersey State Aquarium in Camden.

Most fireplaces require modern upgrades to capture a considerable amount of wasted heat A fireplace may take the chill out of cold room. Certain models are equipped with the flue, resulting in drafts pulling heat out unseasoned wood which is difficult to burn winter nights, but it may not be as effective in reducing your overall energy bill.

A properly functioning fireplace flue will not only draw out smoke but also about 20 percent of the heated air in the room each hour, said Inez H. Lief, president of the New Jersey Association of Realtors (NJAR). Moreover, you are most likely receiving only 15 percent of the potential heat produced by each burning log because much of the combustible material in the wood is lost as gas without burning or producing heat.

This does not mean you should give up your dream of cozy nights by the fire. A few modifications can increase the energy efficiency of your fireplace.

To begin, a heating grate made of hollow electric blowers directing hot air into the room instead of up the chimney.

Fireplace covers also increase heating efficiency, said Ms. Lief, corporate liaison and broker for Burgdorff Realtors in Murray Hill. Steel covers with fire resistant glass enable you to watch the fire while receiving radiant heat through the glass. Be sure to leave your damper open when the fire is burning or the coals are still glowing.

A cover should be placed over the opening of the fireplace when the fire is nearly extinguished, but hot enough to require an open damper to release smoke. Make certain the cover fits tightly around the edges so the room heat does not escape.

Homeowners can boost the efficiency of an existing open fireplace by installing a gas fueled or wood burning fireplace insert. Inserts fill the existing fireplace opening and connect to the existing flue. These inserts, which use a catalytic combustion system, ensure clean burning and provide a 78 percent efficiency. A fan provides natural convection heating and a thermostat ensures steady, even heat.

The type of wood burned also can affect fireplace efficiency Ms. Lief said. Harder woods such as birch, oak and maple burn more slowly and give more evenly distriband produces a great deal of smoke.

The damper should always be kept closed whenever the fireplace is not in use, unless you are using natural ventilation to cool your home. Otherwise, you may find it could pull expensive heated or cooled air from your house, which adds to your energy bill. To be sure the damper closes tightly, hold a mirror inside the chimney base to check for light leaks.

As a safety precaution, have your chimney swept each year to remove debris and to check for obstructions.

Installing a fireplace also adds value to your home. According to Remodeling magazine, a fireplace can return as much as 140 heat produced by the fireplace into the fireplaces exhaust large quantities of air up faster and more unevenly. Beware of green, percent of the home owner's investment.
